AFL Unions Urge Prevailing Wage Rates Under WPA

Get Together on Appeal To Roosevelt and Congress

THOUSANDS ON STRIKE THROUGHOUT NATION

Continue to Protest Against 130 Hours of Work a Month

(By The Associated Press)

Leaders of American Federation of Labor unions, divided as to whether they should encourage strikes on WPA projects, got together yesterday on an appeal to Congress and President Roosevelt that prevailing wage rates be restored to WPA workers.

While thousands of work relief employes who had been on strike five days or more were being discharged under orders from WPA headquarters, officials of the AFL unions met in the national capital and discussed heatedly what should be done about the new relief law's requirement that WPA workers put in 130 hours a month for a "security wage" instead of working it out at the same hourly rates prevailing for similar private employment.

Just before the conference voted unanimously to petition Congress for repeal of this requirement, and to lay its demands before President Roosevelt as well, Hugh Van Arsdale, a spokesman for the electrical workers brotherhood in New York, shouted:

Suggests Great Strike

"If Congress deserts the building trade unions, I suggest we strike every government job in the country and not let a wheel move on any job in which the government has an interest!"

William Green, president of the federation, declared at the outset of the Washington meeting that the remedy for the new WPA wage regulations lay with Congress rather than through strikes on WPA projects."

Later, he said in response to questions that he was unable to say who was responsible for the abandonment of prevailing wage rates on WPA work, but that the AFL would fix the responsibility eventually and "tell the workers of the nation."

"No union man will willingly work for any man or any government for a lower rate of wages than his union has fixed for him," Green added.

Harry Bridges Identified As "Comrade Rossi"

Belonged to Communist Party, Former Member Testifies

San Francisco, July 12 (AP)—Harry Bridges, CIO west coast director, was identified by a witness at his deportation hearing today as "Comrade Rossi," one-time member of the Communist party.

John L. Leech, who said he once belonged to the Communist party in Los Angeles, made the identification before James M. Landis, dean of Harvard Law College and special examiner in the labor department proceedings against Bridges.

It was Leech who made an affidavit to the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities stating he had seen Bridges elected to the California State Central Committee of the Communist party.

He testified today the Australian-born labor leader was elected a member of the Central Committee of the Communist party of the United States at its ninth annual convention in the hearing of the U. S. Labor department's accusation that Bridges is a member of the Communist party and should be deported.

The first was Maj. Laurence A. Milner, Oregon national guard reserve officer, who testified to four years undercover work to learn of alleged Communist activities among labor unions. Milner was threatened Bridges' counsel today with citation for contempt because of discrepancy between testimony given at the hearing and that given at a Portland, Ore., trial.

Trapped Five Hours in Parachute, Rathbornes Soon Take Another Jump

Have Narrow Escape from Death at New York World's Fair

New York, July 12 (AP) — The socially prominent J. Cornelius Rathbones returned to the New York World's fair late today and made a parachute jump from the same tower from which they hung helplessly 125 feet above ground for five hours overnight in a disabled 'chute.

Their second descent was made in the usual 15 seconds, as compared with the long siege that started last night when a cable jammed and a guy wire fouled to hold them aloft until rescue efforts finally succeeded early this morning.

Although they returned to complete their jump — just as fliers go aloft again immediately after a crackup to steady their nerves, they did not use the 'chute which became disabled and attracted a great crowd last night.

Use Opposite Side

Because of veering winds, they took a 'chute on the opposite side, where four of the 11 "umbrellas" were operating on the 250-foot tower.

First they thanked the two mechanics who rigged up the apparatus by which they were lowered to safety over a precautionary police safety net spread below this morning. Then they were hauled aloft in the customary 58 seconds and dropped without incident.

The tower management found business booming rather than diminishing in the wake of last night's mishap. Soon after the

Youth's Hotel Leap Only Publicity Stunt

Salt Lake City, July 12 (AP)—A youth's threats to leap from atop a 10-story hotel was branded "just a publicity stunt" by Detective Capt. E. A. Hedman today.

Hedman said the 22-year-old Kansan, who first gave the name of Jack Page, admitted he was Eugene Page Aldridge. The officer added:

"Aldridge was out of work and pulled this stunt in the hope of attracting enough publicity to get a job in the movies or somewhere else."

Old Sorrell's Bones To Remain in Museum Director Declares

Pittsburgh, July 12 (AP)—The bones of "Old Sorrel," General Stonewall Jackson's civil war steed, will remain at Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh where they have been the past 36 years.

Dr. Andrew Avinoff, director of the museum, announced today that a curator's suggestion the horse's bones be given to the South, did not represent the official attitude of the institution. He declared:

"The skeleton has a value as a historical relic and a sentimental significance as a link that binds the North to the South in an affection that has entirely blotted out the harsh memories of the civil war."

His statement was made after offers for the skeleton were voiced by representatives of Jackson's boyhood home at Jackson's Mill, W. Va., the United Daughters of the Confederacy and the Grand Army of the Republic.

Col. C. H. William Ruhe, past commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. said that "any relic of that kind typifying as it does the history of the civil war should stay right here in Pittsburgh."

Director Avinoff, saying there was no intention of disposing of the relic, extended an invitation to the G. A. R. veterans who will hold their 73rd annual encampment here August 27, to come out to the museum and see "Old Sorrel."

General Motors Seeks Speedy End Of CIO-UAW Strike

Opens Negotiations Intended To Settle Troubles in Detroit

Detroit, July 12 (AP) — General Motors Corporation, facing a prolonged tie-up of preparatory work on its 1940 model automobiles, opened negotiations today intended to settle a strike of skilled employes who are members of the CIO United Automobile Workers.

The conference between officials of corporation and union got under way as UAW-CIO leaders at Pontiac called "all available pickets" in that city to report at 6 a. m. (EST) outside the Fisher Body Co. plant there, where state police maintained order today, and as a union head in Detroit warned that G. M. die work would be completely suspended in "eight or ten days."

Several Injured

Several persons were injured at the Pontiac Fisher plant Monday and Tuesday as pickets massed at the gates to prevent workers from entering. Today, after 130 state troopers enforced a reduction of pickets to ten at each gate, some non-strikers entered the plant without being molested. The management announced that 220 hourly workers entered; the union said only 29 production workers and no tool and die employes passed the gates.

Before the negotiations started at the General Motors building here R. J. Thomas, president of the UAW-CIO, said, "the UAW-CIO enters these negotiations in the hopes they will bring a speedy and constructive solution to our problems. We will cooperate to that end. In the meantime the strike will be maintained and pushed with full vigor."

Approximately 6,700 tool and die workers, engineers and maintenance men have been affected so far in the eleven general motors plants where CIO unionists have struck.

Many Treasures Given National Gallery of Art

Samuel H. Kress Presents $25,000,000 Collection

Washington, July 12 (AP)—Samuel H. Kress, New York merchant, presented the nation today a collection of art treasures which experts said would make the new national gallery of art one of the world's outstanding centers for the study of the Italian masters.

Acclaimed by President Roosevelt as a "decided step in the realization of the true purpose of the national gallery," the Kress gift of 375 paintings and 18 pieces of sculpture will be installed for the opening of the $15,000,000 gallery now being erected with funds provided by the late Andrew W. Mellon.

Valued at $25,000,000

Gallery trustees, announcing acceptance of the collection, did not place an estimate on its value, but previously experts have valued it at between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000.

Kress, founder and head of the chain store enterprise which bears his name, has spent years quietly collecting works of art representative of the Italian school. No other collection, experts say illustrates that school's development in so complete a manner.

In a leter to President Roosevelt, Kress said removal of the paintings from his own home would make a great change, but that he would be compensated by knowledge that the collection has a permanent home.

Expects Other Gifts

The president replied that in bestowing treasuries incalculable in value and interest to the nation, Kress was "giving an example which may well be followed by others of our countrymen, who have in their stewardship art treasures which also happily might find a home in the national gallery."

Gallery trustees said the Kress gift marks the first important step toward achieving Mellon's objecting

State Firemen's Unit Favors Ban On All Fireworks

Adopt Resolution Demanding Action by the Legislature

J. Donald Wilson of Barton Stands Chance to Become President

Ocean City, Md., July 12 (AP)—A resolution urging the state firemen's association to go on record in support of a bill banning the sale, possession or firing of fireworks in Maryland without a proper permit was introduced at the opening business session of the firemen's 47th annual convention today.

B. H. Shipley, member of the Ellicott City fire department, offered the resolution, which will be acted upon tomorrow. A bill such as that endorsed in the resolution was defeated at the last session of the legislature after bitter debate.

Asks Statewide Code

J. Lloyd Hopkins, Annapolis, chairman of the fire prevention and inspection committee, introduced a similar resolution and another urging a statewide code regulating the installation of air conditioning equipment.

The delegates, representing 136 of the 180 companies in the association, were welcomed today by Mayor Edmond Johnson, whose greetings were answered by Millard J. Tawes, state comptroller.

The firemen jammed the pier for a crab feast this afternoon, and 35 barrels of crabs were washed down with 15½ barrels of beer.

A four-way fight for the presidency took form today presaging a lively session tomorrow when candidates will be nominated. Definitely in the running were Percy S. T. Reinwall, Prince George's county, John F. McNulty, Linthicum Heights, Col. Roland Duke, Leonardtown, and J. Donald Wilson, Barton. Wilson is president of the Allegany and Garrett counties volunteer firemen's association.

Pensions for Burnie

A resolution to pay C. Howard Whilter, Glen Burnie, a $120 annual pension was adopted. Whilter, a member of the Glen Burnie department since 1904 and an officer of the state association 15 years, is ill and is confined to a hospital.

A change in the by-laws to limit a trustee's term of office headed for the convention floor with the endorsement of the association's executive committee.

Roy L. Morgan, of the independent company of Annapolis, has held the trustee's post since 1918. The proposed amendment would prevent a trustee from succeeding himself, and would limit the officer to one five-year term.

Morgan's term of office expires this year, and a trustee will be elected, with other officers, Thursday night.

Considered with the proposed amendment limiting a trustee's term was another resolution which would repeal a by-law allowing the trustee to appropriate $120 a year for disabled firemen.

The firemen's school at the university of Maryland drew praise from the committee, which urged attendance by more firemen. Work of the school improved department's efficiency, the committee said, and helped reduce the state's fire losses.

Fire extension Commissioner T. W. Venemann, Riverdale, advised the committee 632 firemen received diplomas at the recent firemen's school at the university.

Prince of Hoboes Dies

Altoona, Pa., July 12. (AP)—John F. Weller, 70, prince of hoboes, died today.

He was international secretary of the Hoboes of the World, chief lieutenant of Hobo King Jeff Davis, and one-time sergeant of Altoona police.

Slayer of Marshal Captured In Battle with Police in Idaho

Pocatello, Idaho, July 12 (AP)—A gunman who shot and killed a town marshal during a dispute growing out of his failure to see his estranged wife was wounded seriously and captured in a second gun fight tonight.

Two Pocatello police officers cornered the fugitive in a dormitory under construction at the University of Idaho, southern branch. The man had taken refuge there after doubling back from a flight to the hills.

Chief of Detectives Guy Nelson named the gunman as Britt Hargraves Jr., 30, and said he killed F. F. Hunter, 45, town marshal of neighboring Alameda.

Hargraves was captured by Nelson and City Officer C. C. Evans. Evans said he sprayed machine-gun bullets over the upper part of the man's body. Hospital authorities said they did not expect him to live.

Nelson and Evans suffered arm wounds in the exchange of shots.

State and city police had been hunting Hargraves in hills surrounding this southern Idaho city since Hunter's slaying about 3 p. m. today. A companion of the marshal's, R. B. Bestline, Pocatello automobile dealer, was wounded.

Hunter was killed and his companion wounded in the arm and back when they responded to a call to the home of Hargraves' father-in-law, George Bailey. Nelson said he believed Bailey's refusal to let Hargraves see the younger man's estranged wife caused the shooting.

British Warships In Trouble Areas Off China Coast

Anticipate New Incidents in Series of Alarming Events

No Progress Made in Efforts to Reach Agreement

Shanghai, July 12. (AP)—British warships sped toward trouble points along the China coast tonight in anticipation of new incidents in the series which have created serious British-Japanese tension.

The 1,375-Ton destroyer Diamond was enroute to Tsingtao, where British officials professed to fear further demonstrations like that of Monday in which the British consulate and British Hongkong and Shanghai bank building were stoned and damaged.

Britons said the demonstration, by men in Chinese garb, was Japanese-inspired. The consul protested to the Japanese authorities who have been masters of Tsingtao, chief Shantung province port, since its capture Jan. 10, 1938.

Other Attacks Prepared

Today British consular officials notified Japanese authorities that they had information that similar demonstrations were being prepared for Friday and Saturday and asked for Japanese military protection. The notification said the Japanese would be "held responsible for any damage."

The British took similar precautions before Monday's attack, but Japanese military patrols watched the march of the consulate and made no move to intervene.

Settlement Unlikely

Britain and Japan have agreed to seek a settlement of their Tientsin dispute at a conference in Tokyo, but its opening has been delayed. Japanese army spokesmen in China and Japan have declared they had little hopes of a settlement, which they said must be based on British agreement to "cooperate" with Japan's program for establishment of "a new order in East Asia."

The difficulties of Britain's position was emphasized by Chinese dispatches from Chunkgong quoting H. H. Kung, the Chinese premier, as declaring "every concession or acquiescence Britain makes to Japan will be regarded by the Chinese government as an unfriendly act."

Senate Confirms McNutt for High Washington Post

Vote Taken after Bridges Criticizes his Record As Governor

Washington, July 12. (AP)—The Senate confirmed Paul V. McNutt's appointment as Federal Security Administrator today but only after the subject of Indiana's "two percent clubs" had been brought up and angrily threshed out.

Senator Bridges (R-NH) started the hostilities by criticizing McNutt's record as Hoosier governor on the ground that under him two percent of the salaries of state employes was collected for campaign funds. He demanded that the Senate pass a resolution to prevent McNutt from forming two percent clubs among the thousands of federal workers who will serve under him.

Senator Minton (D-ND), a leader of the McNutt-for-president forces, arose to ask Bridges "who is financing your campaign for the Republican presidential nomination." He denounced campaign chest methods of Republicans in Indiana and the nation in the past.

After an hour of such exchanges, the Senate approved McNutt's nomination on a voice vote, with a chorus of Democratic "yeas" against scattered "nos" from the Republican side.

McNutt, who returned to this country announcing he would resign his $18,000 job as High Commissioner to the Philippines, now will step into a new $12,000 post created by the president under his reorganization of the federal government.

The handsome, prematurely gray-haired Democrat will direct thousands of federal workers in the Social Security Board, National Youth Administration, Public Health Service ,office of education and Civilian Conservation Corps.

Mystery Blast Damages Ship Off Norfolk

Tangled Mass of Burned Machinery and Black-Charred Hull Was Once Navy's Famous Ranger

Seven Navy Enlisted Men Have Narrow Escape from Death or Injury; Cause Unknown

Norfolk, Va., July 12 (AP) — A mysterious explosion followed by a solid sheet of flame, engulfed the navy's aircraft carrier Ranger from water line to flight deck today and left in its wake a tangled mass of burned machinery and a black-charred hull.

Narrowly escaping death or serious injury were seven navy enlisted men who, warned by the explosion, scurried to safety within the hull of the $30,000,000 vessel, now at Norfolk yard undergoing minor repairs and overhaul.

Condition Satisfactory

The seven men apparently were not seriously injured by the explosion or fire. They were given first aid treatment aboard the Ranger and their condition tonight was reported as satisfactory. Ranger officers said they suffered chiefly from exhaustion and shock.

According to officers of the big plane carrier the circumstances surrounding the explosion and fire are a complete mystery. No conjecture was given as to the cause of the fire.

One officer at the navy yard said that $50,000 will probably cover the damage. However, there is much expensive machinery aboard the ship which may have been ruined by the blaze. If this is the case it will be impossible to determine the damage at this time.

Witnesses said that a muffled roar resounded from the water line of the Ranger amidship on the starboard side. The roar was followed by flame which swept the vessel amidship from the water line to the flight deck for a distance of approximately 200 feet.

Blame Gasoline Leak

Workmen near the scene of the explosion expressed the opinion that leaking gasoline spread on the water near the hull of the Ranger had ignited.

Capt. H. E. Kays, U. S. N., captain of the yard, who rushed to the Ranger upon report of the fire said "we do not know what was responsible for the explosion and are at a loss at this time to make a statement."

The explosion today was the sec-

WAR AUXILIARY HEAD

Miss J. Trefusis Forbes

Miss J. Trefusis Forbes, of London, has been appointed to the British Air Ministry as director of the newly-formed Women's Auxiliary Air Force. Members of the organization will, in time of war, replace the male ground staffs at airports as cooks, mess orderlies, and at other auxiliary posts.

Dolezal Denies He is Slayer of Florence Polillo

Also Declares He Knows Nothing of Torso Slayings

Cleveland, July 12 (AP) — Frank Dolezal denied tonight that he killed Mrs. Florence Polillo, or that he is the long-sought "torso slayer" of 12 persons, his attorney, Fred P. Soukup, said after a jail cell interview with the brawny bricklayer.

"He denies the Polillo killing," Soukup said. "He denies he is the torso murderer. He says he was in a daze when he made the confession. I know a lot about how the confession was obtained, but I'm not prepared to say anything yet.

"I am not prepared to say he was beaten up either."

Subnormal Mentality

Soukup said that at his request Dr. L. J. Sternicki examined Dolezal and did not find any evidence of injuries on the suspect, but "he did find that Dolezal is subnormal mentally."

Because Sheriff Martin L. O'Donnell held Dolezal six days before charging him with the decapitation of Mrs. Polillo, the sheriff appeared today before a closed session of the Cleveland Bar Association's Civil Liberties Committee.

O'Donnell said he was not at liberty to disclose what took place at the meeting and Thomas E. Lipscomb, chairman, said the com-

Marriage Business In Elkton About To Suffer Another Blow

Elkton, Md., July 12 (AP)—Marriage business in this onetime Gretna Green, hard hit by the state's new 48-hour marriage law, will suffer a new blow August 1—the city officials have taken their turn in cracking Dan Cupid.

The town council repealed two ordinances regulating the marriage business, and voted sterner measures to replace them, effective August 1. One ordinance requires that only persons 21 years old may apply for a "solicitor's license," and the licenses will cost $100. The "solicitors" meet out-of-state couples who come here to get married, and guide them to their "marrying parson."

The other new ordinance lays out business and residential zones and requires that permits be obtained before outdoor signs may be erected in the residential zone. It was aimed at the "marriage license signs" which long have glowed on Elkton's streets.

Prior to the state law requiring a 48-hour wait between application for and issuance of a marriage license thousands of out-of-state couples came here monthly to marry. The business has decreased about two-thirds since December, but the town still does a marriage business greater than normal for a place its size.

West, Midwest Promised Relief From Heat Wave

Cool Air from North Pacific Due to Cover Large Area Today

(By The Associated Press)

Scorching heat continued to plague most of the west and middle west yesterday (Wednesday) but relief for the entire area was expected today.

Forecaster J. R. Lloyd of the government weather bureau at Chicago said a cold air mass moving in from the North Pacific would spread over the seared regions by tonight (Thursday) and force temperatures down several degrees.

For the second consecutive day the mercury soared yesterday above the 100 degree mark in Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota. It was in the 90's in Illinois and many of the Western states.

Rains of from eight to 14 inches in Texas caused scores of rural and suburban dwellers to flee their homes along rising bayous as the U. S. weather observer warned other South Texans of huge rises expected on the lower reaches of the Trinity, Neches, Sabine and Brazos rivers within 36 hours.

Floodwaters claimed one life. An unidentified youth, attempting to cross Houston's Buffalo bayou on a slick water main, toppled into the water and disappeared.

Unofficial gauges at Richmond on the Brazos river recorded 14 inches of rain this afternoon, and the rain still came down. At Houston and Galveston the fall totaled about eight inches in 68 hours.

Before the negotiations started at the General Motors building here R. J. Thomas, president of the UAW-CIO, said, "the UAW-CIO enters these negotiations in the hopes they will bring a speedy and constructive solution to our problems. We will cooperate to that end. In the meantime the strike will be maintained and pushed with full vigor."

Approximately 6,700 tool and die workers, engineers and maintenance men have been affected so far in the eleven general motors plants where CIO unionists have struck.

State Firemen's Unit Favors Ban On All Fireworks

Adopt Resolution Demanding Action by the Legislature

J. Donald Wilson of Barton Stands Chance to Become President

Ocean City, Md., July 12 (AP)—A resolution urging the state firemen's association to go on record in support of a bill banning the sale, possession or firing of fireworks in Maryland without a proper permit was introduced at the opening business session of the firemen's 47th annual convention today.

B. H. Shipley, member of the Ellicott City fire department, offered the resolution, which will be acted upon tomorrow. A bill such as that endorsed in the resolution was defeated at the last session of the legislature after bitter debate.

Asks Statewide Code

J. Lloyd Hopkins, Annapolis, chairman of the fire prevention and inspection committee, introduced a similar resolution and another urging a statewide code regulating the installation of air conditioning equipment.

The delegates, representing 136 of the 180 companies in the association, were welcomed today by Mayor Edmond Johnson, whose greetings were answered by Millard J. Tawes, state comptroller.

The firemen jammed the pier for a crab feast this afternoon, and 35 barrels of crabs were washed down with 15½ barrels of beer.

A four-way fight for the presidency took form today presaging a lively session tomorrow when candidates will be nominated. Definitely in the running were Percy S. T. Reinwall, Prince George's county, John F. McNulty, Linthicum Heights, Col. Roland Duke, Leonardtown, and J. Donald Wilson, Barton. Wilson is president of the Allegany and Garrett counties volunteer firemen's association.

Pensions for Burnie

A resolution to pay C. Howard Whilter, Glen Burnie, a $120 annual pension was adopted. Whilter, a member of the Glen Burnie department since 1904 and an officer of the state association 15 years, is ill and is confined to a hospital.

A change in the by-laws to limit a trustee's term of office headed for the convention floor with the endorsement of the association's executive committee.

Roy L. Morgan, of the independent company of Annapolis, has held the trustee's post since 1918. The proposed amendment would prevent a trustee from succeeding himself, and would limit the officer to one five-year term.

Morgan's term of office expires this year, and a trustee will be elected, with other officers, Thursday night.

Considered with the proposed amendment limiting a trustee's term was another resolution which would repeal a by-law allowing the trustee to appropriate $120 a year for disabled firemen.

The firemen's school at the university of Maryland drew praise from the committee, which urged attendance by more firemen. Work of the school improved department's efficiency, the committee said, and helped reduce the state's fire losses.

Fire extension Commissioner T. W. Venemann, Riverdale, advised the committee 632 firemen received diplomas at the recent firemen's school at the university.

Prince of Hoboes Dies

Altoona, Pa., July 12. (AP)—John F. Weller, 70, prince of hoboes, died today.

Slayer of Marshal Captured In Battle with Police in Idaho

Pocatello, Idaho, July 12 (AP)—A gunman who shot and killed a town marshal during a dispute growing out of his failure to see his estranged wife was wounded seriously and captured in a second gun fight tonight.

Two Pocatello police officers cornered the fugitive in a dormitory under construction at the University of Idaho, southern branch. The man had taken refuge there after doubling back from a flight to the hills.

Chief of Detectives Guy Nelson named the gunman as Britt Hargraves Jr., 30, and said he killed F. F. Hunter, 45, town marshal of neighboring Alameda.

Hargraves was captured by Nelson and City Officer C. C. Evans. Evans said he sprayed machine-gun bullets over the upper part of the man's body. Hospital authorities said they did not expect him to live.

Nelson and Evans suffered arm wounds in the exchange of shots.

State and city police had been hunting Hargraves in hills surrounding this southern Idaho city since Hunter's slaying about 3 p. m. today. A companion of the marshal's, R. B. Bestline, Pocatello automobile dealer, was wounded.

Hunter was killed and his companion wounded in the arm and back when they responded to a call to the home of Hargraves' father-in-law, George Bailey. Nelson said he believed Bailey's refusal to let Hargraves see the younger man's estranged wife caused the shooting.

British Warships In Trouble Areas Off China Coast

No Progress Made in Efforts to Reach Agreement

Shanghai, July 12. (AP)—British warships sped toward trouble points along the China coast tonight in anticipation of new incidents in the series which have created serious British-Japanese tension.

The 1,375-Ton destroyer Diamond was enroute to Tsingtao, where British officials professed to fear further demonstrations like that of Monday in which the British consulate and British Hongkong and Shanghai bank building were stoned and damaged.

Britons said the demonstration, by men in Chinese garb, was Japanese-inspired. The consul protested to the Japanese authorities who have been masters of Tsingtao, chief Shantung province port, since its capture Jan. 10, 1938.

Other Attacks Prepared

Today British consular officials notified Japanese authorities that they had informatiion that similar demonstrations were being prepared for Friday and Saturday and asked for Japanese military protection. The notification said the Japanese would be "held responsible for any damage."

The British took similar precautions before Monday's attack, but Japanese military patrols watched the march of the consulate and made no move to intervene.

Settlement Unlikely

Britain and Japan have agreed to seek a settlement of their Tientsin dispute at a conference in Tokyo, but its opening has been delayed. Japanese army spokesmen in China and Japan have declared they had little hopes of a settlement, which they said must be based on British agreement to "cooperate" with Japan's program for establishment of "a new order in East Asia."

The difficulties of Britain's position was emphasized by Chinese dispatches from Chunkgong quoting H. H. Kung, the Chinese premier, as declaring "every concession or acquiescence Britain makes to Japan will be regarded by the Chinese government as an unfriendly act."

Senate Confirms McNutt for High Washington Post

Vote Taken after Bridges Criticizes his Record As Governor

Washington, July 12. (AP)—The Senate confirmed Paul V. McNutt's appointment as Federal Security Administrator today but only after the subject of Indiana's "two percent clubs" had been brought up and angrily threshed out.

Senator Bridges (R-NH) started the hostilities by criticizing McNutt's record as Hoosier governor on the ground that under him two percent of the salaries of state employes was collected for campaign funds. He demanded that the Senate pass a resolution to prevent McNutt from forming two percent clubs among the thousands of federal workers who will serve under him.

Senator Minton (D-ND), a leader of the McNutt-for-president forces, arose to ask Bridges "who is financing your campaign for the Republican presidential nomination." He denounced campaign chest methods of Republicans in Indiana and the nation in the past.

After an hour of such exchanges, the Senate approved McNutt's nomination on a voice vote, with a chorus of Democratic "yeas" against scattered "nos" from the Republican side.

McNutt, who returned to this country announcing he would resign his $18,000 job as High Commissioner to the Philippines, now will step into a new $12,000 post created by the president under his reorganization of the federal government.

The handsome, prematurely gray-haired Democrat will direct thousands of federal workers in the Social Securtiy Board, National Youth Administration, Public Health Service ,office of education and Civilian Conservation Corps.

Mystery Blast Damages Ship Off Norfolk

WAR AUXILIARY HEAD

Miss J. Trefusis Forbes

Miss J. Trefusis Forbes, of London, has been appointed to the British Air Ministry as director of the newly-formed Women's Auxiliary Air Force. Members of the organization will, in time of war, replace the male ground staffs at airports as cooks, mess orderlies, and at other auxiliary posts.

Tangled Mass of Burned Machinery and Black-Charred Hull Was Once Navy's Famous Ranger

Seven Navy Enlisted Men Have Narrow Escape from Death or Injury; Cause Unknown

Norfolk, Va., July 12 (AP) — A mysterious explosion followed by a solid sheet of flame, engulfed the navy's aircraft carrier Ranger from water line to flight deck today and left in its wake a tangled mass of burned machinery and a black-charred hull.

Narrowly escaping death or serious injury were seven navy enlisted men who, warned by the explosion, scurried to safety within the hull of the $30,000,000 vessel, now at Norfolk yard undergoing minor repairs and overhaul.

Condition Satisfactory

The seven men apparently were not seriously injured by the explosion or fire. They were given first aid treatment aboard the Ranger and their condition tonight was reported as satisfactory. Ranger officers said they suffered chiefly from exhaustion and shock.

According to officers of the big plane carrier the circumstances surrounding the explosion and fire are a complete mystery. No conjecture was given as to the cause of the fire.

One officer at the navy yard said that $50,000 will probably cover the damage. However, there is much expensive machinery aboard the ship which may have been ruined by the blaze. If this is the case it will be impossible to determine the damage at this time.

Witnesses said that a muffled roar resounded from the water line of the Ranger amidship on the starboard side. The roar was followed by flame which swept the vessel amidship from the water line to the flight deck for a distance of approximately 200 feet.

Blame Gasoline Leak

Workmen near the scene of the explosion expressed the opinion that leaking gasoline spread on the water near the hull of the Ranger had ignited.

Capt. H. E. Kays, U. S. N., captain of the yard, who rushed to the Ranger upon report of the fire said "we do not know what was responsible for the explosion and are at a loss at this time to make a statement."

The explosion today was the sec-

Also Declares He Knows Nothing of Torso Slayings

Cleveland, July 12 (AP) — Frank Dolezal denied tonight that he killed Mrs. Florence Polillo, or that he is the long-sought "torso slayer" of 12 persons, his attorney, Fred P. Soukup, said after a jail cell interview with the brawny bricklayer.

"He denies the Polillo killing," Soukup said. "He denies he is the torso murderer. He says he was in a daze when he made the confession. I know a lot about how the confession was obtained, but I'm not prepared to say anything yet.

"I am not prepared to say he was beaten up either."

Subnormal Mentality

Soukup said that at his request Dr. L. J. Sternicki examined Dolezal and did not find any evidence of injuries on the suspect, but "he did find that Dolezal is subnormal mentally."

Because Sheriff Martin L. O'Donnell held Dolezal six days before charging him with the decapitation of Mrs. Polillo, the sheriff appeared today before a closed session of the Cleveland Bar Association's Civil Liberties Committee.

O'Donnell said he was not at liberty to disclose what took place at the meeting and Thomas E. Lipscomb, chairman, said the com-

Marriage Business In Elkton About To Suffer Another Blow

Elkton, Md., July 12 (AP)—Marriage business in this onetime Gretna Green, hard hit by the state's new 48-hour marriage law, will suffer a new blow August 1—the city officials have taken their turn in cracking Dan Cupid.

The town council repealed two ordinances regulating the marriage business, and voted sterner measures to replace them, effective August 1. One ordinance requires that only persons 21 years old may apply for a "solicitor's license," and the licenses will cost $100. The "solicitors" meet out-of-state couples who come here to get married, and guide them to their "marrying parson."

The other new ordinance lays out business and residential zones and requires that permits be obtained before outdoor signs may be erected in the residential zone. It was aimed at the "marriage license signs" which long have glowed on Elkton's streets.

Prior to the state law requiring a 48-hour wait between application for and issuance of a marriage license thousands of out-of-state couples came here monthly to marry. The business has decreased about two-thirds since December, but the town still does a marriage business greater than normal for a place its size.

West, Midwest Promised Relief From Heat Wave

Cool Air from North Pacific Due to Cover Large Area Today

(By The Associated Press)

Scorching heat continued to plague most of the west and middle west yesterday (Wednesday) but relief for the entire area was expected today.

Forecaster J. R. Lloyd of the government weather bureau at Chicago said a cold air mass moving in from the North Pacific would spread over the seared regions by tonight (Thursday) and force temperatures down several degrees.

For the second consecutive day the mercury soared yesterday above the 100 degree mark in Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota. It was in the 90's in Illinois and many of the Western states.

Rains of from eight to 14 inches in Texas caused scores of rural and suburban dwellers to flee their homes along rising bayous as the U. S. weather observer warned other South Texans of huge rises expected on the lower reaches of the Trinity, Neches, Sabine and Brazos rivers within 36 hours.

Floodwaters claimed one life. An unidentified youth, attempting to cross Houston's Buffalo bayou on a slick water main, toppled into the water and disappeared.

Unofficial gauges at Richmond on the Brazos river recorded 14 inches of rain this afternoon, and the rain still came down. At Houston and Galveston the fall totaled about eight inches in 68 hours.

Britain Asks for More Money for Expenses of Army

Also Requests Parliament To Provide Funds for Credits to Balkans

London, July 12 (AP)—The government asked parliament today for more money to pay for Britain's extended army and extended credit to help two Balkan allies arm.

Other steps in Britain's preparedness campaign include:

1. Disclosure that the Royal air force would make more extensive long distance mass flights over southern France and, possibly, over the Mediterranean near the Italian coast.

2. Revision of the ARP (air raid precaution) evacuation plan to include large areas of London, not considered in the danger zone until now.

3 Announcement that stocks of essential raw materials were more than adequate to supply three months of wartime needs.

A supplementary estimate for the 1939-40 budget added £79,105,060 (about $370,211,400) to the record army appropriation, raising it to £227,261,100 (about $1,063,781,948) in what already was Britain's largest budget since the World War and her greatest ever in peacetime.

Boosts Defense Costs

Army—£227,261,100.

Air Force—£220,626,700 (about $1,063,781,948).

Civilian Defense — £57,000,000 (about $266,760,000).

The new funds will help supply the new conscript army, which is expected to reach an enrollment of 100,000 20-year old recruits before the end of the year, and the territorial army—corresponding to the United States national guard — which has grown to 485,000 men.

Millions for Rumania

Rumania and Greese were the first British allies to get credits under a new measure introduced last week providing £50,000,000 (about $324,000,000) in addition to £10,000,000 (about $46,800,000) arranged for last February.

Rumania will get £5,500,000 (about $25,740,000) and Greece, £2,409,000 (about $11,000,000).

Informed quarters expected Poland would get the largest slice of the new credits, possibly £20,000,000 (about $93,600,000), and that Turkey also would get some.

Credits previously granted Turkey and Rumania made the total Britain has made available to her allies £81,000,000 ($379,000,000).

All four countries have received British and French pledges of aid in defense of their independence.

The cabinet considerd the protracted Moscow negotiations for Soviet Russia's participation in the British-French mutual assistance front and Ivan Mainsky, Soviet Ambassador to London had a long talk with foreign secretary, Lord Halifax. The ministers were said to have drafted new instructions to be sent to Sir William Seeds, British Ambassador to Moscow, on points raised in his latest report.

Foreigners Ordered To Leave Balzano

Rome, July 12. (AP)—Compulsory departure of all foreigners from their homes and vacation residences in Bolzano, Italy's frontier province bordering on Germany at the strategic Brenner pass, was in full swing today on order of premier Mussolini himself.

A communique issued today, three days after the first expulsions were ordered, stated that "political and military" reasons prompted the move in a fight against anti-Fascism. The communique disclosed that Il Duce had signed the order as minister of the interior.

The announcement said the action was taken in connection with the Ovra, Italy's black shirt organization for the suppression of anti-Fascism, because of "the activity of some elements from westhern nations resident in the province of Bolzano."

Cabinet Change Announced

At the same time the government announced a cabinet change which brings Count Dino Grandi, from the key post of Ambassador to Britain back to Rome to become minister of justice.

No amplication of the communique on the foreigners' expulsion was given in the press or elsewhere except for the statement of the authoritative Giornale D'Italia that the order resulted from "verification of the presence and activities of foreigners involved which do not reconcile themselves with the political and military necessities of the frontier territory."

Il Giornale said that "Great Britain has done much more," adding that Italy's action "does not signify total expulsion from Italy of foreign citizens forced to break off suddenly all their means of living and activity, but in most cases involves only the transfer of these citizens to other Italian regions not so near the frontier."

Raymond J. Rimmer Is Nation's Most Valuable Student

Elks Announce Awards at Their Convention at Kansas City

St. Louis, July 12 (AP) — The Elks today named Raymond J. Rimmer, 25, Austin, Tex., as the "nation's most valuable student" and gave him a cash scholarship of $600.

Awards are made annually on the basis of scholastic attainments, character, citizenship and extra-curricular activities.

Rimmer is a senior at the University of Texas and plans to study medicine.

Second prize of $400 went to Philip Craig, 18, Jacksonville, Fla.; third prize of $300 to Hugh Toole, 18, Wallace, Idaho, and fourth prize of $200 to Miss Irene Krantz, 18, Hackensack, N. J.

John F. Malley of Boston, chairman of the Elks Foundation which announced the winners on the third day of the order's national convention here, said students' records were so outstanding six additional scholarships of $150 each were given.

The winners: Jean Brehmer, Rutland, Vt.; Janice S. Ginsberg, Alexandria, La.; Jack Herring, Higgins, Tex.; William Knox, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.; Arthur B. Logan, Parkersburg, W. Va., and Henry A. Shull, Dallas, Texas.

The 7-man team from Elizabeth, N. J. won the ritualistic drill contest and a prize of $500.

opening of business today, which was delayed during repairs and tests, the cashier said four times the normal number of customers were waiting to jump.

The upturn was partly attributable to reduced prices on children's day.

"I really loved it," said Mrs. Rathborne when she landed. This trip was "on the house."

"Fine," replied one of the mechanics, "we'll give you another one."

"No, I'm not going up again," protested Mrs. Rathborne. "Please—I won't do it."

She insisted that the rescuing mechanics, William Gertis and Harry Mitchell, handle the controls for the ride she did take.

Guests of Mayor LaGuardia and the fair's president Grover Whalen at the Terrace Club, the Rathbornes were asked if they were frightened early this morning.

Thought About Will

"Would you have been scared?" Mrs. Rathborne shot back at the mayor. "I thought of an awful lot of things. I even remembered I'd made out no will."

Mrs. Rathborne gibed through most of the siege with frantic rescuers, police and thousands who gathered to see last night's impromptu show — surpassing, in suspense, at least, anything the fair has offered to date. But today, after a long sleep, she could recall none of her remarks.

"The worst part of it was the cold," she said, explaining that she was dressed for a warm evening rather than an endurance test over the chilling lake which lies beside the parachute tower.

"I expected every second might be our last. The seat swayed until my heart was in my mouth and it was a giddy sensation looking down on the crowds below."

All sorts of rescue and reviving equipment was assembled but not needed. Two attendants, including a veteran steeplejack, clambered over the steel structure to place the rescue paraphernalia and one rode to earth on top of the 'chute.

Miner Killed in Battle in Harlan Soft Coal Fields

SIX OTHERS INJURED IN SERIES OF FIGHTS

Gov. Chandler Orders 300 Additional Guardsmen to Scene

Harlan, Ky., July 12 (AP) — Orders for "no picketing" tomorrow went out tonight in Harlan county, scene of a "pitched battle" earlier between national guardsmen and coal mine pickets.

Paul Reed, representative of the C.I.O. United Mine Workers of America said "runners" had been dispatched to notify all points where picket lines had been maintain or were to be formed not to organize tomorrow.

Harlan, Ky., July 12 (AP)—Blazing guns of pickets and national guardsmen killed a miner, seriously wounder a militia officer and felled four others today in the most serious of recent outbreaks of strife in "bloody Harlan's" soft coal fields. Two others were beaten.

While the troops were bringing to jail 250 men arrested at the scene of the clash between pickets and soldiers, a second outburst of bullets from the weapons of the soldiers wounder Hubert Green, a High Splint miner and his mother, Mrs. Kizzie Green, on a Harlan street.

Governor A. B. Chandler, at Ashland on a tour of the eastern Kentucky flood area where 71 were drowned last week, immediately ordered 300 additional national guardsmen here, doubling the strength of the troops. The governor's order included tanks and machine gun companies.

Miner Fatally Shot

Dock Caldwell, 31, miner of Wilson-Barger, a small coal mining camp, was shot fatally.

The injured:

Dan Noe, miner, shot in the abdomen.

Frank Laws, 39, miner of Crummies, struck on the head.

The Harlan hospital listed Hansberary, Noe and Bowman on the danger list.

Battle South of Harlan

The scene of the encounter between pickets and guardsmen was the Mahan-Ellison coal company mine at Catron's Creek, five miles southwest of Harlan. Only a few days ago an explosion was reported in the depths of the Ligget mine of the same company with a loss estimated by officials at $20,000.

Among those arrested at the mine by the soldiers were George Titler, secretary-treasurer of the Harlan district of the United Mine Workers (C. I. O.), and his wife. Major Fred Staples, commanding the guardsmen, said warrants would be issued for both charging them with being accessories to the shooting.

J. A. Dickinson, an official of the Mahan-Ellison company, one of the mines which have operated without a C. I. O. "union shop" contract since soldiers went on duty in the county May 14, described the shooting as a "pitched battle" between guardsmen and union miners on picket duty.

Senate Votes for $80,000,000 More To Help the Aged

But Declines to Approve $40 a Month Pension Plan

Washington, July 12. (AP)—The Senate accepted one proposal to spend an additional $80,000,000 of federal money for old age assistance today and then turned down a $40-every-month plan which would cost $500,000,000 a year.

Nearing the end of debate on house-approved amendments to the existing Social Security law, the chamber voted 43 to 35 for a plan by Senator Connally (D-Tex) which would require the government to pay two-thirds of pensions to the needy aged up to a mximum pension of $15 a month.

The government thus would put up $10 and the states $5. Above $15, the government would match state funds dollar for dollar up to a total maximum pension of $40. At present, the government matches all state funds 50-50 up to a maximum total pension of $30 a month.

(These pensions, which go to the needy, are distinct from the pensions to be paid later to millions under the contributory system of old age insurance.)

Republicans Opposed

The Connally proposal, estimated to cost $80,000,000 annually, drew widespread support from southern and western senators, but 18 of the Senate's 23 Republicans voted in opposition.

After the vote on the Connally amendment, the chamber rejected, 54 to 16 a proposal by Senator Lee (D-Okla), to provide a federal pension of $40 a month for all needy aged over 60. Chairman Harrison (D-Miss) said the social security board estimated the amendment would cost $500,000,000 the first year.

The amendment developed a hot exchange between Lee and Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) in which each accused th other "of paying lip service" to old persons.

Vandenberg Wants Facts

Vandenberg said he agreed that higher pensions were desirable but asked how Lee proposed to finance them. Lee snapped that Vandenberg merely wanted "to get in the record that he favors old age pensions without voting for them."

Senator Bilbo (D-Miss) promptly submitted another liberalization proposal which would provide $30 federal pensions to persons 65 and over.

mittee would draft a complete report and statement tomorrow.

Mrs. Polillo, 42, was one of the 12 "torso murder" victims here since September, 1935. The sheriff said he would not reveal details of a second confession signed by Dolezal. The first one contained some "discrepancies," he said.

Dr. James Smith Is Questioned By Grand Jury

Former President of L.S.U. Quizzed at Special Session

Baton Rouge, La., July 12. (AP)—Barring even its own stenographers, a special grand jury today quizzed Dr. James Monroe Smith for the first time since it started cutting into a financial snarl disclosed when he resigned the presidency of Louisiana State university.

An hour after its 40-minute session with the indicted doctor of philosophy, the jury subpoenaed Richard W. Leche, who quit the governorship a few hours after Smith resigned nearly three weeks ago.

Ordered to appear with Leche tomorrow morning were 19 other highly placed state political leaders, including several one-time aides to the late Huey P. Long, and all the university supervisors except attorney General David M. Ellison.

Although Ellison is working with the jury, even he was not present when the 12 jurors—and no one else—heard the tall educator's first official account of his role in the bizarre drama. Smith already has been indicted on a charge of embezzling $100,000 in school funds.

Shortly after Smith was returned to his cell in the court house above the jury room, the body asked the East Baton Rouge parish police jury (county commissioners) for $5,000 to broaden its inquiry.

In transmitting this request, Judge Charles A. Holcombe expressed hope there would be early indictments in addition to those already voted against Smith and four associates, including his wife.

AFL Unions Urge Prevailing Wage Rates Under WPA

ticipated in strikes against the WPA wage regulations be restored to their jobs, Green promised that he would discuss this with the president.

Most members of the House Appropriations Committee which drafted the new relief law, showed little inclination to grant the AFL request.

One of them, Rep. Taber (R-NY) told reporters:

"The 130-hour month provision against which the workers are striking was proposed by the administration and so far the administration has not requested any change in the language of the law."

In several sections of the country, discharge notices went out to striking WPA workers in accord with the order of Col. F. C. Harrington, the WPA commissioner, that those away from work five consecutive working days or longer be dismissed.

In Minnesota, where a policeman died earlier this week following a beating while protecting a non-striker, officials estimated 10,000 such notices had been sent out.

The acting WPA administrator in New York, Major Edmond H. Leavey, announced that 4,784 dismissal slips had been mailed to construction workers absent from their jobs since last Wednesday.

Strike Not Called Off

AFL union leaders from Pennsylvania, attending the Washington conference, told reporters they had no intention of calling off a scheduled state-wide strike of building trades union members employed on the WPA. The strike has been voted by the state buildings trades council, to begin at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

In New Jersey, leaders of AFL unions asked the 15,000 to 20,000 skilled workers affected by the new wage regulations to strike, and the CIO gave support to strikers. The state relief head advised municipalities that the state government would share no part of the cost of relief to those quitting WPA jobs.

About 1,500 AFL members were on strike at Milwaukee, Wis., but other members of federation unions returned to projects there to vote on the question of continuing the strike.

Officials of AFL unions in New York City claimed every project in the city was paralyzed by the walkout but WPA officials disputed their estimates of the number involved. The walkout was spreading upstate late yesterday. In Rochester, 795 persons were discharged for being away from work five days and 50-year-old John Connolly was promoted because, an official said, he worked alone for two days while 300 workers stood nearby and picketed him.

Harrington Discusses New WPA Wage Scales

Chicago, July 12 (AP)—Col. F. C. Harrington, commissioner of the Works Projects Administration, reported today the wages of WPA workers in the north and west would be reduced while those in the south would be increased.

Ignoring widespread strikes and a picket line outside his hotel, Harrington and state directors of the federal agency considered plans for enforcing the new relief law, including revisions in the pay scales.

The WPA chief stated at a press conference that the legislative provision for a readjustment in the geographical differentials of pay would mean that "northern and western wages will come down and southern wages will go up." He added:

"It's obvious that we can't raise low wages and leave the high wages where they are."

He explained that unskilled labor in New York city earned $60.50 a month, the highest in the nation and considerably above the national average of $52.20, while in certain southern states the workmen received as little as $26.

Harrington did not estimate how many would be affected by the contemplated wage changes or indicate how large they would be.

However, a tentative estimation was that more than 1,000,000 workers in 30 northern, eastern and western states would take a cut when the new scales go into effect next Sept. 1.

Harrington announced 12,000 of the 32,000 WPA administrative employes would be laid off in a retrenchment move and asserted he also aimed to reduce the WPA rolls gradually to 1,500,000 by June 1, 1940.

He figured the provision for a 30-day furlough for all those who have been on the rolls for 18 months would affect 650,000 if all persons eligible for the temporary dismissal were removed by Sept. 1.

Former Policeman And 'Hex' Slayer Refused Paroles

Baltimore, July 12. (AP)—A former policeman, the killer of a policeman, and a "hex" slayer were refused paroles today.

Probation Director Herman M. Moser said Former State Policeman John E. Wheeler, serving a 2½ year term for conspiracy, was "like a shepherd dog that killed sheep" because he broke the law he was supposed to enforce. Moser pointed out paroles had been refused to another policeman and a garage owner convicted with him of extorting money from motorists by ordering them to have repairs made at the garage.

Shea Refused Parole

Moser refused George K. Shea's parols application because he said Shea had been convicted twice before in Pennsylvania for forgery. Shea is serving a four-year manslaughter term for the death of Policeman Harold Hanley, killed when he attempted to question Shea.

Shea drove off with the policeman clinging to the running board. He was thrown off and killed when the car rounded a corner.

A parole was refused to Columbus Diggs because the lawyer who defended th negro said he did not think the prisoner had served enough time. Diggs was sentenced in 1924 to life imprisonment for the fatal shooting of Hattie Crowley. He said he killed the woman because she told him she "put a spell" on him. Moser said J. Abner Sayler, now a supreme bench judge, had defended Diggs but believed he should serve more than 15 years.

Approves Four Paroles

The commissioner approved only four paroles. They were for Arthur Fox, 1-year forgery sentence in Harford county; Cullen Lark, 5-year Somerset county manslaughter sentence; Earl Collins, 10-year manslaughter sentence in Somerset; and David Jones, serving 2 years for a Dochester county assault.

Those declined included:

Bill To Exempt U. S. Securities From Tax Shelved

Washington, July 12 (AP) — One potential barrier to adjournment of Congress disappeared today when the House Ways and Means Committee pigeonholed President Roosevelt's request for legislation to prohibit future issues of tax-exempt securities.

The committee referred the proposal to its tax-subcommittee for study during the recess period and for possible inclusion in a general revision of the tax structure scheduled for next year.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) said the committee felt that adjournment was too imminent to warrant an attempt to enact the legislation at this session.

Informed members said a prolonged fight would have been precipitated, had the committee acted otherwise, because of the opposition raised by numerous state and local governments whose representatives contended such legislation would greatly increase their financing cost.

In a special message to Congress last January 19, President Roosevelt called for removal of tax immunities. He asserted at that time that " a fair and effective progressive income tax and a huge perpetual reserve of tax-exempt bonds could not exist side by side."

Supporting the president's recommendation, Secretary Morgenthau said that Congress ought to consider reducing the surtaxes on individual incomes in the higher brackets at the same time.

Foes of the proposal to tax the income from federal, state and municipal securities said it would greatly hamper, and in some cases, prevent, communities from borrowing funds.

John W. Hanes, treasury under secretary, challenged this argument and said treasury experts estimated the maximum additional cost would be $105,000,000. He added that this would be spread over a period of 50 years.

Britain Asks for More Money for Expenses of Army

Also Requests Parliament To Provide Funds for Credits to Balkans

London, July 12 (AP)—The government asked parliament today for more money to pay for Britain's extended army and extended credit to help two Balkan allies arm.

Other steps in Britain's preparedness campaign include:

1. Disclosure that the Royal air force would make more extensive long distance mass flights over southern France and, possibly, over the Mediterranean near the Italian coast.

2. Revision of the ARP (air raid precaution) evacuation plan to include large areas of London, not considered in the danger zone until now.

3 Announcement that stocks of essential raw materials were more than adequate to supply three months of wartime needs.

A supplementary estimate for the 1939-40 budget added £79,105,060 (about $370,211,400) to the record army appropriation, raising it to £227,261,100 (about $1,063,781,948) in what already was Britain's largest budget since the World War and her greatest ever in peacetime.

Boosts Defense Costs

Army—£227,261,100.

Air Force—£220,826,700 (about $1,063,781,948).

Civilian Defense — £57,000,000 (about $266,760,000).

The new funds will help supply the new conscript army, which is expected to reach an enrollment of 100,000 20-year old recruits before the end of the year, and the territorial army—corresponding to the United States national guard — which has grown to 485,000 men.

Millions for Rumania

Rumania and Greece were the first British allies to get credits under a new measure introduced last week providing £50,000,000 (about $324,000,000) in addition to £10,000,000 (about $46,800,000) arranged for last February.

Rumania will get £5,500,000 (about $25,740,000) and Greece, £2,409,000 (about $11,000,000).

Informed quarters expected Poland would get the largest slice of the new credits, possibly £20,000,000 (about $93,600,000), and that Turkey also would get some.

Credits previously granted Turkey and Rumania made the total Britain has made available to her allies £81,000,000 ($379,000,000).

All four countries have received British and French pledges of aid in defense of their independence.

The cabinet considerd the protracted Moscow negotiations for Soviet Russia's participation in the British-French mutual assistance front and Ivan Mainsky, Soviet Ambassador to London had a long talk with foreign secretary, Lord Halifax. The ministers were said to have drafted new instructions to be sent to Sir William Seeds, British Ambassador to Moscow, on points raised in his latest report.

Foreigners Ordered To Leave Balzano

Rome, July 12. (AP)—Compulsory departure of all foreigners from their homes and vacation residences in Bolzano, Italy's frontier province bordering on Germany at the strategic Brenner pass, was in full swing today on order of premier Mussolini himself.

A communique issued today, three days after the first expulsions were ordered, stated that "political and military" reasons prompted the move in a fight against anti-Fascism. The communique disclosed that Il Duce had signed the order as minister of the interior.

The announcement said the action was taken in connection with the Ovra, Italy's black shirt organization for the suppression of anti-Fascism, because of "the activity of some elements from westhern nations resident in the province of Bolzano."

Cabinet Change Announced

At the same time the government announced a cabinet change which brings Count Dino Grandi, from the key post of Ambassador to Britain back to Rome to become minister of justice.

No amplication of the communique on the foreigners' expulsion was given in the press or elsewhere except for the statement of the authoritative Giornale D'Italia that the order resulted from "verification of the presence and activities of foreigners involved which do not reconcile themselves with the political and military necessities of the frontier territory."

Il Giornale said that "Great Britain has done much more," adding that Italy's action "does not signify total expulsion from Italy of foreign citizens forced to break off suddenly all their means of living and activity, but in most cases involves only the transfer of these citizens to other Italian regions not so near the frontier."

Elks Announce Awards at Their Convention at Kansas City

St. Louis, July 12 (AP) — The Elks today named Raymond J. Rimmer, 25, Austin, Tex., as the "nation's most valuable student" and gave him a cash scholarship of $600.

Awards are made annually on the basis of scholastic attainments, character, citizenship and extra-curricular activities.

Rimmer is a senior at the University of Texas and plans to study medicine.

Second prize of $400 went to Philip Craig, 18, Jacksonville, Fla.; third prize of $300 to Hugh Toole, 18, Wallace, Idaho, and fourth prize of $200 to Miss Irene Krantz, 18, Hackensack, N. J.

John F. Malley of Boston, chairman of the Elks Foundation which announced the winners on the third day of the order's national convention here, said students' records were so outstanding six additional scholarships of $150 each were given.

The winners: Jean Brehmer, Rutland, Vt.; Janice S. Ginsberg, Alexandria, La.; Jack Herring, Higgins, Tex.; William Knox, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.; Arthur B. Logan, Parkersburg, W. Va., and Henry A. Shull, Dallas, Texas.

The 7-man team from Elizabeth, N. J. won the ritualistic drill contest and a prize of $500.

Trapped Five Hours in Parachute, Rathbornes Soon Take Another Jump

opening of business today, which was delayed during repairs and tests, the cashier said four times the normal number of customers were waiting to jump.

The upturn was partly attributable to reduced prices on children's day.

"I really loved it," said Mrs. Rathborne when she landed. This trip was "on the house."

"Fine," replied one of the mechanics, "we'll give you another one."

"No, I'm not going up again," protested Mrs. Rathborne. "Please—I won't do it."

She insisted that the rescuing mechanics, William Gertis and Harry Mitchell, handle the controls for the ride she did take.

Guests of Mayor LaGuardia and the fair's president Grover Whalen at the Terrace Club, the Rathbornes were asked if they were frightened early this morning.

Thought About Will

"Would you have been scared?" Mrs. Rathborne shot back at the mayor. "I thought of an awful lot of things. I even remembered I'd made out no will."

Mrs. Rathborne gibed through most of the siege with frantic rescuers, police and thousands who gathered to see last night's impromptu show — surpassing, in suspense, at least, anything the fair has offered to date. But today, after a long sleep, she could recall none of her remarks.

"The worst part of it was the cold," she said, explaining that she was dressed for a warm evening rather than an endurance test over the chilling lake which lies beside the parachute tower.

"I expected every second might be our last. The seat swayed until my heart was in my mouth and it was a giddy sensation looking down on the crowds below."

All sorts of rescue and reviving equipment was assembled but not needed. Two attendants, including a veteran steeplejack, clambered over the steel structure to place the rescue paraphernalia and one rode to earth on top of the 'chute.

SIX OTHERS INJURED IN SERIES OF FIGHTS

Gov. Chandler Orders 300 Additional Guardsmen to Scene

Harlan, Ky., July 12 (AP) — Orders for "no picketing" tomorrow went out tonight in Harlan county, scene of a "pitched battle" earlier between national guardsmen and coal mine pickets.

Paul Reed, representative of the C.I.O. United Mine Workers of America said "runners" had been dispatched to notify all points where picket lines had been maintain or were to be formed not to organize tomorrow.

Harlan, Ky., July 12 (AP)—Blazing guns of pickets and national guardsmen killed a miner, seriously wounder a militia officer and felled four others today in the most serious of recent outbreaks of strife in "bloody Harlan's" soft coal fields. Two others were beaten.

While the troops were bringing to jail 250 men arrested at the scene of the clash between pickets and soldiers, a second outburst of bullets from the weapons of the soldiers wounder Hubert Green, a High Splint miner and his mother, Mrs. Kizzie Green, on a Harlan street.

Governor A. B. Chandler, at Ashland on a tour of the eastern Kentucky flood area where 71 were drowned last week, immediately ordered 300 additional national guardsmen here, doubling the strength of the troops. The governor's order included tanks and machine gun companies.

Miner Fatally Shot

Dock Caldwell, 31, miner of Wilson-Barger, a small coal mining camp, was shot fatally.

The injured:

Dan Noe, miner, shot in the abdomen.

Frank Laws, 39, miner of Crummies, struck on the head.

The Harlan hospital listed Hansberary, Noe and Bowman on the danger list.

Battle South of Harlan

The scene of the encounter between pickets and guardsmen was the Mahan-Ellison coal company mine at Catron's Creek, five miles southwest of Harlan. Only a few days ago an explosion was reported in the depths of the Ligget mine of the same company with a loss estimated by officials at $20,000.

Among those arrested at the mine by the soldiers were George Titler, secretary-treasurer of the Harlan district of the United Mine Workers (C. I. O.), and his wife. Major Fred Staples, commanding the guardsmen, said warrants would be issued for both charging them with being accessories to the shooting.

J. A. Dickinson, an official of the Hahan-Ellison company, one of the mines which have operated without a C. I. O. "union shop" contract since soldiers went on duty in the county May 14, described the shooting as a "pitched battle" between guardsmen and union miners on picket duty.

Senate Votes for $80,000,000 More To Help the Aged

But Declines to Approve $40 a Month Pension Plan

Washington, July 12. (AP)—The Senate accepted one proposal to spend an additional $80,000,000 of federal money for old age assistance today and then turned down a $40-every-month plan which would cost $500,000,000 a year.

Nearing the end of debate on house-approved amendments to the existing Social Security law, the chamber voted 43 to 35 for a plan by Senator Connally (D-Tex) which would require the government to pay two-thirds of pensions to the needy aged up to a mximum pension of $15 a month.

The government thus would put up $10 and the states $5. Above $15, the government would match state funds dollar for dollar up to a total maximum pension of $40. At present, the government matches all state funds 50-50 up to a maximum total pension of $30 a month.

(These pensions, which go to the needy, are distinct from the pensions to be paid later to millions under the contributory system of old age insurance.)

Republicans Opposed

The Connally proposal, estimated to cost $80,000,000 annually, drew widespread support from southern and western senators, but 18 of the Senate's 23 Republicans voted in opposition.

After the vote on the Connally amendment, the chamber rejected, 54 to 16 a proposal by Senator Lee (D-Okla), to provide a federal pension of $40 a month for all needy aged over 60. Chairman Harrison (D-Miss) said the social security board estimated the amendment would cost $500,000,000 the first year.

The amendment developed a hot exchange between Lee and Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) in which each accused th other "of paying lip service" to old persons.

Vandenberg Wants Facts

Vandenberg said he agreed that higher pensions were desirable but asked how Lee proposed to Fnance them. Lee snapped that Vandenberg merely wanted "to get in the record that he favors old age pensions without voting for them."

Senator Bilbo (D-Miss) promptly submitted another liberalization proposal which would provide $30 federal pensions to persons 65 and over.

Dr. James Smith Is Questioned By Grand Jury

Former President of L.S.U. Quizzed at Special Session

Baton Rouge, La., July 12. (AP)—Barring even its own stenographers, a special grand jury today quizzed Dr. James Monroe Smith for the first time since it started cutting into a financial snarl disclosed when he resigned the presidency of Louisiana State university.

An hour after its 40-minute session with the indicted doctor of philosophy, the jury subpoenaed Richard W. Leche, who quit the governorship a few hours after Smith resigned nearly three weeks ago.

Ordered to appear with Leche tomorrow morning were 19 other highly placed state political leaders, including several one-time aides to the late Huey P. Long, and all the university supervisors except attorney General David M. Ellison.

Although Ellison is working with the jury, even he was not present when the 12 jurors—and no one else—heard the tall educator's first official account of his role in the bizarre drama. Smith already has been indicted on a charge of embezzling $100,000 in school funds.

Shortly after Smith was returned to his cell in the court house above the jury room, the body asked the East Baton Rouge parish police jury (county commissioners) for $5,000 to broaden its inquiry.

In transmitting this request, Judge Charles A. Holcombe expressed hope there would be early indictments in addition to those already voted against Smith and four associates, including his wife.

AFL Unions Urge Prevailing Wage Rates Under WPA

ticipated in strikes against the WPA wage regulations be restored to their jobs, Green promised that he would discuss this with the president.

Most members of the House Appropriations Committee which drafted the new relief law, showed little inclination to grant the AFL request.

One of them, Rep. Taber (R-NY) told reporters:

"The 130-hour month provision against which the workers are striking was proposed by the administration and so far the administration has not requested any change in the language of the law."

In several sections of the country, discharge notices went out to striking WPA workers in accord with the order of Col. F. C. Harrington, the WPA commissioner, that those away from work five consecutive working days or longer be dismissed.

In Minnesota, where a policeman died earlier this week following a beating while protecting a non-striker, officials estimated 10,000 such notices had been sent out.

The acting WPA administrator in New York, Major Edmond H. Leavey, announced that 4,784 dismissal slips had been mailed to construction workers absent from their jobs since last Wednesday.

Strike Not Called Off

AFL union leaders from Pennsylvania, attending the Washington conference, told reporters they had no intention of calling off a scheduled state-wide strike of building trades union members employed on the WPA. The strike has been voted by the state buildings trades council, to begin at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

In New Jersey, leaders of AFL unions asked the 15,000 to 20,000 skilled workers affected by the new wage regulations to strike, and the CIO gave support to strikers. The state relief head advised municipalities that the state government would share no part of the cost of relief to those quitting WPA jobs.

About 1,500 AFL members were on strike at Milwaukee, Wis., but other members of federation unions returned to projects there to vote on the question of continuing the strike.

Officials of AFL unions in New York City claimed every project in the city was paralyzed by the walkout but WPA officials disputed their estimates of the number involved. The walkout was spreading upstate late yesterday. In Rochester, 795 persons were discharged for being away from work five days and 50-year-old John Connolly was promoted because, an official said, he worked alone for two days while 300 workers stood nearby and picketed him.

Harrington Discusses New WPA Wage Scales

Chicago, July 12 (AP)—Col. F. C. Harrington, commissioner of the Works Projects Administration, reported today the wages of WPA workers in the north and west would be reduced while those in the south would be increased.

Ignoring widespread strikes and a picket line outside his hotel, Harrington and state directors of the federal agency considered plans for enforcing the new relief law, including revisions in the pay scales.

The WPA chief stated at a press conference that the legislative provision for a readjustment in the geographical differentials of pay would mean that "northern and western wages will come down and southern wages will go up." He added:

"It's obvious that we can't raise low wages and leave the high wages where they are."

He explained that unskilled labor in New York city earned $60.50 a month, the highest in the nation and considerably above the national average of $52.20, while in certain southern states the workmen received as little as $26.

Harrington did not estimate how many would be affected by the contemplated wage changes or indicate how large they would be.

However, a tentative estimation was that more than 1,000,000 workers in 30 northern, eastern and western states would take a cut when the new scales go into effect next Sept. 1.

Harrington announced 12,000 of the 32,000 WPA administrative employes would be laid off in a retrenchment move and asserted he also aimed to reduce the WPA rolls gradually to 1,500,000 by June 1, 1940.

He figured the provision for a 30-day furlough for all those who have been on the rolls for 18 months would affect 650,000 if all persons eligible for the temporary dismissal were removed by Sept. 1.

Former Policeman And 'Hex' Slayer Refused Paroles

Baltimore, July 12. (AP)—A former policeman, the killer of a policeman, and a "hex" slayer were refused paroles today.

Probation Director Herman M. Moser said Former State Policeman John E. Wheeler, serving a 2½ year term for conspiracy, was "like a shepherd dog that killed sheep" because he broke the law he was supposed to enforce. Moser pointed out paroles had been refused to another policeman and a garage owner convicted with him of extorting money from motorists by ordering them to have repairs made at the garage.

Shea Refused Parole

Moser refused George K. Shea's parols application because he said Shea had been convicted twice before in Pennsylvania for forgery. Shea is serving a four-year manslaughter term for the death of Policeman Harold Hanley, killed when he attempted to question Shea.

Shea drove off with the policeman clinging to the running board. He was thrown off and killed when the car rounded a corner.

A parole was refused to Columbus Diggs because the lawyer who defended th negro said he did not think the prisoner had served enough time. Diggs was sentenced in 1924 to life imprisonment for the fatal shooting of Hattie Crowley. He said he killed the woman because she told him she "put a spell" on him. Moser said J. CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

HALF AN HOUR after the dismissal of the class in child education, Sarah Anne stood by her car, alone, watching shadows become confused as the wind blew harder across the campus. In her hand she clutched a check for twenty-six dollars. It was the amount of the tuition of the night school course.

The instructor had been kind in a smooth, mechanical manner. He knew that she would not care to attend the remaining sessions of the class. Naturally she would hesitate to ask for a refund, but the college was most happy to reimburse her in full.

She had heard a husky voice, oddly like her own, murmur: "Oh, thank you! People are so kind." Then she was alone, under the trees.

She could see the road stretching out before her as she followed it home. But it did not really lead home. Home was a place of happiness, laughter, friends. No, that path went on to greater loneliness. To something called aloneness.

But even in her misery she was glad that Bob Ransom was going to marry Corrinne. They were so young, but maybe this was wise. Love could come when you were young or it could wait until you were old. Her grandmother had told her often of a great grandmother who had loved at 17, left her home and flower garden in New England, and crossed the mountains with a youth whom she had chosen against the whole world. They had sat by the fire at night, watching the smoke from the home of future days going spiralward to the tops of the tallest trees. They had known that they would find Canaan if the wagon wheels held. But they had not been afraid. They had each other.

So it was better that Corrinne had Bob as she hunted for another Eden. Her father and mother would have been more lost than they were if they did not have each other. And Judy— It was then that she thought of Judy's old friendship with Bing Wells and the possibility that her friend might be involved in this unhappy drama.

Everyone knew that Bing had been an amusing escort for Judy. In a sense Judy was in this mess even more than she and Corrinne. Only Judy was the daughter of an influential, wealthy man, and she and Corrinne were the children of a preacher, and the world drew a heavy line between the two.

Yet the story of the friendship between Judy and Bing did get out. Sarah Anne learned about it from Jack.

He stopped at the parsonage one evening, a day or two after the college class incident, and honked the horn of his new roadster. Eventually Sarah Anne went out to the curb. His eyes were narrowed, more black than blue.

"Get a coat," he said tersely. "Want to drive out to the airport?"

"Will you take me up?" she asked impulsively. After all, in the clouds you could look down on trouble. Maybe the tangled threads, viewed from afar, would not seem to be of such importance.

"Seen the parachute tower at the field?" he asked.

"I haven't been to the field for a long time. I haven't been thinking much about it lately."

"Poor kid." His hand rested on hers for a moment. "It's a rotten deal."

"Don't, please. I might cry and it's one of the things I've made up my mind never again to do."

"I don't like tears, so we'll talk about something like salted peanuts. There's a popcorn stand." He pulled up and honked his horn until the curb attendant came. Then he ordered two bags of peanuts and two boxes of hot, buttered popcorn.

He began to talk about the parachute tower. "There aren't many in the country. Ours is about 150 feet high. There are two ways of making a jump. One with a regular parachute and one in a chair when you're shoved into space. This is to be a drawing card. A lot of jumpers and flyers can test their nerve here."

At the moment the parachute tower was only an aviation gadget to Sarah Anne. She did not suspect how soon it was to be important.

Jack hunted up a mechanic and asked him to get a plane ready for a brief hop. Sarah Anne, standing alone at the side of the apron, was aware of a slim, tall figure in white who came across the field.

"Judy!" she gasped. "Now we can all go up. Jack took pity on me tonight."

Judy didn't smile, but her hand was warm and firm as it clasped Sarah Anne's. "Not tonight. Forget you saw me, won't you. I want to fly a while and think about things."

"Of course." Even then Sarah Anne was sure that Judy merely wanted to do some silent checking up.

But when she was sitting in back of Jack, flying northward, she caught sight of Judy's plane, going too fast. Jack spied it at the same time. He picked up the speaking tube.

"Sarah Anne, is that Judith's ship?" He waited. "You were near when the plane took off."

"Yes, Jack. She wanted to think about things—she knew Bing because he worked for her father and she probably hates to have faith misplaced as badly as Corrinne and I did."

Jack's voice came back swiftly. "Don't try to ease the blunt of it, Sarah Anne. She liked the guy, didn't she? It's all over town. And she didn't deny it when I questioned her. She could have ended the whole matter, washed it up, by a word or two. And she wouldn't."

The plane went winging on, closer and closer to the stars. And Sarah Anne, with the night wind wild against her face, thought of Judy, brave and tall and amber-golden, refusing to stoop to say that she had disliked Bing, when for a little while she had not. She thought, too, of Jack, not understanding, hunting desperately for a sign that he couldn't find.

Even in the sky the trouble rode. Maybe one never escaped anything, not on the peaks or in the lowest valleys.

"You don't understand, Jack. Judy's loyal and isn't telling you the truth. She never cared about Bing—she loves you."

But the man's pride was hurt. His armor, so gay and shining and courageous, had been wounded. He would not accept explanations.

The web was drawing closer and closer. It was reaching out to include so many people. And now the stars were slipping down the sky, and the wind was coming higher and faster. The plane swayed unevenly and Jack turned it around and started home.

Far beyond Judy swung her ship around, too. But she did not come down until she thought that Jack's plane was stored away for the night. She did not know that he had drawn Sarah Anne into the shadow of the hanger, where they watched until she was safe.

If she had, her face might not have been so white, her eyes so bright and tearless, as she climbed into her car to start back to town.

"We need each other again," Sarah Anne whispered to herself. "Life's like a recurring rhythm. The beat comes back."

She looked again at Jack's profile. It was lean, strong, determined, a little hard tonight. And hurt. It reminded her of Bob Kennedy's. They were much alike, these two. It was just that Bob had a little more humor, a little more careless gaiety behind which he concealed the steel.

The thought of Bob made her heart plunge, just as though she were in a plane diving down a cloud bank. Bob had not believed her. He had taken her for a gay sort of person without stability, the type of person she didn't know how to be, and suddenly wanted to be.

"Funny how I turn to you in time of trouble," Jack was saying. "Why do I do it? Unless—I need you."

"I'm a tube of balm for bruises," she managed to answer. "I'll stick around until you're well. You and Judy will make it up."

He didn't answer. He was stopping the car, waving at someone on the sidewalk. Sarah Anne looked, too. She saw Corrinne and the two Roberts—Robert Ransom and Bob Kennedy.

Relaxing Reduces Blood Pressure

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

For some years, Dr. Edmund Jacobson, of Chicago, has been advocating the value of relaxation. His little book, "You Must Relax," has helped a great many nervous people. Now he advocates it for high blood pressure.

Whatever else may be said for or against the treatment, certainly the gospel of relaxation is one which seems to fit into the needs of our present world.

So far as relaxation is applied to high blood pressure, we can start with the certainty that blood pressure varies directly with the size and spasm of certain of the blood vessels. Thus, if all the large arteries in the abdomen suddenly narrow their size, the blood pressure will have to go up. It would be the same principle with a water faucet. Assuming that the water pressure at the source is the same, if you put a smaller tube on the faucet, the water will come out of that tube with more force.

Exercise One Cause

One of the things that cause the blood vessels to contract and thus raise blood pressure is exercise, or the contraction of muscles. A brief bit of fairly strenuous exercise will raise blood pressure. Any doctor knows that a patient's pressure is higher when he first walks into the office than it will be a little later. When a patient is put in a hospital, the pressure is higher the first few days than on subsequent days, especially if the patient stays in bed. That the blood pressure is lowered in sleep is a common observation.

In fact, about the only sure-fire way to lower blood pressure is to put the patient at rest. Therefore, the relaxation treatment would seem to be sensible.

To relax, it is not necessary to lie down. Relaxation in the sitting position for half an hour was seen to reduce the blood pressure 24 points in one person under observation.

In Quiet Room

It is best, however, to have the patient lie down in a quiet room free from disturbing factors. The couch is enclosed to form this. He is told to relax all his groups of skeletal muscles, one after the other. First the frown on his forehead is relaxed, then the face, then the neck muscles. Then the arms and chest and back, and then the legs. The blood pressure is taken automatically every few minutes.

With normal subjects there is an initial drop in pressure which reaches its height in about 30 minutes; it consists in a fall of 10 to 15 points.

It frequently takes some training and patience to teach a patient to relax. And some, in fact, of nervous temperament never learn to do it completely. In those who can learn and have high blood pressure normally, the results are almost universally good. The reduction in pressure stays down moderately well if the patient refrains from excitement and exertion.

The reported cases would confirm the belief that everyone has long had, that rest is the only thing calculated to treat high blood pressure sensibly. While the word "cure" cannot be scientifically used in connection with increased blood pressure, proper relaxation certainly lengthens life and makes for comfort.

It should be augmented by the use of a mild diet, rich in vitamins, especially fresh fruit vitamins. The diet should also include buttermilk, several glasses a day.

Soft draped bulkiness of shoulder, high and flattering.

He began to talk about the parachute tower. "There aren't many in the country. Ours is about 150 feet high. There are two ways of making a jump. Relaxing Reduces Blood Pressure

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

For some years, Dr. Edmund Jacobson, of Chicago, has been advocating the value of relaxation. His little book, "You Must Relax," has helped a great many nervous people. Now he advocates it for high blood pressure.

Whatever else may be said for or against the treatment, certainly the gospel of relaxation is one which seems to fit into the needs of our present world.

So far as relaxation is applied to high blood pressure, we can start with the certainty that blood pressure varies directly with the size and spasm of certain of the blood vessels. Thus, if all the large arteries in the abdomen suddenly narrow their size, the blood pressure will have to go up. It would be the same principle with a water faucet. Assuming that the water pressure at the source is the same, if you put a smaller tube on the faucet, the water will come out of that tube with more force.

Exercise One Cause

One of the things that cause the blood vessels to contract and thus raise blood pressure is exercise, or the contraction of muscles. A brief bit of fairly strenuous exercise will raise blood pressure. Any doctor knows that a patient's pressure is higher when he first walks into the office than it will be a little later. When a patient is put in a hospital, the pressure is higher the first few days than on subsequent days, especially if the patient stays in bed. That the blood pressure is lowered in sleep is a common observation.

In fact, about the only sure-fire way to lower blood pressure is to put the patient at rest. Therefore, the relaxation treatment would seem to be sensible.

To relax, it is not necessary to lie down. Relaxation in the sitting position for half an hour was seen to reduce the blood pressure 24 points in one person under observation.

In Quiet Room

It is best, however, to have the patient lie down in a quiet room free from disturbing factors. The couch is enclosed to form this. He is told to relax all his groups of skeletal muscles, one after the other. First the frown on his forehead is relaxed, then the face, then the neck muscles. Then the arms and chest and back, and then the legs. The blood pressure is taken automatically every few minutes.

With normal subjects there is an initial drop in pressure which reaches its height in about 30 minutes; it consists in a fall of 10 to 15 points.

It frequently takes some training and patience to teach a patient to relax. And some, in fact, of nervous temperament never learn to do it completely. In those who can learn and have high blood pressure normally, the results are almost universally good. The reduction in pressure stays down moderately well if the patient refrains from excitement and exertion.

The reported cases would confirm the belief that everyone has long had, that rest is the only thing calculated to treat high blood pressure sensibly. While the word "cure" cannot be scientifically used in connection with increased blood pressure, proper relaxation certainly lengthens life and makes for comfort.

It should be augmented by the use of a mild diet, rich in vitamins, especially fresh fruit vitamins. The diet should also include buttermilk, several glasses a day.

Broken-Down Pump

PROSAIC as are bank deposit statistics, they nevertheless tell a vivid and pointed story of how New Deal pump-priming efforts have not only worn out the pump-handle but have broken down the pump itself.

They show that the reckless spending of billions has lifted consumer purchasing power temporarily when each successive spending spree was in full swing, but in the long run has intensified, instead of solved, the problem of idle men and idle money.

When government funds are spent to build a park, for instance, the chief stimulus to purchasing power is in the wages paid to labor. When the park is completed, wages are paid only to caretakers.

The same amount of private capital spent to build a factory not only results in wage payments during actual construction but steady wage payments to workers after the plant has been completed and put into productive operation.

Col. Leonard B. Ayres, the well-known economic analyst, points out that demand deposits in the banks fell from 1929 to 1933 and since then have recovered until today they are fifty per cent greater than they were in the prosperity year of 1929, exclusive of government deposits.

"They have been rapidly mounting," he continues, "during the years in which the government has been making its huge disbursements for relief and recovery, and the money largely originated in those expenditures and in some degree from gold imports.

"Great expenditures, designed to increase consumer purchasing power, have been received and spent by consumers, passed into the hands of business men, and then piled up in the banks as demand deposits, without producing important increases in business activity."

Thus, the net result of the squandering of billions by the New Deal has been to impose a crushing burden upon the taxpayers, to add to the idle funds which make idle men and to bring ever nearer the danger of uncontrollable inflation.

Wants One-Man Control

President Roosevelt's opposition to control of WPA by a bi-partisan board is in line with his oft-expressed ideas on the organization of government.

He is against boards and commissions on grounds of efficiency, believing that all government power not reserved by the constitution to the courts and by Congress to itself should be exercised by the president. His government reorganization bill would have carried this principle to the point of entrusting to the president the ICC's control over freight rates, the FCC's control over wire and radio communication, and that of various other agencies.

The contrary view holds, as in the past, that certain powers are best exercised by boards responsible to Congress. These powers are in general those that are semi-judicial in nature or else that simply are too readily capable of discriminatory use for partisan or other undesirable purposes. The control over freight rates, which holds the power of economic death over particular states, regions and industries, is an example. So is the power over communications, which in theory at least might be exercised in a way that would infringe, quite legally but still effectively, the freedom of speech and press.

The power to disburse some $2,000,000,000 annually for relief involves both the possibility of discrimination and the use of semi-judicial judgment. From the beginning the federal relief administrators have sat as judges on the claims of the states as to their relative capacities for bearing a share of the relief burden. There have been many complaints about their decisions, as well as on the score of political abuses.

The remedy of making WPA amenable to a bi-partisan board conceivably might entail some sacrifice of efficiency, although it is unbelievable. No doubt it would promote efficiency and economy through greater care and deliberation in use of the funds. Administrative detail still would be handled by an administrator, the only difference being that he would report to the board instead of to the president or a cabinet officer.

In any case, a slight loss of efficiency would seem of minor importance, compared to the weighty considerations favoring board-control of these vast relief expenditures. The president appears overly rash in seeking and defending executive powers, which he himself has said could be abused disastrously by any unscrupulous occupant of the office.

Quite Different Arguments

GREAT BRITAIN will send some of its strongest and most modern air fighting squadrons to France to participate in a joint demonstration with French fliers over Paris on Bastille day, July 14. This display, according to a London dispatch, is designed "to show the French and British peoples and their allies the strength of the British and French air forces, and at the same time impress Germany and Italy with the unity of the British-French armed forces by an unparalleled peacetime display."

Great Britain is preparing, furthermore, to make available to its continental allies approximately $500,000,000 in credits for war supplies.

Well, these seem to be arguments of the type which Hitler understands. Unquestionably Der Fuehrer will be more impressed by such demonstrations than by the rather academic debate going on in London over just what Great Britain is pledged to, or not pledged to, in the matter of Danzig.

The present state of public opinion in Britain seems to disprove the theory that the British are "middle-of-the-roaders." Having wearied of the "appeasement" side of the road, many Britons seem determined to take an extreme position on the other side. Only thus can one explain the equanimity with which British public opinion contemplates the Chamberlain government's apparent willingness to guarantee the territorial integrity of Soviet Russia and all the states bordering that nation of 170,000,000, without obtaining reciprocal guarantees of Russian help in event of war breaking out in Western Europe.

Canine Days

ASK the man on the street, or the boy with a dog or the woman almanac addict why they call them the dog days and the usual reply is that dogs are apt to go mad at this season of the year. Ask the historian, the bibliophile, the scholar or the astronomer and you will learn that the phrase originated with the ancients and that the superstition about mad dogs and human disorders during the sultry days is of astronomical origin.

Hot weather is good for neither man nor beast, a fact known to the ancients who, as was their wont, sought an explanation in the stars. They found it in Sirius, the dog star, which rose just before the sun. Sirius had cast a malignant spell upon the earth.

Sirius was called Canicula by the Romans, but the superstition survived in the Roman dies caniculares, or dog days, which were reckoned to be forty in number—twenty before and twenty after the heliacal rising of the star. Sirius or Canicula staged its heliacal rising on July 23 for the Romans.

It would still be possible for the superstitious to blame poor Sirius, who as far as we know bites not nor barks, for the summer ailments of man and dog, if the unoffending star had not postponed its heliacal rising until the latter part of August for this age. It is gradually occurring later in the year and will eventually place the dog days in mid-winter.

Cheap Trick

PAUL V. McNUTT, who has had a presidential ticket bee buzzing about his head for a long time, being content to run for the Democratic nomination for president if Roosevelt doesn't run, or for the vice presidency if he does, is accused of resorting to one of the lowest forms of publicity tricks.

McNutt said in Washington he had been offered appointment to the presidency of Ohio State University but that he would not accept the position because he had decided to accept appointment as Federal Security Administrator. But now the chairman of the university's board of trustees declares that this is all hooey, that the post had never been offered him and that he or his friends have been booming him for the position merely as an effort to gain attention.

An old trick, but a cheap one.

Plain Truth

NUMBERED among the multitude of business groups and organizations throughout the country that are dissatisfied with the general policies of the national administration is the Appalachian Hardwood Manufacturers' Association, which has been holding its annual convention at Cincinnati.

"About all we get from Washington these days is 'troubles'," President W. L. Boyd, of Tazewell, Va., told the delegates.

And that is the plain truth.

Irascible Ickes continues to dislike the way newspapers are conducted in this country. He objects to a columnist's hint that he is for Roosevelt for a third term because this would guarantee the continuation of Ickes on the payroll. Honest Harold seems to be continuously irked because New Deal pooh-bahs cannot control what the newspapers print.

Hitler says Germany needs a bigger living room. But the Germans, who are on reduced diets due to preparation for war, probably would much prefer a bigger and better kitchen.

The whole family regards papa as Santa Claus. Maybe it's because he's usually the one who's left holding the bag.

We Live Three Lives

By MARSHALL MASLIN

How often have you said: "I wasn't myself when I did that?"

How often have you excused yourself in just that way for a sin that shames you in a quieter moment?

Marshall Maslin

But which Is your real self? What IS the self you gladly admit is yours? Are you one person, or are you two individuals—antagonists forever? Or are you three?

You are tired—and you are peevish.

Your head aches—and you quarrel with those you love.

You have failed in something—and that meaner, envious self takes control.

Even your friends excuse you. They say: "He isn't himself. Pay no attention to him. He'll be sorry."

So we believe, and it is surely true that all of us live two lives and one—the better—is our own self and the other is a base metal that will not pass as the coin of humanity.

Cynics say that the self that comes to the surface when a man is irritated or disturbed is that man's true self. But the rest of us do not believe that. Or if that mean self occasionally is the one we really are—then let it pass, for the hypocrisy that conceals the worse side of ourselves is a fair sort of double-dealing, indeed, and not to be despised.

We live at least three lives, really. There is this daily external life in which we dodge automobiles and talk casually on a hundred subjects. There is the peevish life that comes to the surface when we are annoyed—the ones our friends excuse. And far beneath is a deeply buried life like a stream that almost never comes to the light, in which we rarely bathe, to which we almost never come. But Matthew Arnold wrote that

> ". . . often, in the din of strife
> There rises an unspeakable desire.
> After the knowledge of our buried life;
> A thirst to spend our fire and restless force
> In tracking out our true, original course;
> A longing to inquire
> Into the mystery of the heart which beats
> So wild, so deep in us."

Only occasionally is the bolt shot back somewhere in our breasts and we are given leave to live that calm and perfect existence that is secretly ours. But that is the life toward which most men and women blindly, always stumble.

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

Heartening news comes out of Elyria, Ohio. One man, at least, has finally quit talking about doing something for the long-suffering Middle Class, and is really moving into action. And since the man is the prodigious Walter B. Pitkin, the millions of in-between Americans who have long lacked a spokesman may hope shortly to hear loud, impressive shouts.

Edwin C. Hill

Lecturing in Elyria the other day, on a short trot from his home base at Columbia university, Author-Farmer-Professor-Confessor Pitkin announced that he had begun spade-work for a League of the Middle Class. The league will be "non-political, non-sectarian, non commercial." It will seek to arouse the Middle Class to action for its own political and economic benefit and "to correct evils" by pointing public opinion in the right direction.

* * *

May Do More

If Author-Farmer-Professor-Confessor Pitkin doesn't lose interest, the League is just about sure to do all these things. It may do a lot more, for the organizer is one of the few men in the world who seldom miss the bull's eye. Untiring little Arnold Bennett was a second. World-embracing H. G. Wells is a third. Before them was Leonardo Da Vinci. Alongside any of the four a one-armed paperhanger with the hives would seem to be just a man taking a rest cure. And especialy alongside Pitkin.

He has written books enough to start a library; he has run a farm; he has taught four foreign languages, economics, psychology, aesthetics, philosophy, the logic of mathematics and journalism; he has been tutor, printer, junkman, peddler, factory hand ,cook, cattle-boss, and a crack high jumper in his college days. Incidentally, he has made a pile of money, a lot of it from his best-seller "Life Begins at Forty."

* * *

Is Well Informed

Past sixty now, he has far too much hair for a man whose brain has traveled in high so long. His smile is quick and easy-going and his so-so clothes are unfashionable miles short of what the successful man usually wears. He wouldn't get a look alongside Grover Whalen. It is only when he begins to talk that he lives up to his advance notices. He can talk on any subject under the sun. He knows more than a college senior, more than a victorious politician.

Once, just to check up, a doubting friend picked one hundred words, hit-or-miss, out of a dictionary. Pitkin defined ninety-nine. Still hit-or-miss, the friend chose thirty subjects from an encyclopedia. Pitkin knew something about twenty-five, and a lot about eighteen.

* * *

Sticks to Schedule

He builds up his store of knowledge and his record of performance by sticking tight to the kind of work schedule all of us would stick to if we had his gumption. Before he writes a book he plans it out in detail. Then the writing bangs along at four thousand words or so a day. (And he never revises.) Before he starts any piece of work he plans that too.

If Mr. Pitkin can instill a fraction of his tremendous energy into the Middle Class, the country ought to begin to feel the power of his League. That will admit no racketeers, he says, however high their station. He wants just the Common People. Perhaps, like Abe Lincoln, he remembers how many of them God made.—Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Johnson Act Is Saving Us Money

From the Annapolis Evening Capital

There was a time when the $12,000,000,000 owed the United States by foreign governments was a source of irritation to Americans. Now we are able to view this delinquency, substantial though it may be, rather pilosophically .

The experience with England whose back was to the wall; with France, bled white by four years of slaughter; with Belgium poised perilously close to destruction; with Poland which owes its existence as a nation to Woodrow Wilson, and with the rest of the debtor nations, has of course been disillusioning.

There was reason to expect that lands rescued from oblivion would manifest something resembling honor and gratitude. But in this respect we were somewhat naive. Our experience has been expensive, but also enlightening.

By reason of the lesson learned we now have on our statutes the Johnson act, Which prohibits loans to governments that have failed in the past to meet their obligations. Through this act we are saved additional losses and also are guarded against entangling alliances that might draw the country into War.

By reason of these circumstances, Americans are but mildly interested in the revival in England of the movement for the "settlement" of the field.. The box is by no means inconsequential. Still, it has its complications.

PROMISES NEW PLANE

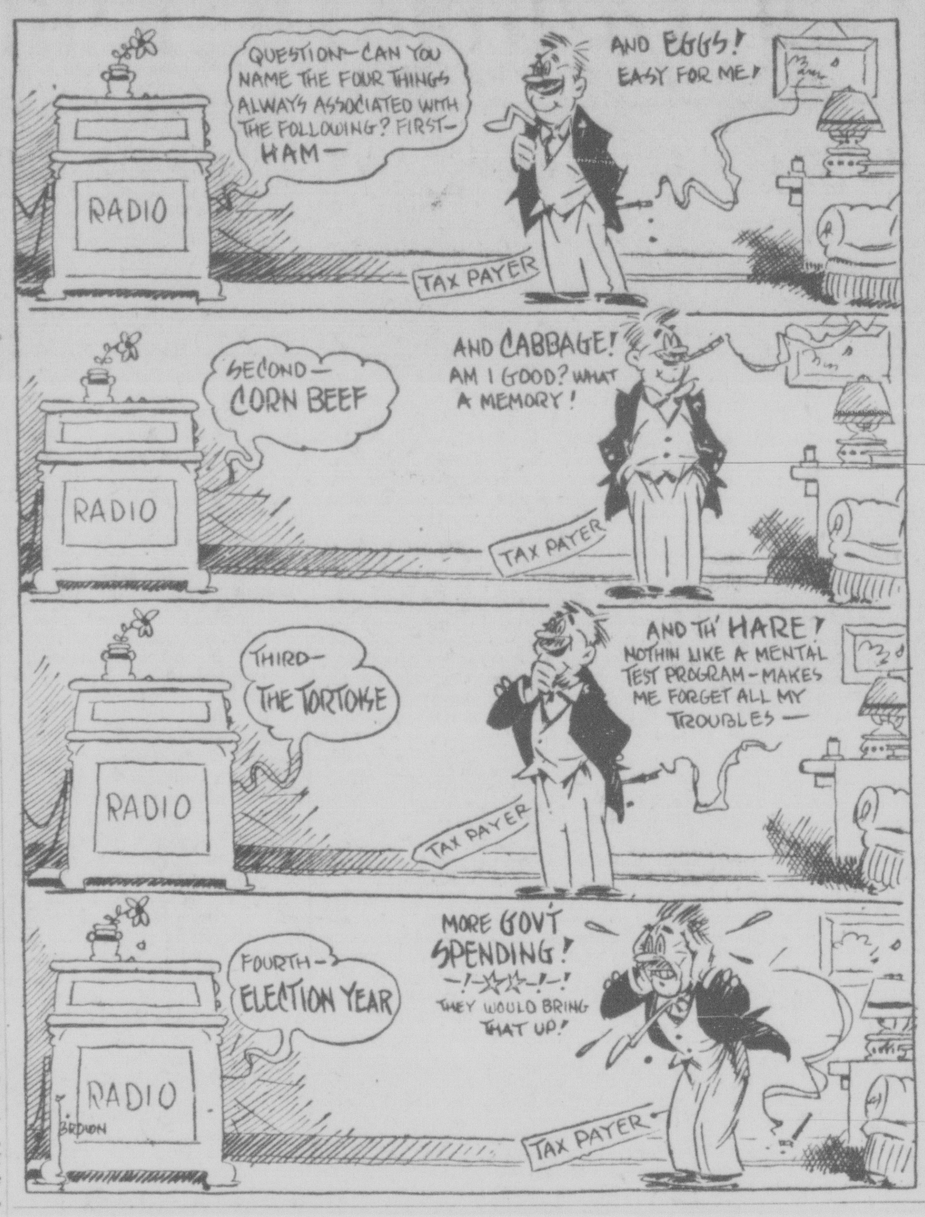
SPOILING HIS EVENING



Poor Judgment of Senator Guffey Is Quite a Headache for New Dealers

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Senator Joseph F. Guffey of Pennsylvania is a good bit of a headache to some of his fellow New Dealers. They don't admit it out loud, but they're more or less audible through keyholes on Capitol Hill. Executive folk and party managers whisper about it, too.

Senator Guffey

Not that the senator isn't a rip-snorting New Dealer himself. Other New Dealers are unanimous that his heart's 100 per cent all right. It's his judgment that they find fault with. He says things that they consider indiscreet. They're afraid that anti-New Dealers will quote him to the New Dealer's disadvantage. If so they can't very well repudiate his utterances, because he's so conspicuously on their side.

What's set them especially jittery of late was the speech the Pennsylvanian made the other day in favor of a Rooseveltian third term. In itself his third-term declaration was o. k. That was in line with a lot of New Deal sentiment. It was the senator's threat of the dire consequences he predicts if the present White House tenant doesn't get four years more that upsets New Dealerism.

Dictatorship Cry

In the event of a Rooseveltian renomination next year "F. D.'s" supporters are quite aware that his opponents will set up a dictatorship cry. Their policy naturally will be to pooh-pooh this suggestion.

Senator Guffey, however, warns that we'll have a third term—or else, in effect, a revolution. "There'll be," he says, "an upheaval which will sweep away all politicians and all big business."

Quite a few New Dealers don't like this hint, coming from one of themselves. They interpret it as implying that we have our choice between a third term and totalitarianism—and they suspect that the public will regard the two as amounting to about the same thing.

"O. K." as to Senator Glass

They wouldn't have cared if Senator Glass, for instance, had said that a third term would be equivalent to totalitarianism, They'd have answered, "Phooey!"

But they can't answer "Phooey!" when one of their own crowd forecasts a third term or revolution.

In short, the third termers and New Dealers ardently wish that Senator Guffey had kept his trap shut or use it more judiciously, anyway.

Guffey, I may say, is regarded in New Deal circles as a friend, but not as an asset—they almost would rather have him in the opposition camp. Well intentioned but politically "bugs."

Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, just back from our Philippine commissionership, as a presidential possibility is making an unexpectedly good impression. He isn't a PROBABILITY but he's better than might have been expected.

McNutt labors under the handicap of being an exceptionally handsome man. That's no good political advertisement.

Promoted Socially

He was here a year or two ago and was promoted socially—at cocktail parties and that kind of thing. It made him somewhat ridiculous. His beauty and his cocktails! He's got that record to live down.

Nevertheless it now appears that he was a mighty good Philippine commissioner.

He seems to know more about the Orient than any other American.

The Filipinos evidently love him—and the Chinese. The Japanese?—no, of course not. He's too familiar with their game. But he's a Far Eastern expert. Some folk think that our problem is Pacific rather than Atlantic. McNutt is a dandy Pacific-ar.

"Mac" is a third term advocate. He wants to be nominated, but only secondarily to "F. D."

He's got his points. Maybe this country's understanding of Asia is more important than its understanding of Europe.

Going in the Other Direction

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

While Franklin Roosevelt has been justifying his policy of getting out of debt by getting deeper into it, and contending that when the national income reaches $80,000,000,000 the budget will automatically swing into balance, things have been going in the other direction. Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins has announced that in 1938 income had dropped to $64,000,000,000, or $16,000,000,00 short of his chief's goal and eleven per cent under the recovery high of 1937.

Now comes a statement that within twelve months the national income could be raised to $100,000,000 a year. This will be taken more seriously because Mr. Roosevelt does not make it. Author of the statement is Herbert Hoover, whose reputation for responsible utterance is considerably better than his successor's. The way to do it he says, is by "revising" the administration's program. Thus might public confidence be restored, with everybody back to workand a labor shortage in the offing. A condition prerequisite is "that the Republican party put up a sound program so that these 11,000,000 people can get back to work."

This, of course, is a highly optimistic forecast of possibilities. There is point, however, in the theory that American industry and enterprise have been so long tied down that they might leap suddenly forward if the throngs were loosed. This impetus might help to keep public opinion behind a Republican president in the difficult and unpleasant tasks which the vast mess that Mr. Roosevelt has made of things will entail in his successor.

Not Quite Practical

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

A Senate committee recommends profit sharing in industry as "essential to the ultimate maintenance of the capitalistic system". It argues that the workers' income "must be automatically related to the rise and fall of the price structure", and adds:

> "Blend the wage scale with a profit sharing differential and the same human being who was previously concentrating his attention on wages, and constantly fighting for higher wages, will discard the combative spirit and move in a cooperative direction—his self-preservation instinct previously centered only on a flat wage scale will cease."

This is, it would seem to The Intelligencer, over-simplification of a very complex problem. The principle of profit-sharing is very generally approved. But its application in any such blanket form as here indicated raises a great many practical difficulties.

To begin with, it should be recognized that the wage system is a profit-sharing system. Imperfect it may be and undoubtedly is. But a wage is roughly intended to represent the employe's contribution to the enterprise. In other words, if the result is wrong, it is the application rather than the principle that is at fault.

Then, there is the practical question of applying a straight-out profit-sharing plan in the sense evidently intended by the Senate committee. If the employe's income goes up as the profits of the concern employing him rise, it must come down as those profits dwindle. But there is a point at which the average worker cannot continue to surrender earnings. What happens to the profit-sharing system then?

What it all boils down to, as this newspaper views it, is that the wage system, fairly and intelligently applied, represents the most practicable medium of dividing the earnings of industry among the owner of a business and those he employs. It might be well to supplement it in appropriate cases, but it must remain the basis of general employe participation.

Hourly Wage Not Necessary in WPA

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, D. C., July 12—The wide-spread strike of skilled workers in W.P.A. against a new statuatory requirement that they work 130 hours for their "security salary" is nothing new.

HUGH JOHNSON

In establishing W.P.A. in New York City, this was the first problem with which I had to deal. The principal argument of skilled labor in the construction trades is this: "If we accept less than the 'prevailing' union hourly rate in working for WPA, private contractors will use this concession to beat down our hourly rates on non-governmental construction. We have struggled and fought and suffered for years for this security. We cannot endanger it."

If that were true, it would be a powerful argument. Workers in the building trades are in a very different case from workers in almost every other industry. When I say, "I work for Henry Ford at $1.00 an hour"—that doesn't mean I get $160.00 a month for 12 months in the year. The employment is seasonal. I may work only six months—or, for a yearly average of $80.00 a month for that employment.

* * *

Not Nearly So Good

That is bad enough. But if I am a carpenter or a bricklayer in New York City, charging a union rate, let us say of $14.00 for an eight hour day, it sounds like the life of Reilly. As a matter of fact, it is not nearly so good as the skilled mechanic's deal with Henry Ford. Why? Because I have no fixed job. There is no continuous employment and no continuing employer in the construction industry. It is a succession of separate jobs with idleness and no pay in between.

Fourteen dollars a day—yes, but it now usually amounts to less than $600 a year. So, when I started WPA in New York City, I tried to sell the idea of a "security" salary for skilled trades at continuous guaranteed employment for $93.00 a month, or just over $1,100 a year. It was more than the average earnings of skilled men for many years except for a few boom building interludes.

* * *

Strike a Bust

On the argument now made that it would tend to break down their hourly rates with private contractors, they decided on a city-wide strike. Two hundred twenty-two thousand jobs were threatened. I went on the radio and talked these and home economies to the strikers' mommas,—although they asked me not to do that. The mommas spoke up and the strike was a bust.

But the American Federation of Labor was bringing strong pressure to bear on Washington and the policy of the "security salary" was suddenly changed. We cut down the hours of labor per month until the "security" salary of $93.00 could be earned at the "prevailing" hourly rate—sometimes to as low as forty-eight hours or 6 days work a month!

* * *

Unnecessary in Relief

A high hourly rate to make spotty employment liveable is absolutely necessary with private contractors. But is is wholly unnecessary in guaranteed continuous employment on governmental WPA relief. There is no danger of the latter breaking down the former because the two deals are as different as leasing some city blocks one day for a circus or by the year for a building operation—or the daily rate for a hotel room compared with a six months lease.

There is another element of unfairness in skilled workers striking to maintain their right to much higher pay for forty hours than unskilled labor gets for 130 hours. Twenty thousand "skills" striking can paralyze construction and throw 150,000 unskilled out of work. It is a strike against the poor, against the government, against relief, and against their fellow workers. WPA Administrator Harrington is absolutely right in his position and if either Congress or this administration is bulldozed in this unwarranted strike, we have lost both fortitude and fairness in our governmental dealing with the labor problem.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Something To Ponder

By Senator Alva B. Adams, Democrat, of Colorado

In my judgment, two things are essential to economic recovery in the United States. The first is confidence in the soundness and just purposes of our government and in the economic future of our country. Until we have in the minds of the American people a condition of confidence in the soundness and just purposes of our country, we shall have no recovery. The second essential is the establishment and maintenance of consumer buying power. There must be not only the need and the desire to purchase goods, but the capacity to pay for them. In my judgment, devaluation of the currency strikes down or impairs both of these essentials to recovery. It tends to promote uncertainty and instability.

Broken-Down Pump

PROSAIC as are bank deposit statistics, they nevertheless tell a vivid and pointed story of how New Deal pump-priming efforts have not only worn out the pump-handle but have broken down the pump itself.

They show that the reckless spending of billions has lifted consumer purchasing power temporarily when each successive spending spree was in full swing, but in the long run has intensified, instead of solved, the problem of idle men and idle money.

When government funds are spent to build a park, for instance, the chief stimulus to purchasing power is in the wages paid to labor. When the park is completed, wages are paid only to caretakers.

The same amount of private capital spent to build a factory not only results in wage payments during actual construction but steady wage payments to workers after the plant has been completed and put into productive operation.

Col. Leonard B. Ayres, the well-known economic analyst, points out that demand deposits in the banks fell from 1929 to 1933 and since then have recovered until today they are fifty per cent greater than they were in the prosperity year of 1929, exclusive of government deposits.

"They have been rapidly mounting," he continues, "during the years in which the government has been making its huge disbursements for relief and recovery, and the money largely originated in those expenditures and in some degree from gold imports.

"Great expenditures, designed to increase consumer purchasing power, have been received and spent by consumers, passed into the hands of business men, and then piled up in the banks as demand deposits, without producing important increases in business activity."

Thus, the net result of the squandering of billions by the New Deal has been to impose a crushing burden upon the taxpayers, to add to the idle funds which make idle men and to bring ever nearer the danger of uncontrollable inflation.

Wants One-Man Control

President Roosevelt's opposition to control of WPA by a bi-partisan board is in line with his oft-expressed ideas on the organization of government.

He is against boards and commissions on grounds of efficiency, believing that all government power not reserved by the constitution to the courts and by Congress to itself should be exercised by the president. His government reorganization bill would have carried this principle to the point of entrusting to the president the ICC's control over freight rates, the FCC's control over wire and radio communication, and that of various other agencies.

The contrary view holds, as in the past, that certain powers are best exercised by boards responsible to Congress. These powers are in general those that are semi-judicial in nature or else that simply are too readily capable of discriminatory use for partisan or other undesirable purposes. The control over freight rates, which holds the power of economic death over particular states, regions and industries, is an example. So is the power over communications, which in theory at least might be exercised in a way that would infringe, quite legally but still effectively, the freedom of speech and press.

The power to disburse some $2,000,000,000 annually for relief involves both the possibility of discrimination and the use of semi-judicial judgment. From the beginning the federal relief administrators have sat as judges on the claims of the states as to their relative capacities for bearing a share of the relief burden. There have been many complaints about their decisions, as well as on the score of political abuses.

The remedy of making WPA amenable to a bi-partisan board conceivably might entail some sacrifice of efficiency, although it is unbelievable. No doubt it would promote efficiency and economy through greater care and deliberation in use of the funds. Administrative detail still would be handled by an administrator, the only difference being that he would report to the board instead of to the president or a cabinet officer.

In any case, a slight loss of efficiency would seem of minor importance, compared to the weighty considerations favoring board-control of these vast relief expenditures. The president appears overly rash in seeking and defending executive powers, which he himself has said could be abused disastrously by any unscrupulous occupant of the office.

Quite Different Arguments

GREAT BRITAIN will send some of its strongest and most modern air fighting squadrons to France to participate in a joint demonstration with French fliers over Paris on Bastille day, July 14. This display, according to a London dispatch, is designed "to show the French and British peoples and their allies the strength of the British and French air forces, and at the same time impress Germany and Italy with the unity of the British-French armed forces by an unparalleled peacetime display."

Great Britain is preparing, furthermore, to make available to its continental allies approximately $500,000,000 in credits for war supplies.

Well, these seem to be arguments of the type which Hitler understands. Unquestionably Der Fuehrer will be more impressed by such demonstrations than by the rather academic debate going on in London over just what Great Britain is pledged to, or not pledged to, in the matter of Danzig.

The present state of public opinion in Britain seems to disprove the theory that the British are "middle-of-the-roaders." Having wearied of the "appeasement" side of the road, many Britons seem determined to take an extreme position on the other side. Only thus can one explain the equanimity with which British public opinion contemplates the Chamberlain government's apparent willingness to guarantee the territorial integrity of Soviet Russia and all the states bordering that nation of 170,000,000, without obtaining reciprocal guarantees of Russian help in event of war breaking out in Western Europe.

Canine Days

ASK the man on the street, or the boy with a dog or the woman almanac addict why they call them the dog days and the usual reply is that dogs are apt to go mad at this season of the year. Ask the historian, the bibliophile, the scholar or the astronomer and you will learn that the phrase originated with the ancients and that the superstition about mad dogs and human disorders during the sultry days is of astronomical origin.

Hot weather is good for neither man nor beast, a fact known to the ancients who, as was their wont, sought an explanation in the stars. They found it in Sirius, the dog star, which rose just before the sun. Sirius had cast a malignant spell upon the earth.

Sirius was called Canicula by the Romans, but the superstition survived in the Roman dies caniculares, or dog days, which were reckoned to be forty in number—twenty before and twenty after the heliacal rising of the star. Sirius or Canicula staged its heliacal rising on July 23 for the Romans.

It would still be possible for the superstitious to blame poor Sirius, who as far as we know bites not nor barks, for the summer ailments of man and dog, if the unoffending star had not postponed its heliacal rising until the latter part of August for this age. It is gradually occurring later in the year and will eventually place the dog days in mid-winter.

Cheap Trick

PAUL V. McNUTT, who has had a presidential ticket bee buzzing about his head for a long time, being content to run for the Democratic nomination for president if Roosevelt doesn't run, or for the vice presidency if he does, is accused of resorting to one of the lowest forms of publicity tricks.

McNutt said in Washington he had been offered appointment to the presidency of Ohio State University but that he would not accept the position because he had decided to accept appointment as Federal Security Administrator. But now the chairman of the university's board of trustees declares that this is all hooey, that the post had never been offered him and that he or his friends have been booming him for the position merely as an effort to gain attention.

An old trick, but a cheap one.

Plain Truth

NUMBERED among the multitude of business groups and organizations throughout the country that are dissatisfied with the general policies of the national administration is the Appalachian Hardwood Manufacturers' Association, which has been holding its annual convention at Cincinnati.

"About all we get from Washington these days is 'troubles'," President W. L. Boyd, of Tazewell, Va., told the delegates.

And that is the plain truth.

Irascible Ickes continues to dislike the way newspapers are conducted in this country. He objects to a columnist's hint that he is for Roosevelt for a third term because this would guarantee the continuation of Ickes on the payroll. Honest Harold seems to be continuously irked because New Deal pooh-bahs cannot control what the newspapers print.

Hitler says Germany needs a bigger living room. But the Germans, who are on reduced diets due to preparation for war, probably would much prefer a bigger and better kitchen.

The whole family regards papa as Santa Claus. Maybe it's because he's usually the one who's left holding the bag.

We Live Three Lives

By MARSHALL MASLIN

How often have you said: "I wasn't myself when I did that?"

How often have you excused yourself in just that way for a sin that shames you in a quieter moment?

Marshall Maslin

But which Is your real self? What IS the self you gladly admit is yours? Are you one person, or are you two individuals—antagonists forever? Or are you three?

You are tired—and you are peevish.

Your head aches—and you quarrel with those you love.

You have failed in something—and that meaner, envious self takes control.

Even your friends excuse you. They say: "He isn't himself. Pay no attention to him. He'll be sorry."

So we believe, and it is surely true that all of us live two lives and one—the better—is our own self and the other is a base metal that will not pass as the coin of humanity.

Cynics say that the self that comes to the surface when a man is irritated or disturbed is that man's true self. But the rest of us do not believe that. Or if that mean self occasionally is the one we really are—then let it pass, for the hypocrisy that conceals the worse side of ourselves is a fair sort of double-dealing, indeed, and not to be despised.

We live at least three lives, really. There is this daily external life in which we dodge automobiles and talk casually on a hundred subjects. There is the peevish life that comes to the surface when we are annoyed—the ones our friends excuse. And far beneath is a deeply buried life like a stream that almost never comes to the light, in which we rarely bathe, to which we almost never come. But Matthew Arnold wrote that

There rises an unspeakable desire.
After the knowledge of our buried life;
A thirst to spend our fire and restless force
In tracking out our true, original course;
A longing to inquire
Into the mystery of the heart which beats
So wild, so deep in us."

Only occasionally is the bolt shot back somewhere in our breasts and we are given leave to live that calm and perfect existence that is secretly ours. But that is the life toward which most men and women blindly, always stumble.

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

Heartening news comes out of Elyria, Ohio. One man, at least, has finally quit talking about doing something for the long-suffering Middle Class, and is really moving into action. And since the man is the prodigious Walter B. Pitkin, the millions of in-between Americans who have long lacked a spokesman may hope shortly to hear loud, impressive shouts.

Edwin C. Hill

Lecturing in Elyria the other day, on a short trot from his home base at Columbia university, Author-Farmer-Professor-Confessor Pitkin announced that he had begun spade-work for a League of the Middle Class. The league will be "non-political, non-sectarian, non commercial." It will seek to arouse the Middle Class to action for its own political and economic benefit and "to correct evils" by pointing public opinion in the right direction.

* * *

May Do More

If Author-Farmer-Professor-Confessor Pitkin doesn't lose interest, the League is just about sure to do all these things. It may do a lot more, for the organizer is one of the few men in the world who seldom miss the bull's eye. Untiring little Arnold Bennett was a second. World-embracing H. G. Wells is a third. Before them was Leonardo Da Vinci. Alongside any of the four a one-armed paperhanger with the hives would seem to be just a man taking a rest cure. And especialy alongside Pitkin.

He has written books enough to start a library; he has run a farm; he has taught four foreign languages, economics, psychology, aesthetics, philosophy, the logic of mathematics and journalism; he has been tutor, printer, junkman, peddler, factory hand ,cook, cattleboss, and a crack high jumper in his college days. Incidentally, he has made a pile of money, a lot of it from his best-seller "Life Begins at Forty."

* * *

Is Well Informed

Past sixty now, he has far too much hair for a man whose brain has traveled in high so long. His smile is quick and easy-going and his so-so clothes are unfashionable miles short of what the successful man usually wears. He wouldn't get a look alongside Grover Whalen. It is only when he begins to talk that he lives up to his advance notices. He can talk on any subject under the sun. He knows more than a college senior, more than a victorious politician.

Once, just to check up, a doubting friend picked one hundred words, hit-or-miss, out of a dictionary. Pitkin defined ninety-nine. Still hit-or-miss, the friend chose thirty subjects from an encyclopedia. Pitkin knew something about twenty-five, and a lot about eighteen.

* * *

Sticks to Schedule

He builds up his store of knowledge and his record of performance by sticking tight to the kind of work schedule all of us would stick to if we had his gumption. Before he writes a book he plans it out in detail. Then the writing bangs along at four thousand words or so a day. (And he never revises.) Before he starts any piece of work he plans that too.

If Mr. Pitkin can instill a fraction of his tremendous energy into the Middle Class, the country ought to begin to feel the power of his League. That will admit no racketeers, he says, however high their station. He wants just the Common People. Perhaps, like Abe Lincoln, he remembers how many of them God made.—Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Johnson Act Is Saving Us Money

From the Annapolis Evening Capital

There was a time when the $12,000,000,000 owed the United States by foreign governments was a source of irritation to Americans. Now we are able to view this delinquency, substantial though it may be, rather pilosophically .

The experience with England whose back was to the wall; with France, bled white by four years of slaughter; with Belgium poised perilously close to destruction; with Poland which owes its existence as a nation to Woodrow Wilson, and with the rest of the debtor nations, has of course been disillusioning.

There was reason to expect that lands rescued from oblivion would manifest something resembling honor and gratitude. But in this respect we were somewhat naive. Our experience has been expensive, but also enlightening.

By reason of the lesson learned we now have on our statutes the Johnson act, Which prohibits loans to governments that have failed in the past to meet their obligations. Through this act we are saved additional losses and also are guarded against entangling alliances that might draw the country into War.

By reason of these circumstances, Americans are but mildly interested in the revival in England of the movement for the "settlement" of the field.. The box is by no means inconsequential. Still, it has its complications.

SPOILING HIS EVENING

Poor Judgment of Senator Guffey Is Quite a Headache for New Dealers

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Senator Joseph F. Guffey of Pennsylvania is a good bit of a headache to some of his fellow New Dealers. They don't admit it out loud, but they're more or less audible through keyholes on Capitol Hill. Executive folk and party managers whisper about it, too.

Senator Guffey

Not that the senator isn't a rip-snorting New Dealer himself. Other New Dealers are unanimous that his heart's 100 per cent all right. It's his judgment that they find fault with. He says things that they consider indiscreet. They're afraid that anti-New Dealers will quote him to the New Dealer's disadvantage. If so they can't very well repudiate his utterances, because he's so conspicuously on their side.

What's set them especially jittery of late was the speech the Pennsylvanian made the other day in favor of a Rooseveltian third term. In itself his third-term declaration was o. k. That was in line with a lot of New Deal sentiment. It was the senator's threat of the dire consequences he predicts if the present White House tenant doesn't get four years more that upsets New Dealerism.

Dictatorship Cry

In the event of a Rooseveltian renomination next year "F. D.'s" supporters are quite aware that his opponents will set up a dictatorship cry. Their policy naturally will be to pooh-pooh this suggestion.

Senator Guffey, however, warns that we'll have a third term—or else, in effect, a revolution. "There'll be," he says, "an upheaval which will sweep away all politicians and all big business."

Quite a few New Dealers don't like this hint, coming from one of themselves. They interpret it as implying that we have our choice between a third term and totalitarianism—and they suspect that the public will regard the two as amounting to about the same thing.

"O. K." as to Senator Glass

They wouldn't have cared if Senator Glass, for instance, had said that a third term would be equivalent to totalitarianism, They'd have answered, "Phooey!"

But they can't answer "Phooey!" when one of their own crowd forecasts a third term or revolution.

In short, the third termers and New Dealers ardently wish that Senator Guffey had kept his trap shut or use it more judiciously, anyway.

Guffey, I may say, is regarded in New Deal circles as a friend, but not as an asset—they almost would rather have him in the opposition camp. Well intentioned but politically "bugs."

Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, just back from our Philippine commissionership, as a presidential possibility is making an unexpectedly good impression. He isn't a PROBABILITY but he's better than might have been expected.

McNutt labors under the handicap of being an exceptionally handsome man. That's no good political advertisement.

Promoted Socially

He was here a year or two ago and was promoted socially—at cocktail parties and that kind of thing. It made him somewhat ridiculous. His beauty and his cocktails! He's got that record to live down.

Nevertheless it now appears that he was a mighty good Philippine commissioner.

He seems to know more about the Orient than any other American.

The Filipinos evidently love him—and the Chinese. The Japanese? —no, of course not. He's too familiar with their game. But he's a Far Eastern expert. Some folk think that our problem is Pacific rather than Atlantic. McNutt is a dandy Pacific-ar.

"Mac" is a third term advocate. He wants to be nominated, but only secondarily to "F. D."

Going in the Other Direction

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

While Franklin Roosevelt has been justifying his policy of getting out of debt by getting deeper into it, and contending that when the national income reaches $80,000,000,000 the budget will automatically swing into balance, things have been going in the other direction. Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins has announced that in 1938 income had dropped to $64,000,000,000, or $16,000,000,00 short of his chief's goal and eleven per cent under the recovery high of 1937.

Now comes a statement that within twelve months the national income could be raised to $100,000,000 a year. This will be taken more seriously because Mr. Roosevelt does not make it. Author of the statement is Herbert Hoover, whose reputation for responsible utterance is considerably better than his successor's. The way to do it he says, is by "revising" the administration's program. Thus might public confidence be restored, with everybody back to workand a labor shortage in the offing. A condition prerequisite is "that the Republican party put up a sound program so that these 11,000,000 people can get back to work."

This, of course, is a highly optimistic forecast of possibilities. There is point, however, in the theory that American industry and enterprise have been so long tied down that they might leap suddenly forward if the throngs were loosed. This impetus might help to keep public opinion behind a Republican president in the difficult and unpleasant tasks which the vast mess that Mr. Roosevelt has made of things will entail in his successor.

Not Quite Practical

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

A Senate committee recommends profit sharing in industry as "essential to the ultimate maintenance of the capitalistic system". It argues that the workers' income "must be automatically related to the rise and fall of the price structure", and adds:

"Blend the wage scale with a profit sharing differential and the same human being who was previously concentrating his attention on wages, and constantly fighting for higher wages, will discard the combative spirit and move in a cooperative direction—his self-preservation instinct previously centered only on a flat wage scale will cease."

This is, it would seem to The Intelligencer, over-simplification of a very complex problem. The principle of profit-sharing is very generally approved. But its application in any such blanket form as here indicated raises a great many practical difficulties.

To begin with, it should be recognized that the wage system is a profit-sharing system. Imperfect it may be and undoubtedly is. But a wage is roughly intended to represent the employe's contribution to the enterprise. In other words, if the result is wrong, it is the application rather than the principle that is at fault.

Then, there is the practical question of applying a straight-out profit-sharing plan in the sense evidently intended by the Senate committee. If the employe's income goes up as the profits of the concern employing him rise, it must come down as those profits dwindle. But there is a point at which the average worker cannot continue to surrender earnings. What happens to the profit-sharing system then?

What it all boils down to, as this newspaper views it, is that the wage system, fairly and intelligently applied, represents the most practicable medium of dividing the earnings of industry among the owner of a business and those he employs. It might be well to supplement it in appropriate cases, but it must remain the basis of general employe participation.

Hourly Wage Not Necessary in WPA

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, D. C., July 12—The wide-spread strike of skilled workers in W.P.A. against a new statuatory requirement that they work 130 hours for their "security salary" is nothing new.

HUGH JOHNSON

In establishing W.P.A. in New York City, this was the first problem with which I had to deal. The principal argument of skilled labor in the construction trades is this: "If we accept less than the 'prevailing' union hourly rate, in working for WPA, private contractors will use this concession to beat down our hourly rates on non-governmental construction. We have struggled and fought and suffered for years for this security. We cannot endanger it."

If that were true, it would be a powerful argument. Workers in the building trades are in a very different case from workers in almost every other industry. When I say, "I work for Henry Ford at $1.00 an hour"—that doesn't mean I get $160.00 a month for 12 months in the year. The employment is seasonal." I may work only six months—or, for a yearly average of $80.00 a month for that employment.

* * *

Not Nearly So Good

That is bad enough. But if I am a carpenter or a bricklayer in New York City, charging a union rate, let us say of $14.00 for an eight hour day, it sounds like the life of Reilly. As a matter of fact, it is not nearly so good as the skilled mechanic's deal with Henry Ford. Why? Because I have no fixed job. There is no continuous employment and no continuing employer in the construction industry. It is a succession of separate jobs with idleness and no pay in between.

Fourteen dollars a day—yes, but it now usually amounts to less than $600 a year. So, when I started WPA in New York City, I tried to sell the idea of a "security" salary for skilled trades at continuous guaranteed employment for $93.00 a month, or just over $1,100 a year. It was more than the average earnings of skilled men for many years except for a few boom building interludes.

* * *

Strike a Bust

On the argument now made that it would tend to break down their hourly rates with private contractors, they decided on a city-wide strike. Two hundred twenty-two thousand jobs were threatened. I went on the radio and talked these and home economies to the strikers' mommas,—although they asked me not to do that. The mommas spoke up and the strike was a bust.

But the American Federation of Labor was bringing strong pressure to bear on Washington and the policy of the "security salary" was suddenly changed. We cut down the hours of labor per month until the "security" salary of $93.00 could be earned at the "prevailing" hourly rate—sometimes to as low as forty-eight hours or 6 days work a month!

Unnecessary in Relief

A high hourly rate to make spotty employment liveable is absolutely necessary with private contractors. But is is wholly unnecessary in guaranteed continuous employment on governmental WPA relief. There is no danger of the latter breaking down the former because the two deals are as different as leasing some city blocks one day for a circus or by the year for a building operation—or the daily rate for a hotel room compared with a six months lease.

There is another element of unfairness in skilled workers striking to maintain their right to much higher pay for forty hours than unskilled labor gets for 130 hours. Twenty thousand "skills" striking can paralyze construction and throw 150,000 unskilled out of work. It is a strike against the poor, against the government, against relief, and against their fellow workers. WPA Administrator Harrington is absolutely right in his position and if either Congress or this administration is bulldozed in this unwarranted strike, we have lost both fortitude and fairness in our governmental dealing with the labor problem.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Something To Ponder

By Senator Alva B. Adams, Democrat, of Colorado

In my judgment, two things are essential to economic recovery in the United States. The first is confidence in the soundness and just purposes of our government and in the economic future of our country. Until we have in the minds of the American people a condition of confidence in the soundness and just purposes of our country, we shall have no recovery. The second essential is the establishment and maintenance of consumer buying power. There must be not only the need and the desire to purchase goods, but the capacity to pay for them. In my judgment, devaluation of the currency strikes down or impairs both of these essentials to recovery. It tends to promote uncertainty and instability.

Day Camping Events

Sixty-three girls from Cumberland, Mt. Savage, and Frostburg attended the second day of the Cumberland Girl Scout Day Camp yesterday at the Celanese Pool.

The "Mermaids" and "Pirates" took hikes and returned with various treasures including a number of plants and flowers for the camp museum; also fire wood, and green sticks for their out-door cooking. The "Willing Workers" are preparing a natural sun-dial by which they expect to serve as the official camp time-keepers.

The swimmers which includes all the girls, will give an exhibition Friday and the "archers" will be ready for a tournment the last day of camp.

Campers are busy completing their projects in woodwork, such as rings, bracelets, hot pads and coasters. Today, the creative ones are planning to sketch familiar camp scenes and activities, to be used in memory scrap-books.

The evening campfire gave each unit an opportunity to dramatize its unit name, and the buses arrived much too soon to carry the campers home after another busy and happy day.

Two Are Honored

The Valley Road Homemakers' Club honored two of its members Mrs. J. F. Zimmerman and Mrs. Joseph Coleman, recent graduates of the Rural Women's Short Course at College Park, with a tea at Emmanuel parish house, in conjunction with their regular meeting Wednesday.

Tea was served by Mrs. Pearl Farster and Mrs. Marshall Twigg.

Reports were gvien by Mrs. Salis Robison, Mrs. W. L Maddox and Mrs. Adam Smith, who also attended the short course. About fifty were present.

Dinner for Mrs. Baum

Mrs. Addie Baum of Moline, Ill., was entertained with dinner yesterday evening at the Shrine Country club, by her daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Albert Cook of Frostburg. Mr. and Mrs. John G. Cook, of Frostburg, were also guests.

Mrs. Layman Honored

Teachers Are Married At Kingsley Church

The wedding of Miss Mildred Dyche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dyche, 513 Maryland avenue, and Ellis Gilbert Glime, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Glime, Frostburg, took place Tuesday afternoon at the Kingsley Methodist church, Williams street, by the Rev. Thomas M. Dickey, of Lanham, a former pastor of Kingsley church.

The bride was gowned in white lace with a tulle veil, and carried a shower bouquet of rosebuds and gardenias. The bridesmaid, Miss Madeline Dyche, sister of the bride, wore pink net and lace, and carried a shower bouquet of old-fashioned flowers.

The best man was William Glime, brother of the bridegroom. Little Misses Doris Campbell and Janet Crabtree were flowergirls. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Plummer sang "At Dawning," and "I Love You Truely." Mrs. Carl Pardew was accompanist and played the wedding marches. Ushers were Elmer Hite and Harold Messman Jr.

The church was decorated with palms and gladiolas.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 513 Maryland avenue. More than fifty attended. Among out-of-town guests were:

The Rev. W. W. Patterson, Rawlings; The Rev. and Mrs. Plummer, Frostburg; The Rev. and Mrs. Atkinson, and daughter; The Rev. and Mrs. Thomas M. Dickey, Lamham; The Rev. and Mrs. Edgar Beckert, Frostburg; Mr. and Mrs. John C. Cook and Mr. and Mrs. Glime and daughter, Miss LaVerda, Frostburg; Mr. and Mrs. Adam Franklin, Chambersburg, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Harden, Great Cacapon, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Kleinstein, Keyser, W. Va.; Mrs. Evelyn M. Biggs, Luke; Miss Irene E. Johnson, Piedmont, W. Va.; Miss Dorothy M. McDowell, Cresaptown, and Miss Helen Smith, Clearspring.

The couple left for a tour of Canada, and will reside at 533 Rose Hill avenue upon their return. The bride has been a teacher at the Pennsylvania Avenue school and the bridegroom teaches mathematics at Allegany high school.

SALLY'S SALLIES

Smart women are having their hair cut short so they can be in the fashion by letting it grow long again.

Get In the Swim!

By HELEN FOLLETT

GET IN the swim while the swimming is good. Be a water baby. Pushing through the waves slims down fat figures — oh, yes it does, you dumpling ones!—and it rounds out skinny shapes, brings conditions to normal.

Swimming gives freedom of action to the hip joints, shaking off adipose tissue that has got a firm grip on abdomen, hips and thighs. It gives the lungs an air bath, down to the lowest cells, and that means an improvement in the color of the complexion, better nutrition for the muscles. Shallow breathers who have pale cheeks and whose chests are not as full as they should be will find swimming the ideal exercise.

By filling the lungs to the limit the chest lifts, and those horrid little collar bones hide themselves away. The fibers of the breasts are stimulated so the girl who would look bustier had better buy her bathing suit right away.

Complete immersion is necessary; it tends to equalize circulation, to hurry along the reaction that should come after ducking under or splashing in.

And don't forget to take along your suntan oil. Bronzed faces are not in favor this season. They look terrible with pastel colors that are raging like a house afire.

* * *

Will the busy housewife who is forever weeping and wailing about the condition of her hands, please remember to wear her rubber gloves when polishing furniture, shining up the silver or doing any kind of work that is going to make her hands look like those of a coal heaver?

She will say that she doesn't like the "feel" of rubber gloves. That alibi won't work nowadays because gloves with cotton linings can be bought. They slip on and off easily, permit freedom of the fingers.

LYNN BARI . . . is in the swim regularly for health and beauty.

Chapter Has Dinner

Members of the Sanford H. Buley chapter of the De Molay Alumni held a dinner meeting last evening at the Shrine Country Club. J. Richard Kendall, president, presided at the meeting. A talk was given by William S. Jenkins, honorary member. William H. Lewis and Leander Schaidt are the chapter advisors. John F. Workmeister was chairman of the dinner committee. Others attending were:

Day Camping Events

Sixty-three girls from Cumberland, Mt. Savage, and Frostburg attended the second day of the Cumberland Girl Scout Day Camp yesterday at the Celanese Pool.

The "Mermaids" and "Pirates" took hikes and returned with various treasures including a number of plants and flowers for the camp museum; also fire wood, and green sticks for their out-door cooking. The "Willing Workers" are preparing a natural sun-dial by which they expect to serve as the official camp time-keepers.

The swimmers which includes all the girls, will give an exhibition Friday and the "archers" will be ready for a tournment the last day of camp.

Campers are busy completing their projects in woodwork, such as rings, bracelets, hot pads and coasters. Today, the creative ones are planning to sketch familiar camp scenes and activities, to be used in memory scrap-books.

The evening campfire gave each unit an opportunity to dramatize its unit name, and the buses arrived much too soon to carry the campers home after another busy and happy day.

Two Are Honored

The Valley Road Homemakers' Club honored two of its members Mrs. J. F. Zimmerman and Mrs. Joseph Coleman, recent graduates of the Rural Women's Short Course at College Park, with a tea at Emmanuel parish house, in conjunction with their regular meeting Wednesday.

Tea was served by Mrs. Pearl Farster and Mrs. Marshall Twigg.

Reports were gvien by Mrs. Sallis Robison, Mrs. W. L Maddox and Mrs. Adam Smith, who also attended the short course. About fifty were present.

Dinner for Mrs. Baum

Mrs. Addie Baum of Moline, Ill., was entertained with dinner yesterday evening at the Shrine Country club, by her daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Albert Cook of Frostburg. Mr. and Mrs. John G. Cook, of Frostburg, were also guests.

Mrs. Layman Honored

Teachers Are Married At Kingsley Church

The wedding of Miss Mildred Dyche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dyche, 513 Maryland avenue, and Ellis Gilbert Glime, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Glime, Frostburg, took place Tuesday afternoon at the Kingsley Methodist church, Williams street, by the Rev. Thomas M. Dickey, of Lanham, a former pastor of Kingsley church.

The bride was gowned in white lace with a tulle veil, and carried a shower bouquet of rosebuds and gardenias. The bridesmaid, Miss Madeline Dyche, sister of the bride, wore pink net and lace, and carried a shower bouquet of old-fashioned flowers.

The best man was William Glime, brother of the bridegroom. Little Misses Doris Campbell and Janet Crabtree were flowergirls. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Plummer sang "At Dawning," and "I Love You Truely." Mrs. Carl Pardew was accompanist and played the wedding marches. Ushers were Elmer Hite and Harold Messman Jr.

The church was decorated with palms and gladiolas.

The Rev. W. W. Patterson, Rawlings; The Rev. and Mrs. Plummer, Frostburg; The Rev. and Mrs. Atkinson, and daughter; The Rev. and Mrs. Thomas M. Dickey, Lamham; The Rev. and Mrs. Edgar Beckert, Frostburg; Mr. and Mrs. John C. Cook and Mr. and Mrs. Glime and daughter, Miss LaVerda, Frostburg; Mr. and Mrs. Adam Franklin, Chambersburg, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Harden, Great Cacapon, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Kleinstein, Keyser, W. Va.; Mrs. Evelyn M. Biggs, Luke; Miss Irene E. Johnson, Piedmont, W. Va.; Miss Dorothy M. McDowell, Cresaptown, and Miss Helen Smith, Clearspring.

The couple left for a tour of Canada, and will reside at 533 Rose Hill avenue upon their return. The bride has been a teacher at the Pennsylvania Avenue school and the bridegroom teaches mathematics at Allegany high school.

Get In the Swim!

By HELEN FOLLETT

GET IN the swim while the swimming is good. Be a water baby. Pushing through the waves slims down fat figures — oh, yes it does, you dumpling ones!—and it rounds out skinny shapes, brings conditions to normal.

Swimming gives freedom of action to the hip joints, shaking off adipose tissue that has got a firm grip on abdomen, hips and thighs. It gives the lungs an air bath, down to the lowest cells, and that means an improvement in the color of the complexion, better nutrition for the muscles. Shallow breathers who have pale cheeks and whose chests are not as full as they should be will find swimming the ideal exercise.

By filling the lungs to the limit the chest lifts, and those horrid little collar bones hide themselves away. The fibers of the breasts are stimulated so the girl who would look bustier had better buy her bathing suit right away.

Complete immersion is necessary; it tends to equalize circulation, to hurry along the reaction that should come after ducking under or splashing in.

And don't forget to take along your suntan oil. Bronzed faces are not in favor this season. They look terrible with pastel colors that are raging like a house afire.

* * *

Will the busy housewife who is forever weeping and wailing about the condition of her hands, please remember to wear her rubber gloves when polishing furniture, shining up the silver or doing any kind of work that is going to make her hands look like those of a coal heaver?

She will say that she doesn't like the "feel" of rubber gloves. That alibi won't work nowadays because gloves with cotton linings can be bought. They slip on and off easily, permit freedom of the fingers.

LYNN BARI . . . is in the swim regularly for health and beauty.

SALLY'S SALLIES

Smart women are having their hair cut short so they can be in the fashion by letting it grow long again.

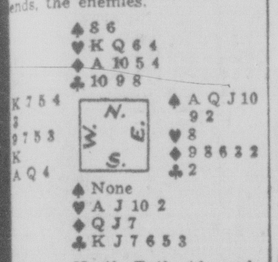
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

HANDLING PRE-EMPTS

ONE OF THE most difficult ...essing games to play in bridge ...that which develops when you ...d a strong hand over your op...nent's pre-emptive bid, especial... if you have a partner whose ...thods are unfamiliar to you. ...th most players a double of ...ch a bid betokens a desire to ...ash the contract. With others ...s optional, telling your partner ...u think you can beat it, but ... not sure and inviting him to ...e out into his suit if he has ...y doubts. If you guess wrong in ...ch a case, you may present a ...st welcome gratuity to your ...ends, the enemies.



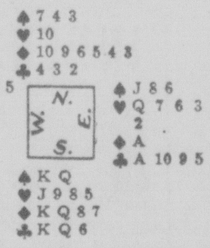
(Dealer; North. Both sides vul...rable.)

East made a very queer looking ...e-emptive bid of 4-Spades on ...s deal, despite the fact that he was vulnerable. South had no way of knowing that, however, and doubled, in the hope that his partner would read it as inviting a takeout. North did not do any such thing. He felt that South had proclaimed ability to whale the daylights out of that contract and he himself had some pretty good defensive strength, with two quick tricks, and so he passed.

It takes no astrologer to figure out how easy it was for East to make this contract, plus an overtrick, which gave him top score in the duplicate tournament in which he was playing.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

...raining Is Necessary ...o Relieve Suffering

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

...ndreds and hundreds of chil... from six to 12—many more ... than girls—must live in ig... ...y without hope because they ...en to wet the bed while asleep. ... parents, some of them, will ...e and ridicule and even beat ...

... an 11-year-old neighbor boy a ...er writes: "They have banish... ...im to the attic to sleep all ... He is always being scolded ...humiliated."

...ny of these children would ... give up a right arm; some ...d prefer a life of blindness, no ... to the torturous life they have to live. And all this suffering is entirely unnecessary.

Of course, it is wise to have a well-trained doctor check on the bed-wetter. In most instances, however, no physical cause is found. Nearly all bed-wetting is a matter of habit which has been prolonged by emotional conflicts and personality fears. And these very fears and conflicts tend to make the habit linger.

In many cases the problem never would arise if the parents had managed themselves better and had sympathetically understood the child.

To help such a child the parents need to be converted to a sensible point of view. They need to realize that they have themselves done most to prolong the problem; that in a sense they have wet the bed for the child, and that if any one needs to be shamed and ridiculed and punished, they are the ones.

Confess Sins

Now let me beg the parents of the bed-wetting child to sit down and confess their sins against them, promising him to sin no more, assuring him that they will be his friends and not his enemies henceforth. Then they will agree never to show the slightest annoyance when the child has an accident. They will provide his bed with a rubber sheet and assure him he need have no worry should he awaken wet.

He will be given an alarm clock. His Dad or Mother will be on hand the first few times when this rings to make sure the boy awakens. Thereafter the lad will set it often enough each night to assure his being dry next morning. Once he succeeds for several nights, he will gradually lengthen the intervals. And what a world of difference to that boy!

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

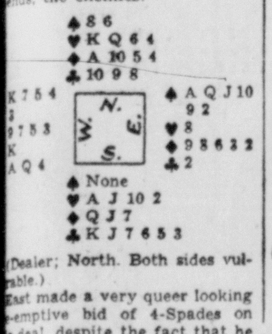
HANDLING PRE-EMPTS

ONE OF THE most difficult ...ssing games to play in bridge ...that which develops when you ...d a strong hand over your op...ent's pre-emptive bid, especial... if you have a partner whose ...thods are unfamiliar to you. ...th most players a double of ...h a bid betokens a desire to ...ash the contract. With others ...s optional, telling your partner ...u think you can beat it, but ...e not sure and inviting him to ...e out into his suit if he has ...y doubts. If you guess wrong in ...ch a case, you may present a ...et welcome gratuity to your ...ends, the enemies.



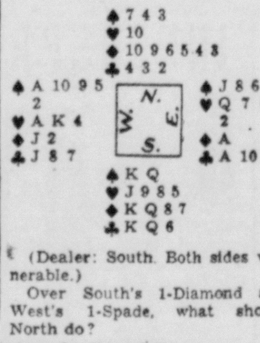
(Dealer; North. Both sides vul...rable.)

East made a very queer looking ...-emptive bid of 4-Spades on ...s deal, despite the fact that he was vulnerable. South had no way of knowing that, however, and doubled, in the hope that his partner would read it as inviting a takeout. North did not do any such thing. He felt that South had proclaimed ability to whale the daylights out of that contract and he himself had some pretty good defensive strength, with two quick tricks, and so he passed.

It takes no astrologer to figure out how easy it was for East to make this contract, plus an overtrick, which gave him top score in the duplicate tournament in which he was playing.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

...aining Is Necessary ...o Relieve Suffering

...GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

...ndreds and hundreds of chil... from six to 12—many more ... than girls—must live in ig... without hope because they ...n to wet the bed while asleep. ... parents, some of them, will ...e and ridicule and even beat ...

... an 11-year-old neighbor boy a ...r writes: "They have banish... ...m to the attic to sleep all ... He is always being scolded ...humiliated."

...y of these children would ... give up a right arm; some ... prefer a life of blindness, no ... to the torturous life they have to live. And all this suffering is entirely unnecessary.

Of course, it is wise to have a well-trained doctor check on the bed-wetter. In most instances, however, no physical cause is found. Nearly all bed-wetting is a matter of habit which has been prolonged by emotional conflicts and personality fears. And these very fears and conflicts tend to make the habit linger.

In many cases the problem never would arise if the parents had managed themselves better and had sympathetically understood the child.

To help such a child the parents need to be converted to a sensible point of view. They need to realize that they have themselves done most to prolong the problem; that in a sense they have wet the bed for the child, and that if any one needs to be shamed and ridiculed and punished, they are the ones.

Confess Sins

Now let me beg the parents of the bed-wetting child to sit down and confess their sins against them, promising him to sin no more, assuring him that they will be his friends and not his enemies henceforth. Then they will agree never to show the slightest annoyance when the child has an accident. They will provide his bed with a rubber sheet and assure him he need have no worry should he awaken wet.

He will be given an alarm clock. His Dad or Mother will be on hand the first few times when this rings to make sure the boy awakens. Thereafter the lad will set it often enough each night to assure his being dry next morning. Once he succeeds for several nights, he will gradually lengthen the intervals. And what a world of difference to that boy!

Very Sweet-and-Young Dress

Marian Martin

PATTERN 9116

Play the starry-eyed ingenue this summer in a sweet-and-young frock, Marian Martin's Pattern 9116. Just imagine it in a sheer rayon crepe or voile, sprinkled with sunny flowers! Make a street length dress for gay afternoons and a longer one for romantic nights. It's so simple to sew, with the Sew Chart directions. The easy bias skirt is pertly flared; the square "baby yoke" copy-cats the line of the neck. See the softly bloused bodice and the wing-like sleeves that open to give breezes right of way. Use fresh lacy trim.

Pattern 9116 may be ordered only in junior and misses' sizes 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18, bust sizes 28, 30, 32, 34 and 36. Size 14, street length, requires 3⅛ yards 39 inch fabric, 1¼ yards of ribbon and 3¼ yards lace edging.

Send Fifteen Cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Summering out-of-town or on your own front porch, you'll need plenty of cool, fresh changes. You can afford more variety by ordering the new Marian Martin Summer Pattern Book and sewing your own! There are easy-to-make clothes for sunning, travel, dancing, work and play. Gay basque frocks, dainty lingerie, day and evening shirtwaisters, bright cottons, sheers. Every age from forty-plus down to tiniest toddler, included. Send today! Book Fifteen Cents. Pattern Fifteen Cents. Book and Pattern Together, Twenty-Five Cents.

Runyan Reaches Quarter-Finals in PGA

1938 Champion Beats Hogan in Stiff Struggle

Emerick Kocsis Tourney Dark Horse Eliminates Denny Shute 3 and 2

Henry Picard Top Money Winner for This Year Defeats Al Watrous

By BILL BONI

New York, July 12. (AP) — Paul Runyan, fighting tooth and nail to avert defeat on his 31st birthday, battled his way into the quarter-final round in defense of his National P.G.A. Golf Championship today, but had to share the day's honors at the Pomonok Country Club with the man he will meet tomorrow and two fast-moving dark horses."

Shooting consistent rather than spectacular golf on a day when birdies were as common as Japanese beetles, "Little Poison" beat back Ben Hogan, 26-year old former Texan who works at a neighboring club in White Plains, N. Y., 2 and 1. He thus moved into the bracket opposite Dick Metz of Lake Forest, Ill., for the handsome westerner, runner-up to Ralph Guldahl in the U. S. Open last year, trampled Billy Burke, who won the open in 1931, 6 and 4.

But down in the lower half of the draw appeared two survivors whose standing as contenders becomes progressively better from day to day. One was E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, string-bean Arkansas by way of Oak Park, Ill., who finished 27 holes eight under par for a 10 and 9 rout of red-headed Bruce Coltart of Haddonfield, N. J.

Shute Is Beaten

The other was Emerick Kocsis, Orion (Mich.) newcomer to top-flight competition. Kocsis, one of the few players who did not sign the petition that brought Denny Shute into the tournament over the protests of the tournament committee, followed that up by knocking Denny, who is unemployed at present, out of the competition 3 and 2.

Harrison, who tied with Kocsis, Ryan and Ky Laffoon, for the medal in the 36-hole qualifying rounds, still is shooting that kind of golf. He played his first 18 today in 66, one shot over the competitive course record and six under par, and then toured the first nine in the afternoon in 33, two under standard figures. For his 27 holes in the tournament he's 19 below par.

Tomorrow Harrison will meet the mother of his boss at Oak Park, Mrs. Horton Smith. Horton put on the finest rally by winning eight consecutive holes in the morning after being 5 down, to pull out 4 and 2 triumph over Clarence Doser of Ardmore, Pa., who beat Guldahl yesterday.

Kocsis To Play Nelson

Kocsis' next assignment is to tackle Byron Nelson, the U. S. Open Champion, who built up a top margin on Johnny Revolta, 1935 pro champ, in the first 18 holes and, despite a slight slump in the afternoon, won by 6 and 4.

The other two berths in the upper half of the draw went to Henry Picard, who has won more money this year than any other pro, and Rod Munday, Runyan's assistant. Picard won at 8 and 7 from Al Watrous, 40-year old veteran from Birmingham, Mich., who collapsed on the sixth green in the afternoon from what doctors diagnosed as a combination of too many cold drinks and too much heat. Munday, carving three shots off par with an afternoon 69, managed to nose out Tom O'Connor, of Yardley, Pa., 2 up.

Comets and Tigers Win in North End League

In the North End Midget League yesterday the Tigers won over the Muggers with a two run rally in the ninth inning 9-8. The Comets netted out a decisive victory over the Scouts 26-9. Both games were played on the North End Playground diamond.

The Word Goes Out:

"Yanks Can Be Had!"

By JOHN LARDNER
(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

New York, July 12—Baseball season comes to its real halfway point today, slightly abaft the fourth of July, and what do we find, as we train an unerring eye upon the situation? We find that the situation stares right back at us.

In neither major league is the race a runaway. The Reds of Cincinnati, though leading the National League by five and a half games, are still within comfortable reach of five other clubs in their outfit. Pittsburgh, in sixth place, is only nine games off Bill McKechnie's fast early pace at the half.

Pittsburgh's percentage is an even .500. Four other contenders are doing better than .500. And there is much merit in the theory of Leland Stanford MacPhail that a ball team in this year's National League derby can move to the pennant from nothing better than an even break in the first half of its season.

"There is not a strong club in the league," hollers Mr. MacPhail. "The Reds can be caught, and they will be caught, cuss them."

Mr. MacPhail's notion is that Brooklyn will catch them. His point of view is slightly biased. But I agree with the timid chieftain of the Dodgers that the Reds will lose ground before they gain more of it. Two or three teams are due to surge, and the Reds will have trouble fighting them off. Can this club of McKechnie's go a distance? It couldn't last year.

Furthermore, what would happen to that tidy Cincinnati engine, which purrs along so smoothly today, if a guy named Bucky Walters were to jam his right hand in the ice box door some night? That Walters is heavy-duty back and streak-buster for McKechnie, and an amazing amount of responsibility for the lofty position of the Reds belongs to him.

However, I am not trying to start a panic. Mr. McKechnie still enjoys a hearty appetite, his team is still the one to beat, and somebody still has got to beat it. The chief danger to the Reds is that the strain of leading and making the pace in a hot race will tell on them, as it did last year on the Giants first and then on Pittsburgh.

The other league? Say, there have been some mighty peculiar doings in the other league of late.

On the first of July, the New York Yankees led by thirteen and a half games. One historian sat down to his trusty typewriter and rapped out an eyewitness story of the ambition which burned in the breast of Joseph McCarthy, namely, to win the American League pennant by twenty-five games.

It is hard to say how this reporter got access to the inside of Mr. McCarthy's breast, where the prairie fire is said to be raging. Mr. McCarthy himself denied the rumor, attributing the whole thing to heartburn.

"Twenty-five games?" barked Mr. McCarthy. "Since when am I calling any shots in this league? I'll settle for first place by half a game. The finish is a long way off."

Joe never spoke a truer word. He had hardly placed his statement on record when more than fifty per cent of the Yankee lead disappeared like a thief in the night. They are still advertising for its whereabouts. In the space of nine days, the Yanks lost seven full games to the Boston Red Sox. Mr. McCarthy lost some of his hair, and the American League lost its mass inferiority complex.

"They can be had!" exulted Joseph Cronin, the Boston manager. "They opened a wicked lead on us there, but if we can knock off half of it in a week, why can't we wipe out the rest in three months?"

According to Mr. Cronin, all it requires is a little cooperation. The Red Sox have shown what can be done. Now is the time for Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, and Washington to leap into the breach.

"The field is open," says Mr. Cronin unselfishly. "The rest of the boys can kick the Yankees all they want to, so long as they do not get ideas about kicking us and trying to steal our pennant."

What does the Yankee slump amount to? Well, the Yanks do not panic easily. They have strength in every department of the game, the sort of balance which figures to protect the min just such emergencies as these. The bottom will not fall out of the ball club. If it's true that the club is not the peerless and flawless thing it seemed to be last week, it is also true that the team which beats it out will have to fight every step of the way.

It is possible that the rest of the league let the Yankees get too far ahead before they were challenged. With two full days of rest, the leaders may snap back into stride. But their flank has been turned, and their communications threatened. In the jubilant words of Mr. Cronin, they can be had.

Fighting Fox Wins Big Race At Suffolk Downs

Woodward's Four Year Old Gains Greatest Triumph of Career

By BILL KING

Boston, July 12. (AP) — William Woodward's four-year old Fighting Fox gained the greatest triumph of his career today when he led 11 high class rivals every inch of the way in the $50,000 added Massachusetts handicap at Suffolk Downs and finished that mile and an eighth test a quarter-length in front of J. H. Lochheim's Pompoon.

While returning the winner's share of $49,250 to his owner and $31.00, $15.40 and $11.60 to his comparatively few backers in the crowd of 40,000, the bay son of Sir Gallahad third turned the distance in 1:52 flat on a track made sloppy by a sudden shower.

Three lengths behind Pompoon came another longshot, the Shandon Farm's Burning Star, which gained show place in a photo finish with the 7-5 favorite, W. L. Brann's three-year old Challedon.

The speedy Fighting Fox, which set a new track record for Empire's five and three-quarters distance only last Saturday, took command of this rich stake as he drew clear rounding the first turn.

Jockey Jimmy Stout then settled him down to a comfortable pace as he led the widely scattered field into the homestretch, where Stout had to use the whip to keep in front of the fast closing Pompoon, which made several determined challenges after getting away fourth and moving into second at the three-quarters mark.

The rest of the rundown was Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Heelfly, Willis Sharp Kilmer's Nedayr, R. A. Moore's Clodion, Mrs. Emil Denemark's Blind Eagle, Mrs. A. J. Abel's Honey Cloud, the King Ranch's filly Ciencia, the only other three-year old in the field, the Binglin Stable's Ligaroti, which closed as third choice, and Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' Pagliacci.

Runyan Reaches Quarter-Finals in PGA

1938 Champion Beats Hogan in Stiff Struggle

Emerick Kocsis Tourney Dark Horse Eliminates Denny Shute 3 and 2

Henry Picard Top Money Winner for This Year Defeats Al Watrous

By BILL BONI

New York, July 12. (AP) — Paul Runyan, fighting tooth and nail to avert defeat on his 31st birthday, battled his way into the quarter-final round in defense of his National P.G.A. Golf Championship today, but had to share the day's honors at the Pomonok Country Club with the man he will meet tomorrow and two fast-moving dark horses."

Shooting consistent rather than spectacular golf on a day when birdies were as common as Japanese bettles, "Little Poison" beat back Ben Hogan, 26-year old former Texan who works at a neighboring club in White Plains, N. Y., 3 and 1. He thus moved into the quarter-finals opposite Dick Metz of Lake Forest, Ill., for the handsome westerner, runner-up to Ralph Guldahl in the U. S. Open last year, trampled Billy Burke, who won the open in 1931, 6 and 4.

But down in the lower half of the draw appeared two survivors whose standing as contenders becomes progressively better from day to day. One was E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, string-bean Arkansas by way of Oak Park, Ill., who finished 27 holes eight under par in a 10 and 9 rout of red-headed Vince Coltart of Haddonfield, N. J.

Shute Is Beaten

The other was Emerick Kocsis, Marion (Mich.) newcomer to top-flight competition. Kocsis, one of the few players who did not sign the petition that brought Denny Shute into the tournament over the protests of the tournament committee, followed that up by knocking Denny, who is unemployed at present, out of the competition 3 and 2.

Harrison, who tied with Kocsis, Hogan and Ky Laffoon, for the medal in the 36-hole qualifying rounds still is shooting that kind of golf. He played his first 18 today in 66, one shot over the competitive course record and six under par, and then toured the first nine in the afternoon in 33, two under standard figures. For his 36 holes in the tournament he's 9 below par.

Tomorrow Harrison will meet the brother of his boss at Oak Park, L. Horton Smith. Horton put on the finest rally by winning eight consecutive holes in the morning after being 5 down, to pull out 4 and 2 triumph over Clarence Doser of Ardmore, Pa., who beat Guldahl yesterday.

Kocsis To Play Nelson

Kocsis' next assignment is to tackle Byron Nelson, the U. S. Open Champion, who built up a big margin on Johnny Revolta, former pro champ, in the first 18 holes and, despite a slight slump in the afternoon, won by 6 and 4.

The other two berths in the upper half of the draw went to Henry Picard, who has won more money this year than any other pro, and Rod Munday, Runyan's assistant. Picard won at 8 and 7 from Al Watrous, 40-year old veteran from Birmingham, Mich., who collapsed on the sixth green in the afternoon from what doctors diagnosed as a combination of too many cold drinks and too much heat. Munday, carving three shots under par with an afternoon 69, rallied to nose out Tom O'Connor, Jr., from Yardley, Pa., 2 up.

Homets and Tigers Win in North End League

In the North End Midget League yesterday the Tigers won over the Buggers with a two run rally in the ninth inning 9-8. The Comets rolled out a decisive victory over the Scouts 26-9. Both games were played on the North End Playground diamond.

Score:

Buggers	101 032 100—8	9 1
Tigers	111 211 002—9	9 3

Solesky, Powers and Welsh, Solesky; Brown and Peuschel, Cerdeman.

Comets	023 011 101— 9	13 7
Scouts	305 241 65x—26	13 2

Schupfer, Lipscomb, Weissenmiller and Lipscomb, Fradiska and Zapf.

St. Peter-Paul Ten Defeats Red Wings

The SS. Peter and Paul Young Men's Club softball combination walked out the Red Wings 7-6 in a recent game which went nine innings at Community Park. B. McGann drove in three Red Wing tallies in the fourth with a triple. Bob Baker scored the winning run after Donald Palmer singled. Baker allowed the losers only six hits and struck out seven. Vic Malloy featured afield. The score:

RED WINGS	000 500 001—6 6 5
ST. PETER-PAUL	140 000 002—7 8 4

Batteries—Red Wings—D. Bruce and T. Ford. SS. Peter-Paul—B. Baker and T. Mullan.

The Word Goes Out:

"Yanks Can Be Had!"

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

New York, July 12—Baseball season comes to its real halfway point today, slightly abaft the fourth of July, and what do we find, as we train an unerring eye upon the situation? We find that the situation stares right back at us.

In neither major league is the race a runaway. The Reds of Cincinnati, though leading the National League by five and a half games, are still within comfortable reach of five other clubs in their outfit. Pittsburgh, in sixth place, is only nine games off Bill McKechnie's fast early pace at the half.

Pittsburgh's percentage is an even .500. Four other contenders are doing better than .500. And there is much merit in the theory of Leland Stanford MacPhail that a ball team in this year's National League derby can move to the pennant from nothing better than an even break in the first half of its season.

"There is not a strong club in the league," hollers Mr. MacPhail. "The Reds can be caught, and they will be caught, cuss them."

Mr. MacPhail's notion is that Brooklyn will catch them. His point of view is slightly biased. But I agree with the timid chieftain of the Dodgers that the Reds will lose ground before they gain more of it. Two or three teams are due to surge, and the Reds will have trouble fighting them off. Can this club of McKechnie's go a distance? It couldn't last year.

Furthermore, what would happen to that tidy Cincinnati engine, which purrs along so smoothly today, if a guy named Bucky Walters were to jam his right hand in the ice box door some night? That Walters is heavy-duty back and streak-buster for McKechnie, and an amazing amount of responsibility for the lofty position of the Reds belongs to him.

However, I am not trying to start a panic. Mr. McKechnie still enjoys a hearty appetite, his team is still the one to beat, and somebody still has got to beat it. The chief danger to the Reds is that the strain of leading and making the pace in a hot race will tell on them, as it did last year on the Giants first and then on Pittsburgh.

The other league? Say, there have been some mighty peculiar doings in the other league of late.

On the first of July, the New York Yankees led by thirteen and a half games. One historian sat down to his trusty typewriter and rapped out an eyewitness story of the ambition which burned in the breast of Joseph McCarthy, namely, to win the American League pennant by twenty-five games.

It is hard to say how this reporter got access to the inside of Mr. McCarthy's breast, where the prairie fire is said to be raging. Mr. McCarthy himself denied the rumor, attributing the whole thing to heartburn.

"Twenty-five games?" barked Mr. McCarthy. "Since when am I calling any shots in this league? I'll settle for first place by half a game. The finish is a long way off."

Joe never spoke a truer word. He had hardly placed his statement on record when more than fifty per cent of the Yankee lead disappeared like a thief in the night. They are still advertising for its whereabouts. In the space of nine days, the Yanks lost seven full games to the Boston Red Sox. Mr. McCarthy lost some of his hair, and the American League lost its mass inferiority complex.

"They can be had!" exulted Joseph Cronin, the Boston manager. "They opened a wicked lead on us there, but if we can knock off half of it in a week, why can't we wipe out the rest in three months?"

According to Mr. Cronin, all it requires is a little cooperation. The Red Sox have shown what can be done. Now is the time for Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, and Washington to leap into the breach.

"The field is open," says Mr. Cronin unselfishly. "The rest of the boys can kick the Yankees all they want to, so long as they do not get ideas about kicking us and trying to steal our pennant."

Fighting Fox Wins Big Race At Suffolk Downs

Woodward's Four Year Old Gains Greatest Triumph of Career

By BILL KING

Boston, July 12. (AP) — William Woodward's four-year old Fighting Fox gained the greatest triumph of his career today when he led 11 high class rivals every inch of the way in the $50,000 added Massachusetts handicap at Suffolk Downs and finished that mile and an eighth test a quarter-length in front of J. H. Lochheim's Pompoon.

While returning the winner's share of $49,250 to his owner and $31.00, $15.40 and $11.60 to his comparatively few backers in the crowd of 40,000, the bay son of Sir Gallahad third turned the distance in 1:52 flat on a track made sloppy by a sudden shower.

Three lengths behind Pompoon came another longshot, the Shandon Farm's Burning Star, which gained show place in a photo finish with the 7-5 favorite, W. L. Brann's three-year old Challedon.

The speedy Fighting Fox, which set a new track record for Empire's five and three-quarters distance only last Saturday, took command of this rich stake as he drew clear rounding the first turn.

Jockey Jimmy Stout then settled him down to a comfortable pace as he led the widely scattered field into the homestretch, where Stout had to use the whip to keep in front of the fast closing Pompoon, which made several determined challenges after getting away fourth and moving into second at the three-quarters mark.

The rest of the rundown was Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Heelfly, Willis Sharp Kilmer's Nedayr, R. A. Moore's Clodion, Mrs. Emil Denemark's Blind Eagle, Mrs. A. J. Abel's Honey Cloud, the King Ranch's filly Ciencia, the only other three-year old in the field, the Binglin Stable's Ligaroti, which closed as third choice, and Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' Pagliacci.

Pickering Defeats George 5 and 4

In the only match played in the Fort Cumberland Golf Club tournament yesterday Thomas Pickering defeating Wynne George 5 and 4 in a semi-final match in the second flight. Pickering shot an 86 while George had 96.

Pickering and Merrill Golden will play for the championship of the second flight.

Pittsburgh Breaks Wyatt's Winning Streak

Mace Brown Hurls Six Hit Shutout Over Dodgers

Pittsburgh Ace Relief Hurler Scores 3 to 0 Victory in Night Game

Wyatt Suffers First Defeat of Season after Winning 8 Straight

Broklyn, July 12. (AP)—Fireman Mace Brown, the Pittsburgh Pirates' ace relief hurler, went the full route tonight and wiped out Whitey Wyatt's winning streak in hurling the Bucs to a six-hit 3 to 0 victory over the dodgers before 29,481 fans at Ebbetts Field.

Starting a game for only the third time this season, the 29-year-old right-hander was in serious trouble only twice as he handed Wyatt his first defeat of the year after the Dodger twirler had won eight straight since coming up from Milwaukee.

The victory boosted the Bucs into a fifth place National League tie with the Dodgers, who dropped behind the St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs by losing this lone game on the day's big league program.

Prusoff Defeats Kamrath In an Upset Victory

Baltimore, July 12 (AP)—Harry Prusoff, Seattle, Washington, scored an upset victory over Bob Kamrath, seeded No. 5, in the Maryland Open tennis championship tournament today, defeating the University of Texas star in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3.

Prusoff, seeded No. 10, swept Kamrath out of the tourney in their fourth round match and advanced to the quarter-finals, to be played tomorrow.

Welby Van Horn, Los Angeles, seeded No. 7, defeated George Toley, University of Southern California player, seeded No. 9, 6-2, 6-3, but all other seeded players advanced as expected.

Deacon Parsons, Huntington, W. Va., went out in the third round, victim of Jack Kramer, Californian seeded No. 6 who licked him 6-4, 6-1.

Gilbert Hunt, defending champion from Washington, advanced with ease, scoring a third-round victory over Warren Christner of Texas, 6-2, 6-4, and defeated Bob Peacock, University of California, 6-4, 6-2 in the fourth round.

New Row Softballers Win In Savage Loop

The New Row team won a 10-5 victory over the Run team in the Mt. Savage Softball League yesterday. The teams were even in their hitting, each getting thirteen. The Runs two errors and the wildness of Shaffer contributed to the defeat.

Haverstick Is Favored To Retain Golf Title

Philadelphia, July 12. (AP)—Harry "Billy" Haverstick, Jr., of Lancaster, ruled a heavy favorite today to retain his state amateur golf title when the annual tourney gets under way tomorrow morning at Huntingdon Valley.

Haverstick, who recently retained the Central Pennsylvania amateur crown, shot a qualifying score of 143 several weeks ago—the best score by far among the 64 from all parts of the state who qualified for the three-day match play competition.

Haverstick will meet L. P. Brown, of Aronimink, in the first round. They are the first pair to tee off. The field of 64 will be cut to 16 after the first and second rounds tomorrow. Two more rounds will be played Friday with the semi-finals and finals on Saturday.

DI MAG SCORES ON HIS HOMER

Old Time National Leaguers Defeat Americans 8 to 4

Boston, July 12 (AP)—A band of National League ancients removed some of the sting of their circuit's latest all-star setback today by giving 30 former American League greats an 8-4 lacing in their Old-timers' game at Fenway Park.

The veterans of the older circuit whaled such famous pitchers as Smoky Joe Wood, Walter Johnson, Cy Young, Chief Bender and Herb Pennock for a total of twelve hits while their hurlers were holding such sluggers at Tris Speaker, Harry Hooper and Duffy Lewins, the famous Red Sox outfield, in check along with the members of Connie Mack's $100,000 infield, Stuffy McInnis, Eddie Collins, Jack Barry and Frank (Home-Run) Baker.

The East Side Softball League was shaken by upsets yesterday as the Cumberland Heights Grocers defeated the East Side Merchants by a 5-1 score and the Outdoor Club won from the Senators 2-0. The victories were marked by the three hit, seven strikeout pitching of Underdonk for the Heights and the two hit pitching of Hanes for the Outdoor Club. The Clubbers won their game in the sixth inning with a blast of two runs in an otherwise scoreless game.

In the North End-Bowling Green affair the North Enders took a 3-0 game from their rivals behind Frank Kienhofer's second one hit pitching effort in his last two starts. The Plumbers cut themselves a slice of league lead and share it with the heretofore undefeated East Side Merchants. The Plumbers took a 9-3 tussle from the East Side Shamrocks. The feature of the game was Moore's homer with two on.

Poffenberger Fails To Report to Royals

Montreal, July 12 (AP)—The Montreal Royals of the International League just about gave up today on Cletus Elwood (Poof) Poffenberger, eccentric right-hand pitcher formerly with Detroit and Brooklyn.

The Royals President, Hector Racine, announced that Poffenberger is up to his old disappearing tricks, and that, as a result, the club feels the hurler "doesn't figure in its plans now."

"On four occasions in the last fortnight," Racine explained, "Poffenberger has informed us he would report on a certain date, and four times he has failed. It's quite obvious we can't depend on a man like that."

The Brooklyn Dodgers, who sent Poffenberger to Montreal in a player deal, also have been in touch with the pitcher, Racine added, but to date it hasn't done any good. "Poof" lives at Williamsport, Md.

Racine said the Royals intend to seek a replacement for Poffenberger to fill their mound staff.

Round Robin Tourney Scheduled at Fort Cumberland Club

The management of the Fort Cumberland golf club announced yesterday that a "Round Robin" tournament will be held at the club starting July 22 and ending August 15.

There will be four classes, A, B, C, and D.

78 to 86, Class B.
87 to 96, Class C.
98 and up, Class D.

Prizes will be given to the winner of each class and the two golfers in each class with the lowest score will also play for a prize.

Ellbeesee Came Home in the Fifth To Pay Backers $39.70

Hagerstown, Md., July 12 (AP)—The favorites just couldn't get going on Hagerstown's half mile track today and the long shots made a clean sweep of the seven races with Ellbeesee kicking the largest pot of cash into the pockets of the $2 investors.

Ellbeesee, saddled by A. M. Utterback, came home in the fifth ahead of Emma H and Chief Evergreen to pay $39.70. Emma H., second, paid $14.10 and Chief Evergreen $3.80.

Mary's Lassie took the opener and Scout Allow won the second race, forming a daily double of $58.70.

Both the sixth and seventh were thrillers, F. Munoz bringing Keswick Hill in with a driving spurt that nosed out two favorites in the sixth, and C. Walters urging Venetian out of the pack just in time to beat the favored Bosopi to the finish in the seventh.

The results:

First—Mary's Lassie, $10.50, $5.40, $3.30; Wagold, $5.10, $2.80; Deblin, $3.10.

Second—Scout Allow, $14.40, $3.90, $3.40; Sun Tempest, $2.90, $2.70; Gay Bride, $5.70.

Third—Veritas, $8.40, $3.60, $2.70; Timetta, $3.20, $2.80; Clymene, $3.70.

Fourth — Small Change, $7.20, $3.50, $2.30; Way Out, $5.50, $2.40; Kitty's Rival, $2.10.

Fifth — Ellbeesee, $39.70, $16.00, $6.70; Emma H., $14.10, $7.30; Chief Evergreen, $3.80.

Bettina-Conn 15-Round Bout Set For Tonight

Successor to John Henry Lewis May Be Crowned in New York

New York, July 12. (AP)—A successor to John Henry Lewis as ruler of the light-heavyweight division may be crowned in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night when Melio Bettina of Beacon, N. Y., and Billy Conn, sensational young Pittsburgher, clash over the 15-round route.

Bettina, already the champion in this state, also will be recognized by the N.B.A., if he trims Conn. The N.B.A., and New York State Athletic Commission recently ruled out Lewis because of failing eye sight. Both bodies will give Conn their O.K., if he is successful. Great Britain will dissent however, for Len Harvey won British recognition by outpointing Jock McAvoy Monday.

It will be the Beacon southpaw's first defense of his one-state title since he knocked out Tiger Jack Fox in the Garden last February. Conn, who leaped into prominence with two spectacular middleweight fights with Fred Apostoli, will be making his debut in the 175-pound division.

The brisk early betting has made the Pittsburgher a 1-3 choice, but the odds may drop tomorrow with the arrival of a huge delegation from Bettina's home town.

This may be Conn's last as well as his first fight as a light-heavyweight. He has grown so rapidly that he soon will experience trouble making the 175-pound limit. His chaices of becoming one of the outstanding heavyweight hopes are so bright that he has been signed to a long term agreement by the Twentieth Century Sporting Club.

No taller than a welterweight, but built like a lighthouse, Bettina boasts tremendous power. Experts call him the most potent puncher in the light heavyweight division. His Beacon admirers are covering all the money they can get at 4-1 that Melio ends the fight with a sleep producer.

Lanky Charley Duckworth made his Allegany County Softball League mound debut Tuesday and pitched four-hit ball as Narrows Park knocked LaVale tossers out of a tie for first place in the last half grind with a 4-2 decision on the victors' diamond.

Gene Scaletta, LaVale's ace hurler, had given only three hits up to the sixth when the Parkers pounded his offerings for four blows and as many runs to ice the game. Linwood Hartsock, Park first sacker, starred afield and was the only batter to get more than one safety.

LaVale's defeat and the Trozzo Whirlwinds' 8-0 conquest of Strin town at Community Park put t first half champions in first pl with three straight victories.

Albert "Bunny" Saum of t Whirlwinds twirled shutout ball a allowed only two hits—singles Emerick and Jones. Tony Me paced Trozzo's eight-hit assault Rizer with three safeties in as m trips while Roy Walburn collec a single and a home run to de right.

Pittsburgh Breaks Wyatt's Winning Streak

Mace Brown Hurls Six Hit Shutout Over Dodgers

Wyatt Suffers First Defeat of Season after Winning 8 Straight

Broklyn, July 12. (AP)—Fireman Mace Brown, the Pittsburgh Pirates' ace relief hurler, went the full route tonight and wiped out Whitey Wyatt's winning streak in hurling the Bucs to a six-hit 3 to 0 victory over the dodgers before 29,481 fans at Ebbetts Field.

Starting a game for only the third time this season, the 29-year-old right-hander was in serious trouble only twice as he handed Wyatt his first defeat of the year after the Dodger twirler had won eight straight since coming up from Milwaukee.

The victory boosted the Bucs into a fifth place National League tie with the Dodgers, who dropped behind the St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs by losing this lone game on the day's big league program.

Prusoff Defeats Kamrath In an Upset Victory

Baltimore, July 12 (AP)—Harry Prusoff, Seattle, Washington, scored an upset victory over Bob Kamrath, seeded No. 5, in the Maryland Open tennis championship tournament today, defeating the University of Texas star in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3.

Prusoff, seeded No. 10, swept Kamrath out of the tourney in their fourth round match and advanced to the quarter-finals, to be played tomorrow.

Welby Van Horn, Los Angeles, seeded No. 7, defeated George Toley, University of Southern California player, seeded No. 9, 6-2, 6-3, but all other seeded players advanced as expected.

Deacon Parsons, Huntington, W. Va., went out in the third round, victim of Jack Kramer, Californian seeded No. 6 who licked him 6-4, 6-1.

Gilbert Hunt, defending champion from Washington, advanced with ease, scoring a third-round victory over Warren Christner of Texas, 6-2, 6-4, and defeated Bob Peacock, University of California, 6-4, 6-2 in the fourth round.

New Row Softballers Win In Savage Loop

The New Row team won a 10-5 victory over the Run team in the Mt. Savage Softball League yesterday. The teams were even in their hitting, each getting thirteen. The Runs two errors and the wildness of Shaffer contributed to the defeat.

On Friday evening the Churen Hill outfit tackles the ten from Foundry Row.

Haverstick Is Favored To Retain Golf Title

Philadelphia, July 12. (AP)—Harry "Billy" Haverstick, Jr., of Lancaster, ruled a heavy favorite today to retain his state amateur golf title when the annual tourney gets under way tomorrow morning at Huntingdon Valley.

Haverstick, who recently retained the Central Pennsylvania amateur crown, shot a qualifying score of 143 several weeks ago—the best score by far among the 64 from all parts of the state who qualified for the three-day match play competition.

Haverstick will meet L. P. Brown, of Aronimink, in the first round. They are the first pair to tee off. The field of 64 will be cut to 16 after the first and second rounds tomorrow. Two more rounds will be played Friday with the semi-finals and finals on Saturday.

DI MAG SCORES ON HIS HOMER

Old Time National Leaguers Defeat Americans 8 to 4

Boston, July 12 (AP)—A band of National League ancients removed some of the sting of their circuit's latest all-star setback today by giving 30 former American League greats an 8-4 lacing in their Oldtimers' game at Fenway Park.

The veterans of the older circuit whaled such famous pitchers as Smoky Joe Wood, Walter Johnson, Cy Young, Chief Bender and Herb Pennock for a total of twelve hits while their hurlers were holding such sluggers at Tris Speaker, Harry Hooper and Duffy Lewins, the famous Red Sox outfield, in check along with the members of Connie Mack's $100,000 infield, Stuffy McInnis, Eddie Collins, Jack Barry and Frank (Home-Run) Baker.

The East Side Softball League was shaken by upsets yesterday as the Cumberland Heights Grocers defeated the East Side Merchants by a 5-1 score and the Outdoor Club won from the Senators 2-0. The victories were marked by the three hit, seven strikeout pitching of Underdonk for the Heights and the two hit pitching of Hanes for the Outdoor Club. The Clubbers won their game in the sixth inning with a blast of two runs in an otherwise scoreless game.

In the North End-Bowling Green affair the North Enders took a 3-0 game from their rivals behind Frank Kienhofer's second one hit pitching effort in his last two starts. The Plumbers cut themselves a slice of league lead and share it with the heretofore undefeated East Side Merchants. The Plumbers took a 9-3 tussle from the East Side Shamrocks. The feature of the game was Moore's homer with two on.

Poffenberger Fails To Report to Royals

Montreal, July 12 (AP)—The Montreal Royals of the International League just about gave up today on Cletus Elwood (Poof) Poffenberger, eccentric right-hand pitcher formerly with Detroit and Brooklyn.

The Royals President, Hector Racine, announced that Poffenberger is up to his old disappearing tricks, and that, as a result, the club feels the hurler "doesn't figure in its plans now."

"On four occasions in the last fortnight," Racine explained, "Poffenberger has informed us he would report on a certain date, and four times he has failed. It's quite obvious we can't depend on a man like that."

The Brooklyn Dodgers, who sent Poffenberger to Montreal in a player deal, also have been in touch with the pitcher, Racine added, but to date it hasn't done any good. "Poof" lives at Williamsport, Md.

Racine said the Royals intend to seek a replacement for Poffenberger to fill their mound staff.

Ellbeesee Came Home in the Fifth To Pay Backers $39.70

Hagerstown, Md., July 12 (AP)—The favorites just couldn't get going on Hagerstown's half mile track today and the long shots made a clean sweep of the seven races with Ellbeesee kicking the largest pot of cash into the pockets of the $2 investors.

Ellbeesee, saddled by A. M. Utterback, came home in the fifth ahead of Emma H and Chief Evergreen to pay $39.70. Emma H., second, paid $14.10 and Chief Evergreen $3.80.

Mary's Lassie took the opener and Scout Allow won the second race, forming a daily double of $58.70.

Both the sixth and seventh were thrillers, F. Munoz bringing Keswick Hill in with a driving spurt that nosed out two favorites in the sixth, and C. Walters urging Venetian out of the pack just in time to beat the favored Bosopi to the finish in the seventh.

Lanky Charley Duckworth made his Allegany County Softball League mound debut Tuesday and pitched four-hit ball as Narrows Park knocked LaVale tossers out of a tie for first place in the last half grind with a 4-2 decision on the victors' diamond.

Gene Scaletta, LaVale's ace hurler, had given only three hits up to the sixth when the Parkers pounded his offerings for four blows and as many runs to ice the game. Linwood Hartsock, Park first sacker, starred afield and was the only batter to get more than one safety.

LaVale's defeat and the Trozzo Whirlwinds' 8-0 conquest of Stringtown at Community Park put the first half champions in first place with three straight victories.

Albert "Bunny" Saum of the Whirlwinds twirled shutout ball and allowed only two hits—singles by Emerick and Jones. Tony Mc[illegible] paced Trozzo's eight-hit assault on Rizer with three safeties in as many trips while Roy Walburn collected a single and a home run to the right.

Corriganville Downs Stringtown 12 to 9

Corriganville defeated Stringtown at Stringtown yesterday in a county softball league game 12 to 9.

Stringtown took a five run lead in the first three innings but Corriganville scored four in the fourth and four in the fifth to take the lead. Stringtown tied the score in the sixth only to see Corriganville come back in the seventh with three runs which gave the visitors the game.

Leading hitters were Starr, Fichtner and E. Stallings of Stringtown and J. Often and B. Often for Corriganville.

Score by innings:

Corriganville	100 440 3—12	13	4
Stringtown	302 013 0— 9	15	7

Batteries: Jones and Often, B. Stallings and Bagley.

Rowers first used a log. Then came the raft. Then a canoe, a hollowed-out log and finally the double-blade propelled boat of today.

Stocks Up One to Three Points In Busiest Day Since Late May

Market Recovers Most of Its Decline in June and July

BY FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, July 12 (AP)—Some of the most prominent shares on the Wall street lists provided the leadership today for a broad stock market advance.

Many were up 1 to 3 at the finish of the busiest day on the stock exchange since May 25.

Setting the example were such issues as American Telephone, Western Union, Du Pont, Union Carbide, Westinghouse, International Harvester, Kennecott Copper, United States Steel and U. S. Rubber.

Closing around tops of the move, the market generally had recovered most of its decline in late June and early July during the Danzig war scare. The easing of fears over this situation, brokers said, appeared to have focused closer attention on political developments at home and widespread business gains the last two months.

The Associated Press composite price of 60 stocks advanced .9 to 47.6, the sharpest upturn since May 24.

Up fractions to more than a point in the curb were Lockheed, Electric Bond & Share, American Cyanamid "B", Newmont and American Gas & Electric. Standard Steel Spring jumped 3⅜.

SOUTH AMERICAN TRIANGLE

Cary Grant and Jean Arthur are interrupted by an angry Rita Hayworth in this dramatic scene from Columbia's "Only Angels Have Wings," now current at the Maryland Theatre. Grant and Miss Arthur are co-starred in the film, a spectacular Howard Hawks production of aviation adventure and romance in South America.

Theatres Today

"Only Angels" Is Hailed As 39's Greatest

Hailed as "1939's greatest screen adventure" by preview critics, Columbia's new Howard Hawks production "Only Angels Have Wings" has its Cumberland premier today at the Maryland Theatre. Cary Grant and Jean Arthur, appearing together for the first time, are starred in the new film, said to be compounded of tropical romance and thrilling adventure in South America.

Advance information concerning the production calls this Hawks creation the greatest the famous producer-director of popular pictures has ever filmed. Neither time nor expense was spared in the filming and some of the most elaborate sets ever conceived and built in Hollywood were used for all except the flying sequences.

"Only Angels Have Wings" concerns a commercial aviation field operated in a little South American banana port by Cary Grant. His pilots are a desperate crew of devil-may-care adventurers willing to fly any old crate with wings into any sort of weather. Jean Arthur, a show girl whose troupe has broken up farther south, arrives on the weekly banana freighter en route to Panama. She falls in love with Grant and decides to stay. But Cary, a confirmed philanderer, turns his attentions to Rita Hayworth, the wife of Richard Barthelmess, one of his newly arrived fliers.

"Undercover Doctor" and "Unmarried" Gives Strand Fine Program

"Undercover Doctor", which is half of the twin hit program showing today and tomorrow at the Strand Theatre, is based on the experiences of G-Men, as recorded in J. Edgar Hoover's book, "Persons in Hiding." The Paramount crime film is really based on an actual case.

A brilliant but weak-willed surgeon throws in his lot with a gang of ruthless killers. Being nursemaid to a bunch of mugs pays well. Before long, the erstwhile penniless surgeon becomes a wealthy, respected member of the community. Of course, no one suspects the doctor of his crooked connections, not even his nurse who is deeply in love with him. Then, one day, there walks in the gangster leader who demands that the doctor be found at once. The nurse is stunned by the discovery that the man she has always loved is in league with these cut-throats.

Louis King's direction squeezes every bit of drama and excitement from the script. Cooperating with him in making "Undercover Doctor", one of this season's better crime pictures, are Lloyd Nolan as the G-Man, Janice Logan, Paramount's latest film discovery, as the nurse, J. Carrol Naish in the title role, Heather Angel as Naish's fiancee, Broderick Crawford as the number one public enemy and Robert Wilcox as Nolan's associate.

Blonde Helen Twelvetrees, Buck Jones of western fame and Donald "Small Fry" O'Connor are the featured trio in one of the most amusing comedy dramas to come to the screen in many a year, Paramount's "Unmarried," which is the second half of the program. Here is well-paced, nicely turned comedy with an action wallop worked in. Things start rolling when a night club owner and a prize fighter find themselves saddled with a personable youngster whose father has been killed while committing a theft. It's hard for them to tell the boy of his father's death, and still more difficult to break away from taking care of the boy. They don't succeed, and stay on while he grows up. The thrilling climax of the comedy drama occurs when the boy, grown to manhood, attempts to follow in his foster father's footsteps and becomes a prize fighter.

TALENT ARRAY

Sonja Henie, Tyrone Power, Rudy Vallee, Edna May Oliver and new-star Mary Healy in a story illustrated with six new songs by the dean of American songwriters make Irving Berlin's "Second Fiddle" a screen event to be talked about with enthusiasm. The 20th Century-Fox production opens Saturday at ten a. m. at the Strand Theatre.

Son Duplicates Dad's Romantic Dilemma In "Career"

"Every man has two women in his heart—the woman he lost and the woman he thanks Heaven he got."

Upon these memorable lines, uttered by Edward Ellis in "Career," now showing at the Liberty, rests the unique theme of this homespun drama of small town life, which also casts Anne Shirley and Alice Eden and John Archer, "Gateway to Hollywood" finalists.

Ellis is seen as a country storekeeper who tries to hide the memory of his first love, a girl who married his rival, while he endeavors to smooth out a similar romantic trouble of his own, played by Archer. The conflict is heightened by the

SOUTH AMERICAN TRIANGLE

Cary Grant and Jean Arthur are interrupted by an angry Rita Hayworth in this dramatic scene from Columbia's "Only Angels Have Wings," now current at the Maryland Theatre. Grant and Miss Arthur are co-starred in the film, a spectacular Howard Hawks production of aviation adventure and romance in South America.

Theatres Today

"Only Angels" Is Hailed As 39's Greatest

Hailed as "1939's greatest screen adventure" by preview critics, Columbia's new Howard Hawks production "Only Angels Have Wings" has its Cumberland premier today at the Maryland Theatre. Cary Grant and Jean Arthur, appearing together for the first time, are starred in the new film, said to be compounded of tropical romance and thrilling adventure in South America.

Advance information concerning the production calls this Hawks creation the greatest the famous producer-director of popular pictures has ever filmed. Neither time nor expense was spared in the filming and some of the most elaborate sets ever conceived and built in Hollywood were used for all except the flying sequences.

"Only Angels Have Wings" concerns a commercial aviation field operated in a little South American banana port by Cary Grant. His pilots are a desperate crew of devil-may-care adventurers willing to fly any old crate with wings into any sort of weather. Jean Arthur, a show girl whose troupe has broken up farther south, arrives on the weekly banana freighter en route to Panama. She falls in love with Grant and decides to stay. But Cary, a confirmed philanderer, turns his attentions to Rita Hayworth, the wife of Richard Barthelmess, one of his newly arrived fliers.

spected member of the community. Of course, no one suspects the doctor of his crooked connections, not even his nurse who is deeply in love with him. Then, one day, there walks in the gangster leader who demands that the doctor be found at once. The nurse is stunned by the discovery that the man she has always loved is in league with these cut-throats.

Louis King's direction squeezes every bit of drama and excitement from the script. Cooperating with him in making "Undercover Doctor", one of this season's better crime pictures, are Lloyd Nolan as the G-Man, Janice Logan, Paramount's latest film discovery, as the nurse, J. Carrol Naish in the title role, Heather Angel as Naish's fiancee, Broderick Crawford as the number one public enemy and Robert Wilcox as Nolan's associate.

Blonde Helen Twelvetrees, Buck Jones of western fame and Donald "Small Fry" O'Connor are the featured trio in one of the most amusing comedy dramas to come to the screen in many a year, Paramount's "Unmarried," which is the second half of the program. Here is well-paced, nicely turned comedy with an action wallop worked in. Things start rolling when a night club owner and a prize fighter find themselves saddled with a personable youngster whose father has been killed while committing a theft. It's hard for them to tell the boy of his father's death, and still more difficult to break away from taking care of the boy. They don't succeed, and stay on while he grows up. The thrilling climax of the comedy drama occurs when the boy, grown to manhood attempts to follow in his foster father's footsteps and becomes a prize fighter.

"Undercover Doctor" and "Unmarried" Gives Strand Fine Program

"Undercover Doctor", which is half of the twin hit program showing today and tomorrow at the Strand Theatre, is based on the experiences of G-Men, as recorded in J. Edgar Hoover's book, "Persons in Hiding." The Paramount crime film is really based on an actual case.

A brilliant but weak-willed surgeon throws in his lot with a gang of ruthless killers. Being nursemaid to a bunch of mugs pays well. Before long, the erstwhile penniless surgeon becomes a wealthy, respected member of the community. Of course, no one suspects the doctor of his crooked connections, not even his nurse who is deeply in love with him. Then, one day, there walks in the gangster leader who demands that the doctor be found at once. The nurse is stunned by the discovery that the man she has always loved is in league with these cut-throats.

Son Duplicates Dad's Romantic Dilemma In "Career"

"Every man has two women in his heart—the woman he lost and the woman he thanks Heaven he got."

Upon these memorable lines, uttered by Edward Ellis in "Career," now showing at the Liberty, rests the unique theme of this homespun drama of small town life, which also casts Anne Shirley and Alice Eden and John Archer, "Gateway to Hollywood" finalists.

Ellis is seen as a country storekeeper who tries to hide the memory of his first love, a girl who married his rival, while he endeavors to smooth out a similar romantic trouble of his own, played by Archer. The conflict is heightened by the

Holt Promises To Help Idle Coal Miners If They Want To Work

Personal Letters Sent to 2,500 Men in W. Va.

Says Men Will Have Opportunity To Work If They Have Jobs

Charleston, W. Va., July 12 (AP) — Governor Holt, in an unusual executive action, promised about 2,500 idle coal miners today he would see that they have an opportunity to work if they wish.

In letters sent to individual miners the governor also suggested the negotiations with the United Mine Workers be resumed over the "union shop" clause in the present contract with miners going back to work under "prevailing wages and hours."

The personal letters from Holt were received by miners at Tamroy and Oswald in Raleigh county, Hemphill, McDowell county; Springton, Mercer county, and Harewood and Kingston, Fayette county.

These mines have been idle since April 1 when the Appalachian shutdown began. The McKell Coal and Coke Company, owners of the Tamroy and Oswald mines and the Kingston-Pocahontas Coal Company., owner of the other four, did not sign "union shop" contracts when work at most other West Virginia mines resumed in May.

"If you do not want to work," the governor said in his letters, "I have no disposition to insist that you work. On the other hand, if you do want to work and your employers offer you work on terms and conditions satisfactory to you, I shall not shirk my duty to see that you have the opportunity to work."

He did not elaborate on this statement other than to add that "I am at your service to assist you in every legitimate way within the powers of my office."

Offer of Leadership

Holt's action was interpreted as an offer of his leadership to miners who want to return to work. He said informally at his office the miners who disagree with the principle of the present labor dispute have no leadership other than that "which can be provided by this office."

The letters said that committees of miners had called on Holt to say that many of them are ready and anxious to get back on the job.

Holt said:

"The state of West Virginia, with the help of the federal government, is doing what it can to aid those who cannot get work and will continue to do so. But I believe that the state renders a man a greater service by helping him to get off the relief rolls, if possible, than it does by giving him a meager subsistance on the relief rolls after he can no longer help himself.

"As the governor of our state, my duty to aid those for whom no work exists is no greater than is my duty to see that those for whom work is available have the opportunity to accept and perform it."

At another point Holt asked:

"Have those who have advised you not to work either furnished or offered to furnish you and your family a present or future subsistence or living as good as that which you had before your mines shut down?"

He added that "I do not know what assistance those in charge of the United Mine Workers of America have given you since April 1, 1939. I do know that some of those who represent themselves as representing you, of the United Mine Workers of America, have asked me to have you and your families placed on the West Virginia relief rolls."

Holt declined these requests and also declined to handle surplus commodities corporation food for the men idle because of the contract dispute. The surplus commodities corporation later set up a warehouse at Beckley, where food was to be distributed through the WPA.

With respect to further contract negotiations, the governor told the miners:

"If further negotiations with reference to the 'union shop' clause would seem appropriate, work may be resumed under prevailing wages and hours pending such negotiations. Newspaper reports, which so far as I am advised, have never been disputed, indicate that this course has been followed at some mining operations."

Holt apparently referred to the Carter Coal Company which reopened its operations at Coalwood and Caretta in McDowell county pending further discussions with the UMWA. The Carter mines remained down several weeks after the Appalachian agreement was reached.

The 1,500-word letters declared that it doubtless would be charged that they constitute "a further effort to destroy your union. I have done nothing that would injure or interfere in any way with your union, for the members of which I have the greatest respect. I have no desire or intention to interfere with the legitimate operations of your union in any way."

"But, I do not want," he added, "to see independent, self-supporting West Virginians reduced to a state of perpetual poverty. I do have a duty to see that those who have the opportunity to work and who want to work are not denied that right."

Work Notices Posted

Beckley, W. Va., July 12. (AP)—Work notices were posted again today at the Oswald and Tamroy mines of the McKell Coal Company and a United Mine Workers representative immediately announced "peaceful picketing" would be continued.

The approximately 1,000 miners at the two operations were among the 2,500 who received letters from Governor Holt in which he promised he would see that they have an opportunity to work if they wish.

The mines of the McKell company, which did not sign the "union shop" contract with the United mine workers after the seven-week shutdown ended in May, have been idle since March 31, when the old contract expired. Work notices were posted once before, but pickets induced the men not to return.

The Siltix mine of the McKell Company, in Fayette county, was closed indefinitely and trackage drawn about a month ago.

E. D. Hodson, UMWA representative in Raleigh county, said "pickets will remain on the job for peaceful picketing according to their rights under the law" if any miners attempt to return to work tomorrow. Picketing has been sporadic during the last two months.

Holt Promises To Help Idle Coal Miners If They Want To Work

Personal Letters Sent to 2,500 Men in W. Va.

Says Men Will Have Opportunity To Work If They Have Jobs

Charleston, W. Va., July 12 (AP) — Governor Holt, in an unusual executive action, promised about 2,500 idle coal miners today he would see that they have an opportunity to work if they wish.

In letters sent to individual miners the governor also suggested the negotiations with the United Mine Workers be resumed over the "union shop" clause in the present contract with miners going back to work under "prevailing wages and hours."

The personal letters from Holt were received by miners at Tamroy and Oswald in Raleigh county, Hemphill, McDowell county; Springton, Mercer county, and Harewood and Kingston, Fayette county.

These mines have been idle since April 1 when the Appalachian shutdown began. The McKell Coal and Coke Company, owners of the Tamroy and Oswald mines and the Kingston-Pocahontas Coal Company, owner of the other four, did not sign "union shop" contracts when work at most other West Virginia mines resumed in May.

"If you do not want to work," the governor said in his letters, "I have no disposition to insist that you work. On the other hand, if you do want to work and your employers offer you work on terms and conditions satisfactory to you, I shall not shirk my duty to see that you have the opportunity to work."

He did not elaborate on this statement other than to add that "I am at your service to assist you in every legitimate way within the powers of my office."

Offer of Leadership

Holt's action was interpreted as an offer of his leadership to miners who want to return to work. He said informally at his office the miners who disagree with the principle of the present labor dispute have no leadership other than that "which can be provided by this office."

The letters said that committees of miners had called on Holt to say that many of them are ready and anxious to get back on the job.

Holt said:

"The state of West Virginia, with the help of the federal government, is doing what it can to aid those who cannot get work and will continue to do so. But I believe that the state renders a man a greater service by helping him to get off the relief rolls, if possible, than it does by giving him a meager subsistance on the relief rolls after he can no longer help himself.

"As the governor of our state, my duty to aid those for whom no work exists is no greater than is my duty to see that those for whom work is available have the opportunity to accept and perform it."

At another point Holt asked:

"Have those who have advised you not to work either furnished or offered to furnish you and your family a present or future subsistence or living as good as that which you had before your mines shut down?"

He added that "I do not know what assistance those in charge of the United Mine Workers of America have given you since April 1, 1939. I do know that some of those who represent themselves as representing you, of the United Mine Workers of America, have asked me to have you and your families placed on the West Virginia relief rolls."

Holt declined these requests and also declined to handle surplus commodities corporation food for the men idle because of the contract dispute. The surplus commodities corporation later set up a warehouse at Beckley, where food was to be distributed through the WPA.

With respect to further contract negotiations, the governor told the miners:

"If further negotiations with reference to the 'union shop' clause would seem appropriate, work may be resumed under prevailing wages and hours pending such negotiations. Newspaper reports, which so far as I am advised, have never been disputed, indicate that this course has been followed at some mining operations."

Holt apparently referred to the Carter Coal Company which reopened its operations at Coalwood and Caretta in McDowell county pending further discussions with the UMWA. The Carter mines remained down several weeks after the Appalachian agreement was reached.

The 1,500-word letters declared that it doubtless would be charged that they constitute "a further effort to destroy your union. I have done nothing that would injure or interfere in any way with your union, for the members of which I have the greatest respect. I have no desire or intention to interfere with the legitimate operations of your union in any way."

"But, I do not want," he added, "to see independent, self-supporting West Virginians reduced to a state of perpetual poverty. I do have a duty to see that those who have the opportunity to work and who want to work are not denied that right."

Work Notices Posted

Beckley, W. Va., July 12. (AP)—Work notices were posted again today at the Oswald and Tamroy mines of the McKell Coal Company and a United Mine Workers representative immediately announced "peaceful picketing" would be continued.

The approximately 1,000 miners at the two operations were among the 2,500 who received letters from Governor Holt in which he promised he would see that they have an opportunity to work if they wish.

The mines of the McKell company, which did not sign the "union shop" contract with the United mine workers after the seven-week shutdown ended in May, have been idle since March 31, when the old contract expired. Work notices were posted once before, but pickets induced the men not to return.

The Siltix mine of the McKell Company, in Fayette county, was closed indefinitely and trackage drawn about a month ago.

E. D. Hodson, UMWA representative in Raleigh county, said "pickets will remain on the job for peaceful picketing according to their rights under the law" if any miners attempt to return to work tomorrow. Picketing has been sporadic during the last two months.

WPA Playground Program Given

Barton Children Participate in "Dress-as-You Please" Parade

Barton, July 12—A "Dress-As-You-Please" parade featured the WPA playground program at Barton high school this afternoon at 1 p. m., in which ninety children participated.

Mary Hyde, Jean Bailey, Verlys Michael, Betty Fotz, Jane Lee Chappell, Margaret Russell, Frances Ann McConnell, Bonnie Wilson, Harold Wilson, Victor Broy, Catherine Kelly, Bessie L. Kelly, Emma Louise Cooper and Helen Schramm, were adjudged the blue ribbon winners of the group. The costumes were varied and picturesque, ranging from a pirate bold, to the well dressed lady of today. The parade was under the direction of Mrs. Sarah Guynn and Mrs. Mildred Kirkpatrick.

This evening, Vesper Services were held outside on the Barton Hose Company's playground, with the Rev. O. S. Edwards, in charge. The Vesper Services are being tried out with the hope that many in the community will turn out so as to justify their continuance weekly during the summer. All local churches are cooperating.

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

A grotesque friend of the garden

"Insect means pest." But not always. Some insects are beneficial to the garden because, oddly enough, they act as controls for the harmful insects. It is to your advantage as a gardener to know these and encourage them.

Shown in the Garden-Graph is the praying—not "preying"—mantis, a cannibal which is especially fond of grasshoppers. It also devours flies and countless other insects.

Judge Thinks Jones Is Economical

Clarksville, Tenn., July 12 (AP)—Circuit Judge Dancey Fort went to the 1893 Chicago World's Fair with Jesse Jones, and on the basis of that trip is convinced the Texan will be an economical administrator of Uncle Sam's multi-billion dollar lending business.

Because:

"We packed up our clothes, and Jesse had a big bundle, wrapped in newspaper, that turned out to be a big boiled ham. From the time we left until we returned, Jesse had ham for breakfast, ham for luncheon and ham for supper. He wouldn't pay for a hotel or restaurant meal."

fact that Miss Shirley, whom Arched wants to marry, is the daughter of the village banker—the man who won Ellis' first love.

Full of homely philosophy and piognant drama "Career" is said to be one of the more entertaining stories of real life and real people to reach the screen. Phil Strong wrote the novel which RKO Radio produced with Samuel S. Hinds, Janet Beecher and Leon Errol also in the cast.

New Comedy Hit Inspired by Racy Old Song

The title of that hit stage play by Mark Reed, "Yes, My Darling Daughter," should have a familiar ring in the ears of any but the newest-hatched generation.

It is a line from one of the first generally-circulated songs that pack a secondary, and usually racy, meaning for sophisticates. Followed by countless others, "My Darling Daughter" was one of the neatest of all:

"Mother, may I go out to swim?"
Hang your clothes on a hickory limb,

In the play, and also in the elaborately staged film version produced by Warner Bros., which is now at the Garden Theatre, the whole stanza above has an amusing bearing, in its secondary meaning, on plot and characters. A mother has to give her daughter the modernized version of that advice — and worry because it's taken.

Priscilla Lane plays the daughter, Jeffrey Lynn the hero.

Neil Hamilton, popular leading man of silent films and the early days of talkies, today is meeting with equal success as a character actor. He is currently appearing in RKO Radio's "The Saint Strikes Back," which introduces George Sanders as "The Saint" in the series of films the studio is producing around the exploits of Leslie Charteris' popular mystery fiction character. The picture is now at the Garden.

In addition to Hamilton, the supporting cast includes such notable players as Wendy Barrie, Jonathan Hale, Jerome Cowan and Barry Fitzgerald. John Farrow directed.

Two Fight Pictures and "Inside Information"

Closin today at the Embassy Theatre is the double feature hit, consisting of the Joe Louis-Tony Galento fight pictures and the bout between Lou Nova and Max Baer. The first run feature hit being "Inside Information" starring June Lang, Dick Foran and Harry Carey. Also on the screen will be another chapter of the serial, "Flaming Frontiers," starring Johnny Mack Brown.

Gene Autry and "Lady And The Mob" Tomorrow

Opening toorrow at the Embassy Theatre will be your famous western star, Gene Autry, in the singing western "Home On The Prairie" with Smiley Burdette. The second feature will be Fay Bainter and Ida Lupino in "The Lady And The Mob." Also another chapter of the serial "Flying G-Men."

Confederate Soldier's Home Offered Bones Of Jackson's Horse

Jackson's Mill, W. Va., July 12 (AP)—Charles Hartley, State Director of the West Virginia Four-H Camp, the boyhood homes of General Stonewall Jackson, states that he will ask the Carnegie Museum at Pittsburgh to present the bones of 'Little Sorrel', Jackson's war steed to the Jackson's Mill Museum.

Dr. A. W. Henn, of the Carnegie Museum, announced that he believes the bones of the famous horse belong to the south, and expressed a willingness to present them to some museum. He added that little interest is shown in the skeleton of 'Little Sorrel' in Pittsburgh.

Richmond, Va., July 12 (AP)—The board of directors of the Confederate Soldiers' Home here will take action Thursday on an offer by the Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh, Pa., to give the local institution the skeleton of Old Sorrel, General Stonewall Jackson's war horse.

Mrs. B. A. Blenner, president of the Richmond chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, said she knew she could speak "for all connected with the U.D.C. in saying we would be delighted to have the skeleton of Old Sorrel to go in the museum here."

She added it was only recently she learned the stuffed remains of Old Sorrel did not contain the bones of the famous animal.

Move Prison Camp

Moundsville, W. Va., July 12 (AP)—Warden Clarence M. Stone of the state penitentiary, announces that the road camp at Franklin, Pendleton county, is being moved this week to Baker in Hardy county, a distance of about thirty miles.

The buildings are being moved by truck. Work will be started shortly on Hardy county roads by the prisoners.

Kanawha City WPA Workers on Strike

Charleston, W. Va., July 12 (AP)—A Kanawha City WPA project employing about fifty workers suspended operations today after an undetermined number of employes walked out in protest of the new wage and hour regulations of the relief agency.

It was the first strike in West Virginia against the new 130-hour work month.

There were reports, however, that workers in Brooke, Ohio and Hancock counties might take a "four-day vacation" from all projects in that area.

The Kanawha City walkout was a part of the Charleston workers Alliance's announced intentions of staging a two-day strike in protest of the increase in working hours without a commensurate increase in wages.

District Supervisor S. Grover Smith said he had scattered reports of other open protests, but did not believe any other of the projects were forced to shut down.

H. B. Colebank, State Employment Director for the agency, asserted the striking workers would not be dropped from the rolls if they returned within five days, but they would not be given a chance to make up the lost work days.

Those who were willing to work but could not will be allowed to make up the time, he added.

Earlier in the week, President John B. Easton of the State Industrial Union Council (CIO) advised WPA employes to stay on the job and to protest the new regulations to their congressmen and senators.

Man Lives and Speaks After Eyes, Nose and Lips Are Destroyed

Bluefield, W. Va., July 12. (AP)—How Blake Lowe could live, much less think and speak, after an unexpected dynamite blast tore away every facial feature caused veteran Bluefield hospital physicians to shake their heads in wonderment tonight.

Still conscious after his eyes, nose and lips were destroyed and flesh seared from his [illegible], the young Richlands, Va., road worker murmured to doctors:

"Please don't tell my wife what sort of shape I'm in."

Lowe was injured when an unfired charge exploded as he drilled into previously dynamited bedrock on a road construction job two miles from Tazewell, Va.

The pneumatic drill Lowe was using, thrown high in the air, struck James Higginbotham, Tazewell negro, in the back and painfully injured him. Another workman was less seriously hurt.

$5,000,000 Claimed In Compensation by W.Va. Coal Miners

Charleston, W. Va., July 12. (AP)—The claims of miners for unemployment compensation during the bituminous coal shutdown amount to about $5,000,000, John H. Fox, legal adviser to the department, said today.

The state department denied jobless benefits to those made idle while negotiators worked for seven weeks for a new Appalachian wage contract, contending the miners were engaged in a labor dispute.

Amout 20,000 appeals have been filed from that ruling, and Fox said the department would have to consider about 60,000 more partial claims if the ruling was reversed.

General testimony regarding the New York negotiations for a new contract has been completed. It will apply to about 1,200 consolidated cases and probably form the background for the others now on appeal.

DON'T SCRATCH, SOOTHE THE IRRITATION

Quick relief from the maddening itch of eczema, psoriasis, poison ivy, and irritation about the rectum or personal parts is obtained by applying Resinol Ointment. Leave it on over night. It lessens the desire to scratch, and eases the irritation.

The soothing effect of Resinol takes the sting from the irritated places and makes you more comfortable. The skin heals sooner, too, with the help of Resinol, as its oily base holds the medication in active contact with the tortured parts.

For gentle cleansing of irritated skin, Resinol Soap is excellent because it has no excess of free alkali and is so refreshing. Many nurses suggest and use Resinol Ointment and Soap—why don't you try them?

Buy at any drug store. For free sample, write to Resinol, Dept. 85, Baltimore, Md.

The pneumatic drill Lowe was using, thrown high in the air, struck James Higginbotham, Tazewell negro, in the back and painfully injured him. Another workman was less seriously hurt.

$5,000,000 Claimed In Compensation by W.Va. Coal Miners

Charleston, W. Va., July 12. (AP)—The claims of miners for unemployment compensation during the bituminous coal shutdown amount to about $5,000,000, John H. Fox, legal adviser to the department, said today.

The state department denied jobless benefits to those made idle while negotiators worked for seven weeks for a new Appalachian wage contract, contending the miners were engaged in a labor dispute.

Amout 20,000 appeals have been filed from that ruling, and Fox said the department would have to consider about 60,000 more partial claims if the ruling was reversed.

General testimony regarding the New York negotiations for a new contract has been completed. It will apply to about 1,200 consolidated cases and probably form the background for the others now on appeal.

DON'T SCRATCH, SOOTHE THE IRRITATION

Quick relief from the maddening itch of eczema, psoriasis, poison ivy, and irritation about the rectum or personal parts is obtained by applying Resinol Ointment. Leave it on over night. It lessens the desire to scratch, and eases the irritation.

The soothing effect of Resinol takes the sting from the irritated places and makes you more comfortable. The skin heals sooner, too, with the help of Resinol, as its oily base holds the medication in active contact with the tortured parts.

For gentle cleansing of irritated skin, Resinol Soap is excellent because it has no excess of free alkali and is so refreshing. Many nurses suggest and use Resinol Ointment and Soap—why don't you try them?

ORDINANCE NO. 1694

AN ORDINANCE OF THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, MANYLAND, ENTITLED, "AN ORDINANCE TO REPEAL ORDINANCE NO. 1153 PASSED UPON THE FOURTH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1928, RELATING TO THE SALE OF FIREWORKS, FIRECRACKERS, ETC., AND TO REENACT THE SAME SO AS TO PROHIBIT THE SALE, USE OR POSSESSION THEREOF, EXCEPT UNDER CERTAIN CONDITIONS."

SECTION 1. BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, That Ordinance No. 1153 passed upon the fourth day of September, 1928, be and the same is hereby repealed and reenacted so as to read as follows, to wit:

It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to display or offer for sale, sell, deliver, discharge or set off any fireworks or noise-making explosives of any kind or description which contain powder, explosive or inflammable composition or material, within the City limits of Cumberland, Maryland, or for one mile beyond the limits of said City. Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prohibit the discharge or setting off of the above mentioned fireworks on occasions of public celebration and exhibition where a permit so to do is first had and obtained from the Chief of the Fire Department of Cumberland, Maryland, subject to the approval of the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland. Provided, further, That no such permit shall be issued unless the application thereof contains a notation of the time, place and storage of such fireworks, and the Fire Chief and the Mayor and City Council are satisfied that the public safety will not in any way be jeopardized.

SECTION 2. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That any person not having a permit as provided for in the preceding section, who shall violate any of the provisions of this Ordinance, shall be fined not less than Fifty ($50.00) Dollars, nor more than One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars, for each offense.

SECTION 3. AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That this Ordinance shall take effect from the date of its passage.

Passed this 10th day of July, 1939.

HARRY IRVINE, Mayor.

Father's Truck Kills Baby Girl on Nearby Farm

Tragedy Occurs At Miltenberger's Near Ridgeley

Daughter Dies In Hospital Here 12 Hours Later

A tiny baby girl died last night in Allegany hospital twelve hours after she had been run over by her father's truck.

The child was 15-month-old Katherine Miltenberger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Miltenberger. Mr. Miltenberger operates a truck and dairy farm along the Potomac several miles out of Ridgeley on the Fort Ashby road.

The baby slipped off the milk house and was playing in front of the truck when her father started it up. Her father had not seen her and did not know she was around.

The child was brought immediately to Allegany hospital and admitted at 6:15 a. m. Dr. F. A. Murray said she died of internal injuries at 6:24 p. m.

Funeral arrangements will be made at Stein's.

TALLEST MAN HERE—Robert Wadlow, of Alton, Ill., had everybody in Cumberland talking yesterday after he popped into town on a business trip. Uncle Sam Gives State Big Forest

Tract Is Located In Garrett County

Marylanders had two new playgrounds of nearly 40,000 acres today in opposite ends of the state. The larger playground by far is in Garrett county.

The state forestry department took over 38,200 acres of land from the federal government under a 99-year lease which stipulates the state shall administer the land and take all the receipts from it.

Of the total, 32,000 acres are in the Western Maryland mountains, adjoining the Savage River state forest. The other 6,200 acres are in the tidewater area of the Eastern Shore, near the Pocomoke state forest.

Patrols Only Extra Cost

Assistant Forester Karl W. Pfeiffer said the only extra cost to the state probably would be extra patrols. He said present supervisors of the two forests could care for the new acreage, submarginal land bought for the federal government to get it out of cultivation.

The state would receive the income from sale of timber and from permits for camping in the area, he added. The forestry department "hopes", he said, that the income will be greater than the extra expense.

The areas were purchased by the federal government during the past four years under the nation-wide land utilization program. The purchased lands have been developed for forestry, wildlife conservation, and recreation.

The state department of forestry will continue the forestry program involving reforestration of open, formerly cultivated tracts, fire protection, and management of the areas in accordance with sound forestry principles. The wildlife program, including the planting of shrubs and other types of vegetation that furnish food and cover for birds and animals, will also be carried forward by the state. Recreational facilities will be maintained for the public.

Dentist Takes Case To Supreme Court

Washington, July 12 (AP) — The Supreme Court has been asked to decide whether a Massachusetts dentist should pay a $1 fine imposed on a charge of making claims of "painless" dentistry.

Dr. Fred P. Brown, North Easton dentist, appealed from a decision by the State Supreme court sustaining his conviction by the Suffolk County Superior court.

The indictment alleged among other things that he included "in a letter of advertisement certain words and statements claiming the performance of painless operations of a dental and oral surgical nature."

Dr. Brown challenged constitutionality of a 1937 Massachusetts statute regulating advertising by dentists. He contended it was an unreasonable "restriction of private enterprise."

Dresden, Ont., July 12 (Canadian Press) — Four chunks of molten stone, believed to have been parts of a meteor that streaked across southwestern Ontario last night, were found today within a radius of a mile of Dresden.

More Youngsters Use Playground

Gephart Group Plans Watermelon Festival

An increase in attendance at the Gephart playground over last year was announced last night at the meteing of the Gephart Playground Association at the Gephart school on Frederick street.

Plans were completed for the annual "Watermelon Festival" which will be held Friday evening, July 14.

Heading the committee which will have charge of slicing up and distributing scores of watermelons are Mrs. A. J. Kompanek, chairman of the refreshment committee, and William J. Cubbage, chairman of the entertainment committee.

It was announced last night that the association will sponsor and outfit a softball team at the playground. Uniforms will be purchased for the participants. New games are also being added to take care of the large number of youngsters using the playground.

University of Maryland Will Get $100,000 Laboratory Building

Washington, July 12 (AP)—A $100,000 laboratory building will be constructed at the University of Maryland, college park, by the bureau of fisheries, it is announced.

The building will house laboratory units now at college park and Washington. Means of improving methods for the canning, smoke and freezing of fishing products, and other problems of the industry on the Atlantic coast will be studied at the laboratory.

Beds Set End-to-End For Tallest Man

Robert Wadlow, the world's tallest man, spent a comfortable night in Cumberland Tuesday on two double beds placed end-to-end at the Fort Cumberland hotel, hotel employes reported yesterday.

The 21-year-old Alton, Ill., man attracted more attention than any guest in some time, hotel attendants admitted yesterday. The desk clerk at the hotel also admitted that he evinced some surprise when the big fellow came walking into the hotel, stooping to come through the front door.

Mr. Wadlow, accompanied by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Wadlow, and a brother and two sisters, were up bright and early yesterday morning and left the hotel at 7:30 a. m., it was reported.

Bank Conservator Failed In Duties, Suit Charges

Charges that Frank C. Ort failed to perform his lawful duties as conservator for the First National Bank of Midland are made in a suit brought against the company which bonded Ort.

Suit was filed in Circuit court here by Preston Delano, United States comptroller of currency, who was represented by Attorney Harry I. Stegmaier.

The suit alleges that Ort's failure to perform his duties led to considerable loss. The suit asks $10,000 from the National Surety company.

Vacation at Shore

William Sipple and William Mateer, both of Cumberland, are vacationing this week at Ocean City, Maryland.

'The Basket' Missing at City Hall; Newsmen Mourn, Officials All Mum

This particular basket is that time honored institution at City Hall which has been a fount of information for council members, city officials, and reporters for years.

Its accustomed place is on the safe in the inner office of the city clerk's domain. At least that used to be its place. And it always contained notices of things past and things to come up in the future.

Yesterday it was not in that place and a number of people made inquiries as to what became of it. No one seemed to exactly know although several people declared they had a pretty good idea.

One reporter found it tucked away in a corner on the floor. Another didn't find it at all and immediately declared that this country was getting worse than Nazi Germany.

Puzzled over the mysterious case of the basket, one reporter called Mayor Harry Irvine himself last night and inquired if he had seen the basket.

"It was in there when I dropped in at 3:30 yesterday afternoon," Mayor Irvine declared. The mayor inquired what is was all about.

168 WPA Workers Who Were Fired Can't Get Back

Jobs Gone for Good Under Regulations, Officials Point Out

One significant point that has been largely overlooked in the current WPA controversy, according to WPA officials, is the fact that the 168 workers who have been fired because there is nothing for them to do cannot be re-hired if and when more projects are sponsored by the city.

In other words, these 168 men are out of luck. And about to land in the same boat with them are the hundreds of workers scheduled to be fired in coming months.

These men have lost their jobs for good (barring, of course, some drastic change in WPA administrative orders) because of the quota system.

Jobs Go To Other Counties

As explained by Henry Tarring Jr., resident engineer for WPA in Allegany and Garrett counties. Washington allots the state of Maryland so many WPA obs, and each county is given its quota of available jobs.

But along comes the day when WPA, after giving the city council due warning, runs out of enough projects in Cumberland to keep all the men busy. Already 168 men have been fired for this reason.

This many jobs are immediately lopped off the Allegany county quota and distributed out among other counties of the state which are ready and willing to put more WPA workers to work.

Can't Give Jobs Back

According to Mr. Tarirng, it would not be the usual procedure, in case more projects became available, to put the Allegany county quota back up where it was before the slash, because this would mean lopping off WPA workers in other counties and disorganizing the programs of the other counties.

Told that it apparently has not been generally realized that the fired workers could not get their jobs back as soon as new projects might be supplied, Mr. Tarring replied:

The most recent check-up of WPA enrollment on city-sponsored projects, which is as of July 5, shows 580 workers.

Twenty had already been fired July 1 when the Seneca avenue project ran out. Since July 5, there have been 132 men fired off the Constitution park project and twenty-six off the Sylvan avenue project.

During the past week, ten or more men have returned to private employment, leaving about 412 men working on city-sponsored WPA projects today.

37-Cent Rate Here

Under the new WPA regulations backed by President Roosevelt and approved by Congress, unskilled workers here are now putting in 130 hours a month at thirty-seven cents an hour, making a monthly wage of $48.10. Workers classed as of intermediate skill get forty-six cents an hour. Skilled workers get fifty-five cents.

About eighty-five per cent of the workers are classified as unskilled.

Unless city council sponsors new WPA projects, the WPA program will gradually be whittled down here until by the middle of November there will be no more WPA in Cumberland.

Knights of Pythias Install New Officers

Cumberland Lodge No. 60, Knights of Pythias, installed the following officers to serve until December 31: Chancellor commander, Harold Hixson; vice chancellor, Ernest Treat; prelate, Herbert Bailey; master of work ,J. Walter McKee; keeper of records and seal, Arthur E. Brant; master of finance, Glenn A. Moore; master of exchequer, Robert M. Llewellyn; master at arms, William V. Cubbage; inner guard, George Keifer; outer guard, W. Lester Murphy; custodian, J. Hillry Hayden, and degree master, Odith M. Brotemarkle.

Installation ceremonies were performed by following officers: Arthur E. Brant, lodge deputy grand chancellor, assisted by District Deputy Grand Chancellor, Odith M. Brotemarkle and the following grand lodge officers: Julius E. Schindler, grand vice chancellor; Belmont Robinette, grand prelate, acting; J. Hillry Hayden, grand master-at-arms, acting; Sylvester Schilling, grand inner guard, acting; Ernest Rice, grand outer guard, acting.

The rank of Knight was conferred on Ira Woodrow Malone.

Certificates from Supreme Lodge and Grand Lodge, certifying they were candidates and initiated in the Diamond Jubilee Classes at Washington or Baltimore were presented to the following members: Glenn R. Kemmety, John C. Carlton, William F. Grimm, Chester K. Light, Sheridan W. Beeman, Ralph F. Dumire, Ira W .Malone, Ray C. Lapp, J. Robert Lucas, David W. Smith and Charles E .Cubbage.

A past chancellor's jewel was presented to Britton O. Shaffer.

Barbers Union Plans Picnic Sunday

Local No. 314 of the Journeymen Barbers International will hold a picnic at Lake Gordon Sunday starting at 11 a. m. The event will be for barbers, shop owners, and their friends.

All barbers who have no means of transportation should see Raymond 'Buck' Griffith, who is arranging to provide rides for those who wish to attend.

Swimming, games, and other activities will comprise the day's entertainment.

Council Tackles WPA Problems

Study Long List Of Street Jobs

Mayor Harry Irvine and the members of city council yesterday buckled down to work on the current WPA situation, which it was indicated would be ironed out as soon as possible.

A line of projects was submitted to Mayor Irvine yesterday by City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer for study.

The projects, totaling twenty-seven, include sixteen already approved by WPA and eleven unapproved.

New Road at Dam Proposed

If started, the road at the dam would provide work for a crew of 200 men for the better part of a year, Rizer estimated yesterday. The other street jobs would be of shorter duration.

Repaving jobs included on the report submitted to the mayor included sections of First, Second, Third, Fourth and Fairfax streets, Brookfield avenue, Virginia avenue, South Mechanic, Reynolds, Yale, East and Marion streets.

Waiting On Heskett

Also on the list submitted were a group of street repaving jobs which have not as yet been approved. This group includes Camden, Pearre, Forster, Welch, Lowell and Reginia avenues, and Warren, Victoria, and Prince George streets, and Trost avenue.

It was estimated yesterday that the five streets on which the mayor and council are concentrating, excluding the road at the dam, would provide work for 100 men for about two months.

Following a session at City Hall yesterday, Mayor Irvine stated that the WPA matter had been discussed, but that no public announcement would be made until City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett returns to Cumberland tomorrow.

According to one council member, the delay in action is partly due to Heskett's being out of town and the fact that the group has not as yet heard from WPA headquarters.

Drinks Wine So Officers Won't Find It in Car

St. Petersburg, Fla., July 12 (AP)—Yes, indeed, Frank O'Neal told the judge, he was cold sober when he had that automobile accident Sunday.

That smell on his breath? Well, he had a half pint of wine on the seat beside him and he knew that would look bad. So he quickly drank it up to keep police from finding it.

Frank got $100 or 90 days.

Deaths

Henry W. Gruber

Henry W. Gruber, native of Cumberland and a former business man here and in Frostburg, died early yesterday after a heart attack at hies home in Washington. He was 72.

Mr. Gruber formerly operated a grocery business in Cumberland and later was associated with A. Charles Stewart in the clothing business in Frostburg.

Mr. Gruber was retired and had been living in Washington about six years.

His body will be brought to Cumberland this afternoon.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Sophia Schlunt; one sister, Mrs. Minnie Shetzer, 619 North Centre street; one brother, Jacob Gruber; and a brother-in-law, John Schlunt, 101 Decatur street.

Mr. Gruber was a Mason and a member of St. Luke's Lutheran church while in Cumberland.

William Albert Brant

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Effie Wolford Brant; a daughter, Mrs. Mildred O. Hammond; and two sisters, Mrs. Lottie Leasure and Mrs. Amy Rice, all of Cumberland; a brother, Espie Brant, of Fostoria, O.; and two grandchildren.

The Board of County Commissioners, sitting as the board of appeals on tax revision cases, yesterday finished up with appeals in district 8, which takes in Westernport and surrounding area. Very few appeals were made, the commissioners stated.

Shotgun Blast Peppers Pretty Girl; 'Accidental', Says Brother-in-Law

A pretty 17-year-old Paw Paw girl was admitted to Memorial Hospital last night after a 12-gauge shotgun in the hands of her brother-in-law discharged and sprinkled her body with buckshot.

The victim, Mary Burton, was rushed to the hospital after the shooting which was termed an accident by Mrs. Rheo Braithwaite, whose husband, Hugh, was cleaning his gun when it discharged.

According to Mrs. Braithwaite, she and her sister, Mary, were just starting for a walk to a neighbor's home when the accident occurred.

Was Cleaning Gun

"I looked back," Mrs. Braithwaite stated. "Hugh was sitting there looking so funny. Then Mary said 'I'm shot' in a scared voice.

"I thought she was kidding, and I started to laugh. Then I saw blood on Mary. Hugh came running out into the road and said, 'Oh, My God, Mary' and then told me to go get a doctor quick.

Only an Accident

"It was an accident We hadn't had any trouble or anything.

"Mary's home is in Berkeley Springs. That's where our parents live. But when she lost her job in Cumberland she came to stay with us awhile."

County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle and Detective Sergeant B. Frank Gaffney went to the hospital and questioned Mrs. Braithwaite, who accompanied her sister. The husband did not come to the hospital.

Investigator Boyle questioned Miss Burton briefly and then questioned Mrs. Braithwaite at some length. He determined that the accident occurred around 6 p. m.

Had Just Fed Pigs

"I had just fed the pigs and Mary and I had both combed our hair," the anxious woman declared in fixing the time.

She said that the first person who came on the scene following the accident was a man she identified as "Bill" Pearl.

When the county investigator remarked that it was customary to remove the shells from a gun prior to cleaning it, Mrs. Braithwaite reiterated her statement that it "was an accident."

Not Boyle's Affair

When Mr. Boyle determined that the shooting occurred in West Virginia he stated that was outside his jurisdiction and advised Mrs. Braithwaite to get in touch with the sheriff at Berkeley Springs in order to have the affair properly taken care of.

Hospital attendants said later that Miss Burton, although generously sprinkled with buckshot, was not in serious condition.

School Will Be Held For WPA Foremen

Centreville, Md., July 12 (AP)—One of the first of a series of joo conferences for WPA foremen was held here tonight by a trained leader.

The conferences are new to Maryland, although other states have held them for two years. WPA officials explained their primary purpose was to bring foremen together to talk about common problems and how each had solved them.

Each of the conferences will be attended by 20 or 25 of the 400 to 500 foremen in the state. At the first, the foremen's responsibilities will be considered. Later they will take up the problems of avoiding idle time; disclipine and reprimands; fitting the worker to the job; giving orders; making out accident reports and using first-aid kits.

Maryland has four leaders, men picked from relief rolls and trained to discuss the subjects and bring the foremen to talk about them. Each leader will hold a meeting in a different area each night.

City Hall Turned Into 'Hospital'

Health Improvement Programs Varied

Although it was designed chiefly as a focal point for civic affairs, City Hall has greatly resembled a hospital in many respects the last few days.

Activity along this line has included the spatic paralysis clinic conducted by Dr. W. M. Phelps, Baltimore specialist, Tuesday and yesterday; the baby clinic conducted by Dr. Walter B. Johnson; physical examinations Tuesday for 63 Allegany county boys of which 60 were admitted into the CCC corps; and the dental clinic conducted by Dr. Karl W. Kolb.

Dr. Phelps, the foremost specialist in spastic cases in the country, examined eighteen patients Tuesday and seventeen more yesterday.

Phillip Inskeep Is Taken by Death

Moorefield, July 12.—Phillip Inskeep died at his home near Moorefield early Tuesday morning after an illness of about two weeks.

Mr. Inskeep was born January 27, 1860, the son of John W. Inskeep of Hardy county and Maria Wilson of Kentucky. After attending local schools he went to Washington and Lee University where he was one of the founders of the Kappa Sigma chapter. Later he finished at the Poughkeepsie Business School in New York state.

In September 1891 he married Miss Mollie Duval of Upper Marlboro, Md., who died several years ago. Three children survive, Mrs. Marie McNeill, Machir and Philip, Jr., all of Moorefield.

Mr. Inskeep worked for several years in the Daniel and Inskeep Mill and then moved his family to Lost River, where they lived a few years. Since that time he has lived in the home near Moorefield and in addition to managing his farm, he ran a community store in the Addition.

Just recently, Mr. Inskeep was honored by the A. F. and A. M. for having been a member for fifty years.

Father's Truck Kills Baby Girl on Nearby Farm

Tragedy Occurs At Miltenberger's Near Ridgeley

Daughter Dies In Hospital Here 12 Hours Later

A tiny baby girl died last night in Allegany hospital twelve hours after she had been run over by her father's truck.

The child was 15-month-old Katherine Miltenberger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Miltenberger. Mr. Miltenberger operates a truck and dairy farm along the Potomac several miles out of Ridgeley on the Fort Ashby road.

The tragic accident happened at 6 a. m.

The baby slipped off the milk house and was playing in front of the truck when her father started it up. Her father had not seen her and did not know she was around.

"The first James knew, he heard a slight cry as the back wheel of the truck ran over her body," Mrs. Miltenberger said.

The child was brought immediately to Allegany hospital and admitted at 6:15 a. m. Dr. F. A. Murray said she died of internal injuries at 6:24 p. m.

Surviving, besides her parents, are two brothers, Frederick, 6, and James, Jr., 4, and one sister, Mary Ellen, 3.

Funeral arrangements will be made at Stein's.

Uncle Sam Gives State Big Forest

Tract Is Located In Garrett County

Marylanders had two new playgrounds of nearly 40,000 acres today in opposite ends of the state. The larger playground by far is in Garrett county.

The state forestry department took over 38,200 acres of land from the federal government under a 99-year lease which stipulates the state shall administer the land and take all the receipts from it.

Of the total, 32,000 acres are in the Western Maryland mountains, adjoining the Savage River state forest. The other 6,200 acres are in the tidewater area of the Eastern Shore, near the Pocomoke state forest.

Patrols Only Extra Cost

Assistant Forester Karl W. Pfeiffer said the only extra cost to the state probably would be extra patrols. He said present supervisors of the two forests could care for the new acreage, submarginal land bought for the federal government to get it out of cultivation.

The state would receive the income from sale of timber and from permits for camping in the area, he added. The forestry department "hopes", he said, that the income will be greater than the extra expense.

The areas were purchased by the federal government during the past four years under the nation-wide land utilization program. The purchased lands have been developed for forestry, wildlife conservation, and recreation.

The state department of forestry will continue the forestry program involving reforestration of open, formerly cultivated tracts, fire protection, and management of the areas in accordance with sound forestry principles. The wildlife program, including the planting of shrubs and other types of vegetation that furnish food and cover for birds and animals, will also be carried forward by the state. Recreational facilities will be maintained for the public.

Dentist Takes Case To Supreme Court

Washington, July 12 (AP) — The Supreme Court has been asked to decide whether a Massachusetts dentist should pay a $1 fine imposed on a charge of making claims of "painless" dentistry.

Dr. Fred P. Brown, North Easton dentist, appealed from a decision by the State Supreme court sustaining his conviction by the Suffolk County Superior court.

The indictment alleged among other things that he included "in a letter of advertisement certain words and statements claiming the performance of painless operations of a dental and oral surgical nature."

Dr. Brown challenged constitutionality of a 1937 Massachusetts statute regulating advertising by dentists. He contended it was an unreasonable "restriction of private enterprise."

Washington, July 12 (AP)—A $100,000 laboratory building will be constructed at the University of Maryland, college park, by the bureau of fisheries, it is announced.

The building will house laboratory units now at college park and Washington. Means of improving methods for the canning, smoke and freezing of fishing products, and other problems of the industry on the Atlantic coast will be studied at the laboratory.

Beds Set End-to-End For Tallest Man

Robert Wadlow, the world's tallest man, spent a comfortable night in Cumberland Tuesday on two double beds placed end-to-end at the Fort Cumberland hotel, hotel employes reported yesterday.

Low footboards on the beds made these accommodations possible.

The 21-year-old Alton, Ill., man attracted more attention than any guest in some time, hotel attendants admitted yesterday. The desk clerk at the hotel also admitted that he evinced some surprise when the big fellow came walking into the hotel, stooping to come through the front door.

Mr. Wadlow, accompanied by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Wadlow, and a brother and two sisters, were up bright and early yesterday morning and left the hotel at 7:30 a. m., it was reported.

Bank Conservator Failed In Duties, Suit Charges

Charges that Frank C. Ort failed to perform his lawful duties as conservator for the First National Bank of Midland are made in a suit brought against the company which bonded Ort.

Suit was filed in Circuit court here by Preston Delano, United States comptroller of currency, who was represented by Attorney Harry I. Stegmaier.

The suit alleges that Ort's failure to perform his duties led to considerable loss. The suit asks $10,000 from the National Surety company.

Vacation at Shore

William Sipple and William Mateer, both of Cumberland, are vacationing this week at Ocean City, Maryland.

'The Basket' Missing at City Hall; Newsmen Mourn, Officials All Mum

"The basket" was missing from its accustomed place yesterday, but not the little green and yellow basket the hotcha singers swing about.

This particular basket is that time honored institution at City Hall which has been a fount of information for council members, city officials, and reporters for years.

Its accustomed place is on the safe in the inner office of the city clerk's domain. At least that used to be its place. And it always contained notices of things past and things to come up in the future.

Yesterday it was not in that place and a number of people made inquiries as to what became of it. No one seemed to exactly know although several people declared they had a pretty good idea.

One reporter found it tucked away in a corner on the floor. Another didn't find it at all and immediately declared that this country was getting worse than Nazi Germany.

Puzzled over the mysterious case of the basket, one reporter called Mayor Harry Irvine himself last night and inquired if he had seen the basket.

"It was in there when I dropped in at 3:30 yesterday afternoon," Mayor Irvine declared. The mayor inquired what is was all about.

168 WPA Workers Who Were Fired Can't Get Back

Jobs Gone for Good Under Regulations, Officials Point Out

One significant point that has been largely overlooked in the current WPA controversy, according to WPA officials, is the fact that the 168 workers who have been fired because there is nothing for them to do cannot be re-hired if and when more projects are sponsored by the city.

In other words, these 168 men are out of luck. And about to land in the same boat with them are the hundreds of workers scheduled to be fired in coming months.

These men have lost their jobs for good (barring, of course, some drastic change in WPA administrative orders) because of the quota system.

Jobs Go To Other Counties

As explained by Henry Tarring Jr., resident engineer for WPA in Allegany and Garrett counties, Washington allots the state of Maryland so many WPA obs, and each county is given its quota of available jobs.

But along comes the day when WPA, after giving the city council due warning, runs out of enough projects in Cumberland to keep all the men busy. Already 168 men have been fired for this reason.

WPA headquarters does not keep these jobs open, waiting for the Cumberland city council to decide to find something for the men to do.

This many jobs are immediately lopped off the Allegany county quota and distributed out among other counties of the state which are ready and willing to put more WPA workers to work.

Can't Give Jobs Back

According to Mr. Tarirng, it would not be the usual procedure, in case more projects became available, to put the Allegany county quota back up where it was before the slash, because this would mean lopping off WPA workers in other counties and disorganizing the programs of the other counties.

Told that it apparently has not been generally realized that the fired workers could not get their jobs back as soon as new projects might be supplied, Mr. Tarring replied:

The most recent check-up of WPA enrollment on city-sponsored projects, which is as of July 5, shows 580 workers.

Twenty had already been fired July 1 when the Seneca avenue project ran out. Since July 5, there have been 132 men fired off the Constitution park project and twenty-six off the Sylvan avenue project.

During the past week, ten or more men have returned to private employment, leaving about 412 men working on city-sponsored WPA projects today.

37-Cent Rate Here

Under the new WPA regulations backed by President Roosevelt and approved by Congress, unskilled workers here are now putting in 130 hours a month at thirty-seven cents an hour, making a monthly wage of $48.10. Workers classed as of intermediate skill get forty-six cents an hour. Skilled workers get fifty-five cents.

About eighty-five per cent of the workers are classified as unskilled.

Unless city council sponsors new WPA projects, the WPA program will gradually be whittled down here until by the middle of November there will be no more WPA in Cumberland.

All barbers who have no means of transportation should see Raymond 'Buck' Griffith, who is arranging to provide rides for those who wish to attend.

Swimming, games, and other activities will comprise the day's entertainment.

Council Tackles WPA Problems

Study Long List Of Street Jobs

Mayor Harry Irvine and the members of city council yesterday buckled down to work on the current WPA situation, which it was indicated would be ironed out as soon as possible.

A line of projects was submitted to Mayor Irvine yesterday by City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer for study.

The projects, totaling twenty-seven, include sixteen already approved by WPA and eleven unapproved.

New Road at Dam Proposed

If started, the road at the dam would provide work for a crew of 200 men for the better part of a year, Rizer estimated yesterday. The other street jobs would be of shorter duration.

Repaving jobs included on the report submitted to the mayor included sections of First, Second Third, Fourth and Fairfax streets, Brookfield avenue, Virginia avenue, South Mechanic, Reynolds, Yale East and Marion streets.

Waiting On Heskett

Also on the list submitted were a group of street repaving jobs which have not as yet been approved. This group includes Camden, Pearre, Forster, Welch, Lowell and Reginia avenues, and Warren, Victoria, and Prince George streets, and Trost avenue.

It was estimated yesterday that the five streets on which the mayor and council are concentrating, excluding the road at the dam, would provide work for 100 men for about two months.

Following a session at City Hall yesterday, Mayor Irvine stated that the WPA matter had been discussed, but that no public announcement would be made until City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett returns to Cumberland tomorrow.

According to one council member, the delay in action is partly due to Heskett's being out of town and the fact that the group has not as yet heard from WPA headquarters.

Drinks Wine So Officers Won't Find It in Car

St. Petersburg, Fla., July 12 (AP)—Yes, indeed, Frank O'Neal told the judge, he was cold sober when he had that automobile accident Sunday.

That smell on his breath? Well, he had a half pint of wine on the seat beside him and he knew that would look bad. So he quickly drank it up to keep police from finding it.

Frank got $100 or 90 days.

Deaths

Henry W. Gruber

Henry W. Gruber, native of Cumberland and a former business man here and in Frostburg, died early yesterday after a heart attack at hies home in Washington. He was 72.

Mr. Gruber formerly operated a grocery business in Cumberland and later was associated with A. Charles Stewart in the clothing business in Frostburg.

Mr. Gruber was retired and had been living in Washington about six years.

His body will be brought to Cumberland this afternoon.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Sophia Schlunt; one sister, Mrs. Minnie Shetzer, 619 North Centre street; one brother, Jacob Gruber; and a brother-in-law, John Schlunt, 101 Decatur street.

Mr. Gruber was a Mason and a member of St. Luke's Lutheran church while in Cumberland.

William Albert Brant

William Albert Brant, 11 East street, a retired carpenter, died early yesterday after several years of ill health. Mr. Brant was 73.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Effie Wolford Brant; a daughter, Mrs. Mildred O. Hammond; and two sisters, Mrs. Lottie Leaspre and Mrs. Amy Rice, all of Cumberland; a brother, Espie Brant, of Fostoria, O.; and two grandchildren.

Few Appeals Heard

The Board of County Commissioners, sitting as the board of appeals on tax revision cases, yesterday finished up with appeals in district 8, which takes in Westernport and surrounding area. Very few appeals were made, the commissioners stated.

Shotgun Blast Peppers Pretty Girl; 'Accidental', Says Brother-in-Law

A pretty 17-year-old Paw Paw girl was admitted to Memorial Hospital last night after a 12-gauge shotgun in the hands of her brother-in-law discharged and sprinkled her body with buckshot.

The victim, Mary Burton, was rushed to the hospital after the shooting which was termed an accident by Mrs. Rheo Braithwaite, whose husband, Hugh, was cleaning his gun when it discharged.

Was Cleaning Gun

Suddenly an explosion was heard from the vicinity of the front porch.

"I looked back," Mrs. Braithwaite stated. "Hugh was sitting there looking so funny. Then Mary said 'I'm shot' in a scared voice.

"I thought she was kidding, and I started to laugh. Then I saw blood on Mary. Hugh came running out into the road and said, 'Oh, My God, Mary' and then told me to go get a doctor quick.

Only an Accident

"It was an accident We hadn't had any trouble or anything.

"Mary's home is in Berkeley Springs. That's where our parents live. But when she lost her job in Cumberland she came to stay with us awhile."

County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle and Detective Sergeant B. Frank Gaffney went to the hospital and questioned Mrs. Braithwaite, who accompanied her sister. The husband did not come to the hospital.

Investigator Boyle questioned Miss Burton briefly and then questioned Mrs. Braithwaite at some length. He determined that the accident occurred around 6 p. m.

Had Just Fed Pigs

"I had just fed the pigs and Mary and I had both combed our hair," the anxious woman declared in fixing the time.

She said that the first person who came on the scene following the accident was a man she identified as "Bill" Pearl.

When the county investigator remarked that it was customary to remove the shells from a gun prior to cleaning it, Mrs. Braithwaite reiterated her statement that it "was an accident."

Not Boyle's Affair

When Mr. Boyle determined that the shooting occurred in West Virginia he stated that was outside his jurisdiction and advised Mrs. Braithwaite to get in touch with the sheriff at Berkeley Springs in order to have the affair properly taken care of.

Hospital attendants said later that Miss Burton, although generously sprinkled with buckshot, was not in serious condition.

Lions Turn Out To Dinner Party

Motor To Romney For Installation

School Will Be Held For WPA Foremen

Centreville, Md., July 12 (AP)—One of the first of a series of joo conferences for WPA foremen was held here tonight by a trained leader.

The conferences are new to Maryland, although other states have held them for two years. WPA officials explained their primary purpose was to bring foremen together to talk about common problems and how each had solved them.

Each of the conferences will be attended by 20 or 25 of the 400 to 500 foremen in the state. At the first, the foremen's responsibilities will be considered. Later they will take up the problems of avoiding idle time; disclipine and reprimands; fitting the worker to the job; giving orders; making out accident reports and using first-aid kits.

Maryland has four leaders, men picked from relief rolls and trained to discuss the subjects and bring the foremen to talk about them. Each leader will hold a meeting in a different area each night.

Health Improvement Programs Varied

Although it was designed chiefly as a focal point for civic affairs, City Hall has greatly resembled a hospital in many respects the last few days.

Activity along this line has included the spatic paralysis clinic conducted by Dr. W. M. Phelps, Baltimore specialist, Tuesday and yesterday; the baby clinic conducted by Dr. Walter B. Johnson; physical examinations Tuesday for 63 Allegany county boys of which 60 were admitted into the CCC corps; and the dental clinic conducted by Dr. Karl W. Kolb.

Dr. Phelps, the foremost specialist in spastic cases in the country, examined eighteen patients Tuesday and seventeen more yesterday.
